SCOPE OF WORK

For Archeological Evaluation

Robinson South Terminal
City of Alexandria, Virginia

A Documentary Study of Robinson South Terminal was completed by Thunderbird Archeology in April 2015 in anticipation of the planned redevelopment of the property. Based on our review of the history and archeology of Alexandria's waterfront, it is likely that evidence of 18th and 19th-century buildings including Alexandria's first shipyard (Thomas Fleming's, ca 1749), and Pioneer's Mill (1854) may be present beneath the property. Additionally, there is potential for a series of wharves and remains of derelict vessels and timbers. This Scope of Work is for conducting an Archeological Evaluation (Phase I/II Excavations) within the project area.

This work will be conducted prior to the onset of construction activities on the property and calls for a combination of machine trenching, backhoe stripping of soils, and possibly the excavation of shovel test pits and test units, in order to determine if significant archeological resources are present within the project area. If significant resources are found, a Resource Management Plan will be prepared.

All significant archeological sites identified will be registered with the Virginia Department of Historic Resources and copies of the site form registration will be sent to Alexandria Archaeology. Any additional archeological investigations beyond the backhoe trenching and scraping (i.e. Phase III mitigation excavations), if required, will be conducted under a separate scope of work.

All personnel must be approved in advance by Alexandria Archaeology. Alexandria Archaeology staff will conduct site inspections throughout the course of the fieldwork. All aspects of this investigation will adhere to OSHA regulations and will comply with the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards dated January 1996 and the Secretary of the Interior's Standards and Guidelines for Archaeology and Historic Preservation. Miss Utility must be informed before excavations are begun.

Background

Robinson Terminal South is located on the block bounded by Duke Street, Union Street, Wolfe Street, and the Potomac River at approximately 2 Duke Street, Alexandria, Virginia. The property is historically situated along Point Lumley, the southern end of the shallow crescent bay around which the town Alexandria was established in 1749. The original 10 to 15-foot-high bluffs overlooking the Potomac River were leveled and used to infill the crescent bay, in a process described as "banking out." The study area served an important role in Alexandria's economy as a commercial hub for transportation, trade, and industry. The study area contained Alexandria's first shipyard (Thomas Fleming's ca. 1749), Hooe's Wharf (ca. 1780), Kirk's Wharf (ca. 1770), Pioneer's Mill (1854), Southern Iron Works (ca. 1937), and finally was occupied by the Robinson Terminal Warehouse Corporation.

Remnants of 18th and 19th century buildings may be present beneath Robinson Terminal South property; most notably the remains of the Pioneer Mills which burnt down in 1897. There are also indications that some mid to late 19th and early 20th-century retail buildings may be located along Wolfe Street and Duke Street. Additionally, 18th and 19th - century wharves and other structures by which land was created within the original course of the Potomac are almost certainly extant within the property; in Alexandria and elsewhere, these are typically timber structures retaining earth and stone fill. There is also a possibility of encountering sunken canal, river, or ocean-going vessels, the hulls of which may have been used as part of the frame and fill for the "banking out" of land on the waterfront.

Research Goals

The two primary research goals of the initial testing are 1) to examine the cross-site stratigraphic profile in order to understand and interpret the "banking out" process of land creation along the waterfront, and 2) to determine the presence/absence of archeological features at the site. The archeological work at this site can also address several research questions.

- Archeological excavations at the Indigo Hotel revealed evidence of engineered infilling and land creation north of Point Lumley: a bulkhead wharf and a vessel that had been also been used as the framework for the engineered fill. Were similar methods used to create new land south of Point Lumley?

- Can we locate and identify Thomas Fleming's shipyard? Shipyard sites are largely absent from the archeological record; therefore, the remains of Fleming's wharf, secondary structures and subsurface features related to his shipbuilding venture becomes even more important to complement the documentary record.

- Will the site contain the remnant 18th-and 19th-century wharves and structures?

- Is the current building on 2 Duke Street resting partially on the foundation of Col. Hooe's Warehouse?

- Will the stratigraphic profile reveal evidence of the fires that devastated this block?

- Did the foundations of the Pioneer Mill survive?

- Can we identify historic resources associated with the Civil War occupation of the waterfront?

- Can we attribute any historic remains (features or artifacts) to the various industries on the block- blacksmiths, carpenters, coopers, grocers, etc? To the domestic component of the block?

Proposed Construction Activities

Proposed redevelopment will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings and a one-story below grade parking garage. A portion of the RTS property is partially situated within the mapped Zone AE Special Flood Hazard Area (SFHA) associated with the Potomac River and a Conditional Letter of Map Revision Based On Fill (CLOMR-F) is being requested from FEMA to remove this portion of the site from the SFHA. The placement of engineered fill will reduce the flood hazards associated with the site and enable compliance with floodplain regulations.

With the existing roads that border the site to remain at their current grades, one continuous retaining wall was constructed along the entire south boundary line that wrapped around the southwest and southeast corners of the property and an additional retaining wall was constructed in one location along the northern portion of the site. The proposed fill placed in conjunction with the proposed retaining walls allowed the majority of the site to be raised to an elevation of 11.2 feet. As of February 14, 2017, these retaining walls have been constructed and Thunderbird Archeology was present to monitor the activities.

Safety and Environmental Procedures:

Project engineering, construction and archeological staff will work to mitigate, to the degree possible, engineering challenges that might hinder the investigation (e.g. dewatering and deep trench-box excavations).

Windscreens will be installed and provided as needed.

Disposal of contaminated archaeology soil shall be in in accordance with our Soil and Groundwater Management Plan and Health and Safety Plan, prepared by ECS and dated November 20, 2015; it will be disposed of in the appropriate landfill after being removed from the site. Should soil that is contaminated be stockpiled longer than one working day, it will be surrounded by a berm to prevent runoff, and the pile will be covered with plastic sheeting.

During our initial exploratory trenching, groundwater will be mitigated onsite with the use of localized dewatering pumps at the trench. We do not anticipate encountering groundwater during our block excavations until we reach elevation +5 (per page 22 of the Subsurface Exploration and Geotechnical Analysis dated April 30, 2015). An approved dewatering discharge permit has been issued by the Virginia Dept. of Environmental Quality (DEQ). If the water cannot be mitigated on site, then discharge of water will be directed offsite per the guidelines of the DEQ permit.

Archeological excavations will be stepped back away from the perimeter of the excavation in accordance with OSHA standards, in order to examine profiles and safely hand excavate the soils and archeological materials. If block excavations are required in areas that cannot be laid back, temporary shoring will be used in the area where the work is occurring and will be backfilled after the work is complete.

Archeological staff will wear appropriate PPE and follow procedures, in accordance with our Soil and Groundwater Management Plan and Health and Safety Plan, prepared by ECS and dated November 20, 2015. In addition, all archeological staff have completed HAZWOPER Hazardous Materials technician training.

Archeological Evaluation Fieldwork

Archeological work will commence following the placement of the engineered fill, but prior to the full-scale construction excavation for the parking garage at the site. The planned location of trenches is shown on Exhibit A.

Excavation Methods

Machine Trenching

Using a backhoe equipped with a flat-bladed, smooth bucket, Thunderbird staff archeologists will direct the excavation of a series of trenches diagonally across the project area. The trenches will be approximately five feet in width and will vary in depth according to anticipated impacts of the proposed construction. If possible, at least one soil strata column profile will be drawn for every trench. Photographs will be taken.

At any point in the sequence described above, the staff archeologist will stop the machine excavation if intact buried surface layers or any features are exposed. Work will temporarily halt in this area until the assessment of the feature's significance is complete but can proceed in other areas. The assessment may require additional work (i.e. the hand excavation of shovel test pits or test units). For investigation of the buried surface and/or features, see below.

Trenches may be back filled after recordation of the soil profiles if features/buried surfaces are not located if necessary to facilitate easier movement within the project area and safety concerns prior to full soil removal.

Shovel Test Pit Excavations

If a buried ground surface is identified during the machine stripping or trenching within the site, Thunderbird staff will first make a determination of the presence/absence of archeological resources within this surface. Shovel test pits (STPs) will be excavated within the buried surface at 20-foot intervals to identify the extent of any archeological resources. STPs will measure at least 15 inches (38.1 cm) in diameter and will be excavated by natural soil levels.

All soils within the test pits will be screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth screens and artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Soil profiles will be made of representative units, with soil descriptions noted in standard soil terminology (A, Ap, B, C, etc.). Soil colors will be described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations. The location of each shovel test pit will be mapped and documented with field notes.

Test Unit Excavations

The hand excavation of 3 x 3-foot test units may be required to test and evaluate potentially significant archeological features or buried ground surfaces that are located during archeological stripping or trenching. The need for test unit excavation will be at the discretion of the Thunderbird staff archeologist, in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology staff. The test units will be excavated stratigraphically by natural or cultural levels or by arbitrary sub levels. All soils will be screened through ¼-inch mesh hardware cloth. Representative soil profiles will be drawn using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designation. All work will be documented by field notes, sketch plans and photographs.

Excavation Areas and Strategies

As described below, there are two major areas of excavation—the northwest corner (the proposed townhouse area) and the deeper underground parking garage in the eastern and southern portions of the site:

Northwest Corner of Site (proposed townhouse area)

Trenches in the northwest corner of the site will be excavated to identify and evaluate significant archaeological resources in the proposed townhouse area. The archaeological investigation will extend to the depth of the proposed ground-disturbing activities in the area with excavations conducted to remove unsuitable fills that were discovered during the demolition of the Robinson Terminal South warehouse foundation.

1 Thunderbird staff will direct the machine excavation of trenches using a grading (smooth bladed) bucket to the depth of the unstable fills (i.e. the depths of proposed impacts), which is estimated to be 6’ to 9’ below the current soil grade - or to approximately 4.3 feet -1.3 feet in elevation. This area does not contain additional fill like the garage area, which will be discussed later. The trenches will be stepped/ expanded following OSHA guidelines to allow for safe hand excavation and evaluation.

2 Trenches will be expanded into block excavations as necessary to expose and document features. Work will temporarily halt in this area until the assessment of the feature’s significance is complete but can proceed in other areas. The assessment may require additional work (i.e. the hand excavation of shovel test pits or test units to evaluate buried surfaces or features).

3 Finally, areas of unsuitable soil between the trenches and block excavations will be removed from the townhouse site under the direction/supervision of Thunderbird staff in order to expose and document features.

Garage Area (one-story underground garage)

Archeological work will commence in the garage area after the northwest portion of the site (the townhouse area) has been completed. The garage area will be divided at least into thirds, in order to better manage the mass excavations across such a large area.

1 Thunderbird staff will archeologically monitor the removal of the engineered fill that was placed in association with the CLOMR-F.

2 Thunderbird staff will then direct the machine excavation of trenches using a grading (smooth bladed) bucket. The trenches will be initially excavated down to a depth of +5 feet in elevation. The trenches will be stepped/ expanded/sloped following OSHA guidelines to allow for safe hand excavation and evaluation.

3 Trenches will be expanded into block excavations to expose and document features exposed within trenches.

4 Further archeology will be conducted in the garage area in two phases- "preconstruction" and "construction".

Preconstruction -The goal is to complete as much archeology as possible within the garage area prior to the commencement of construction, which includes the future slurry wall. The work that can be achieved will be dictated by the ability to do localized groundwater mitigation and the ability to provide safe and prudent support of excavation in areas where the excavation exceeds 5' in depth.

The sequence of work during "Preconstruction archeology" will be:

- Once trenching and block excavation is completed (items 1, 2 and 3 above), the entire site will be excavated in between the trenches and block excavations to the planned top of the future cut off "slurry" wall. This work will be performed by machine scraping that will allow Thunderbird to monitor the removal of soil between the trenches and block excavations noted in Item 1 thru 3 above. It is anticipated this will allow the removal of soil to depths 5.0 to 9.0 feet below the grade after installation of the engineered fill that was placed in association with the CLOMR-F. If safety and groundwater allows, steps 1 thru three will be repeated until such time as it is no longer viable to continue or terminal depth for the project is reached. It is anticipated that groundwater will hinder progress between 5 and 9 feet below the grade after installation of the engineered fill that was placed in association with the CLOMR-F

- Based on water table and ability to safely bench and layback additional archeology will be performed. Areas of significant initial findings will be identified and excavated in trenches and block excavation. These areas may be backfilled when complete.

When it is no longer viable to continue with archeology due to excessive groundwater or excavation. The work will be suspended until such time that the cut-off "slurry" wall is installed and the ground water has been reduced.

Construction: The sequence of work during the "Construction Archeology" will be:

- Under the direction of Thunderbird staff, trenches to the elevation of final disturbance will be excavated. Work will proceed with item 3 above.
- The remainder of the soil between the trenches and block excavations (including the soils in the stepped areas adjacent to the retaining wall and the townhouse area) will be then removed from each garage section under the direction/supervision of Thunderbird staff in order to expose and document any additional features.
- Thunderbird staff will continue with the machine excavation of trenches, block excavations and monitoring of the removal of soil until the depth of proposed garage impacts or culturally sterile soils are reached.

Resource Management Plans

Resource management plans will be written and implemented for all buried features, etc. that are deemed significant. If large, extraordinary, or significant resources are found, such as privies, wells, or shipwrecks, a Resource Management Plan and Scope of Work for additional services will be prepared. In the meantime, the horizontal extent of the feature(s) discovered during this process will be documented (photographed and mapped) in preparation for further investigation in the next phase of archeological work. Photogrammetry or laser capture may be used to record the structure of any vessel or large wooden feature exposed during the excavation, but will be budgeted separately.

Laboratory Work and Curation

Archaeological artifacts recovered from significant soil layers within the project area will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards. A professional conservator must consult during artifact recovery on all sites involving water-logged artifacts. Organic materials that may require conservation may be recovered; however, this cost proposal does not include conservation services. Conservation may be added as an additional service.

Field stabilization and pre-conservation methodology shall be as follows:

Organic materials: If organic materials are found dry, they should remain dry; if they are found wet, they should remain wet.

> Leather and faunal materials: Damp or wet leather and faunal materials shall be stabilized by spraying a plastic bag with an anti-fungal, such as Lysol, wrapping the artifact in wet paper towels, and placing the wrapped artifact into thick plastic or multiple plastic re-closeable zip top bags to prevent drying out (note: Artifacts should never come into direct contact with the anti-fungal).
> Textiles: Damp or wet textiles shall be removed along with the surrounding soil, wrapped in thick plastic or multiple re-closeable zip top plastic bags to prevent drying out (note: anti-fungal such as Lysol should NOT be used on these materials).
> Wood: Damp or wet wooden artifacts shall be wrapped in black sheeting (3-4 MIL) and secured with duct tape/zip ties/etc. (note: anti-fungal such as Lysol should NOT be used on wood).

Leather and textile materials shall then be kept in a refrigerator until further treatment is possible.

Metals: Damp or wet metal should be kept wet until processed in the lab.

Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeological Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the property owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. The archeological consultant is responsible for arranging for the donation of the artifacts with the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

At the conclusion of the project, all images, field notes and forms and other field records will be submitted to Alexandria Archaeology in digital format on a CD along with the original hard copies of all field nots, forms and other field records. In addition, the artifacts, if they are to be donated to the City, will be delivered to Alexandria Archaeology.

Archeological Evaluation Report and Resource Management Plan

The Archeological Evaluation Report will include the following: a public summary; a map of the project area; a map with trench locations and significant features; a summary of the procedures; results of the field investigation and artifact analysis, including a distribution map or other graphics which indicate potentially significant archeological areas; an integration of the field and analysis data with the historical record; and recommendations for additional work, if needed. The Resource Management Plans will present any further preservation measures which may be necessary on the site.

When the fieldwork is completed, two draft copies of the full Archeological Evaluation Report will be submitted to Alexandria Archaeology, as is required by Alexandria Archaeology. Once the report is approved by the City Archaeologist, revisions will be made, and four copies of it, one unbound with original graphics, will be submitted to Alexandria Archaeology. The report will also be submitted on a CD. All site maps and drawings will be inked or computer-generated so as to produce sharp and clear images that will result in clear photocopies or microfilms.

Public Interpretation

The City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards require that a public summary be prepared as part of an Archeological Evaluation Report. The public summary will be approximately 4 to 8 pages long with a few color illustrations. This should be prepared in a style and format that is reproducible for public distribution and use on the City's web site. Examples of these can be seen on the Alexandria Archaeology Museum website.

A draft of the summary should be submitted to Alexandria Archaeology for review along with the draft of the Archeological Evaluation Report. Upon approval, a master copy (hard copy as well as on CD or computer disk) will be submitted to Alexandria Archaeology. The summary and graphics should also be e-mailed to Alexandria Archaeology for publication on our web site.

In addition, if determined to be warranted by the City Archaeologist, the developer will be required to erect a historical marker on the property. The archeological consultant will supply the written text and graphics for the marker. The consultant will coordinate with the City Archaeologist before writing the text and selecting images. The text should be up to 200 words in length with a paragraph on the historical significance of the site and a paragraph on findings from the documentary study and archeological evaluation. The graphics (minimally four, with captions) need to be high-quality copies (scanned at a minimum of 600 dpi and saved separately as jpeg or tiff files) of line drawings (e.g., site maps, feature drawings), historic photographs and maps, or other illustrations (e.g., site or artifact photos) in black and white or color. All copyright releases need to have been obtained and credit provided for each graphic. The text and graphics must be submitted to Alexandria Archaeology on a CD.

Tasks

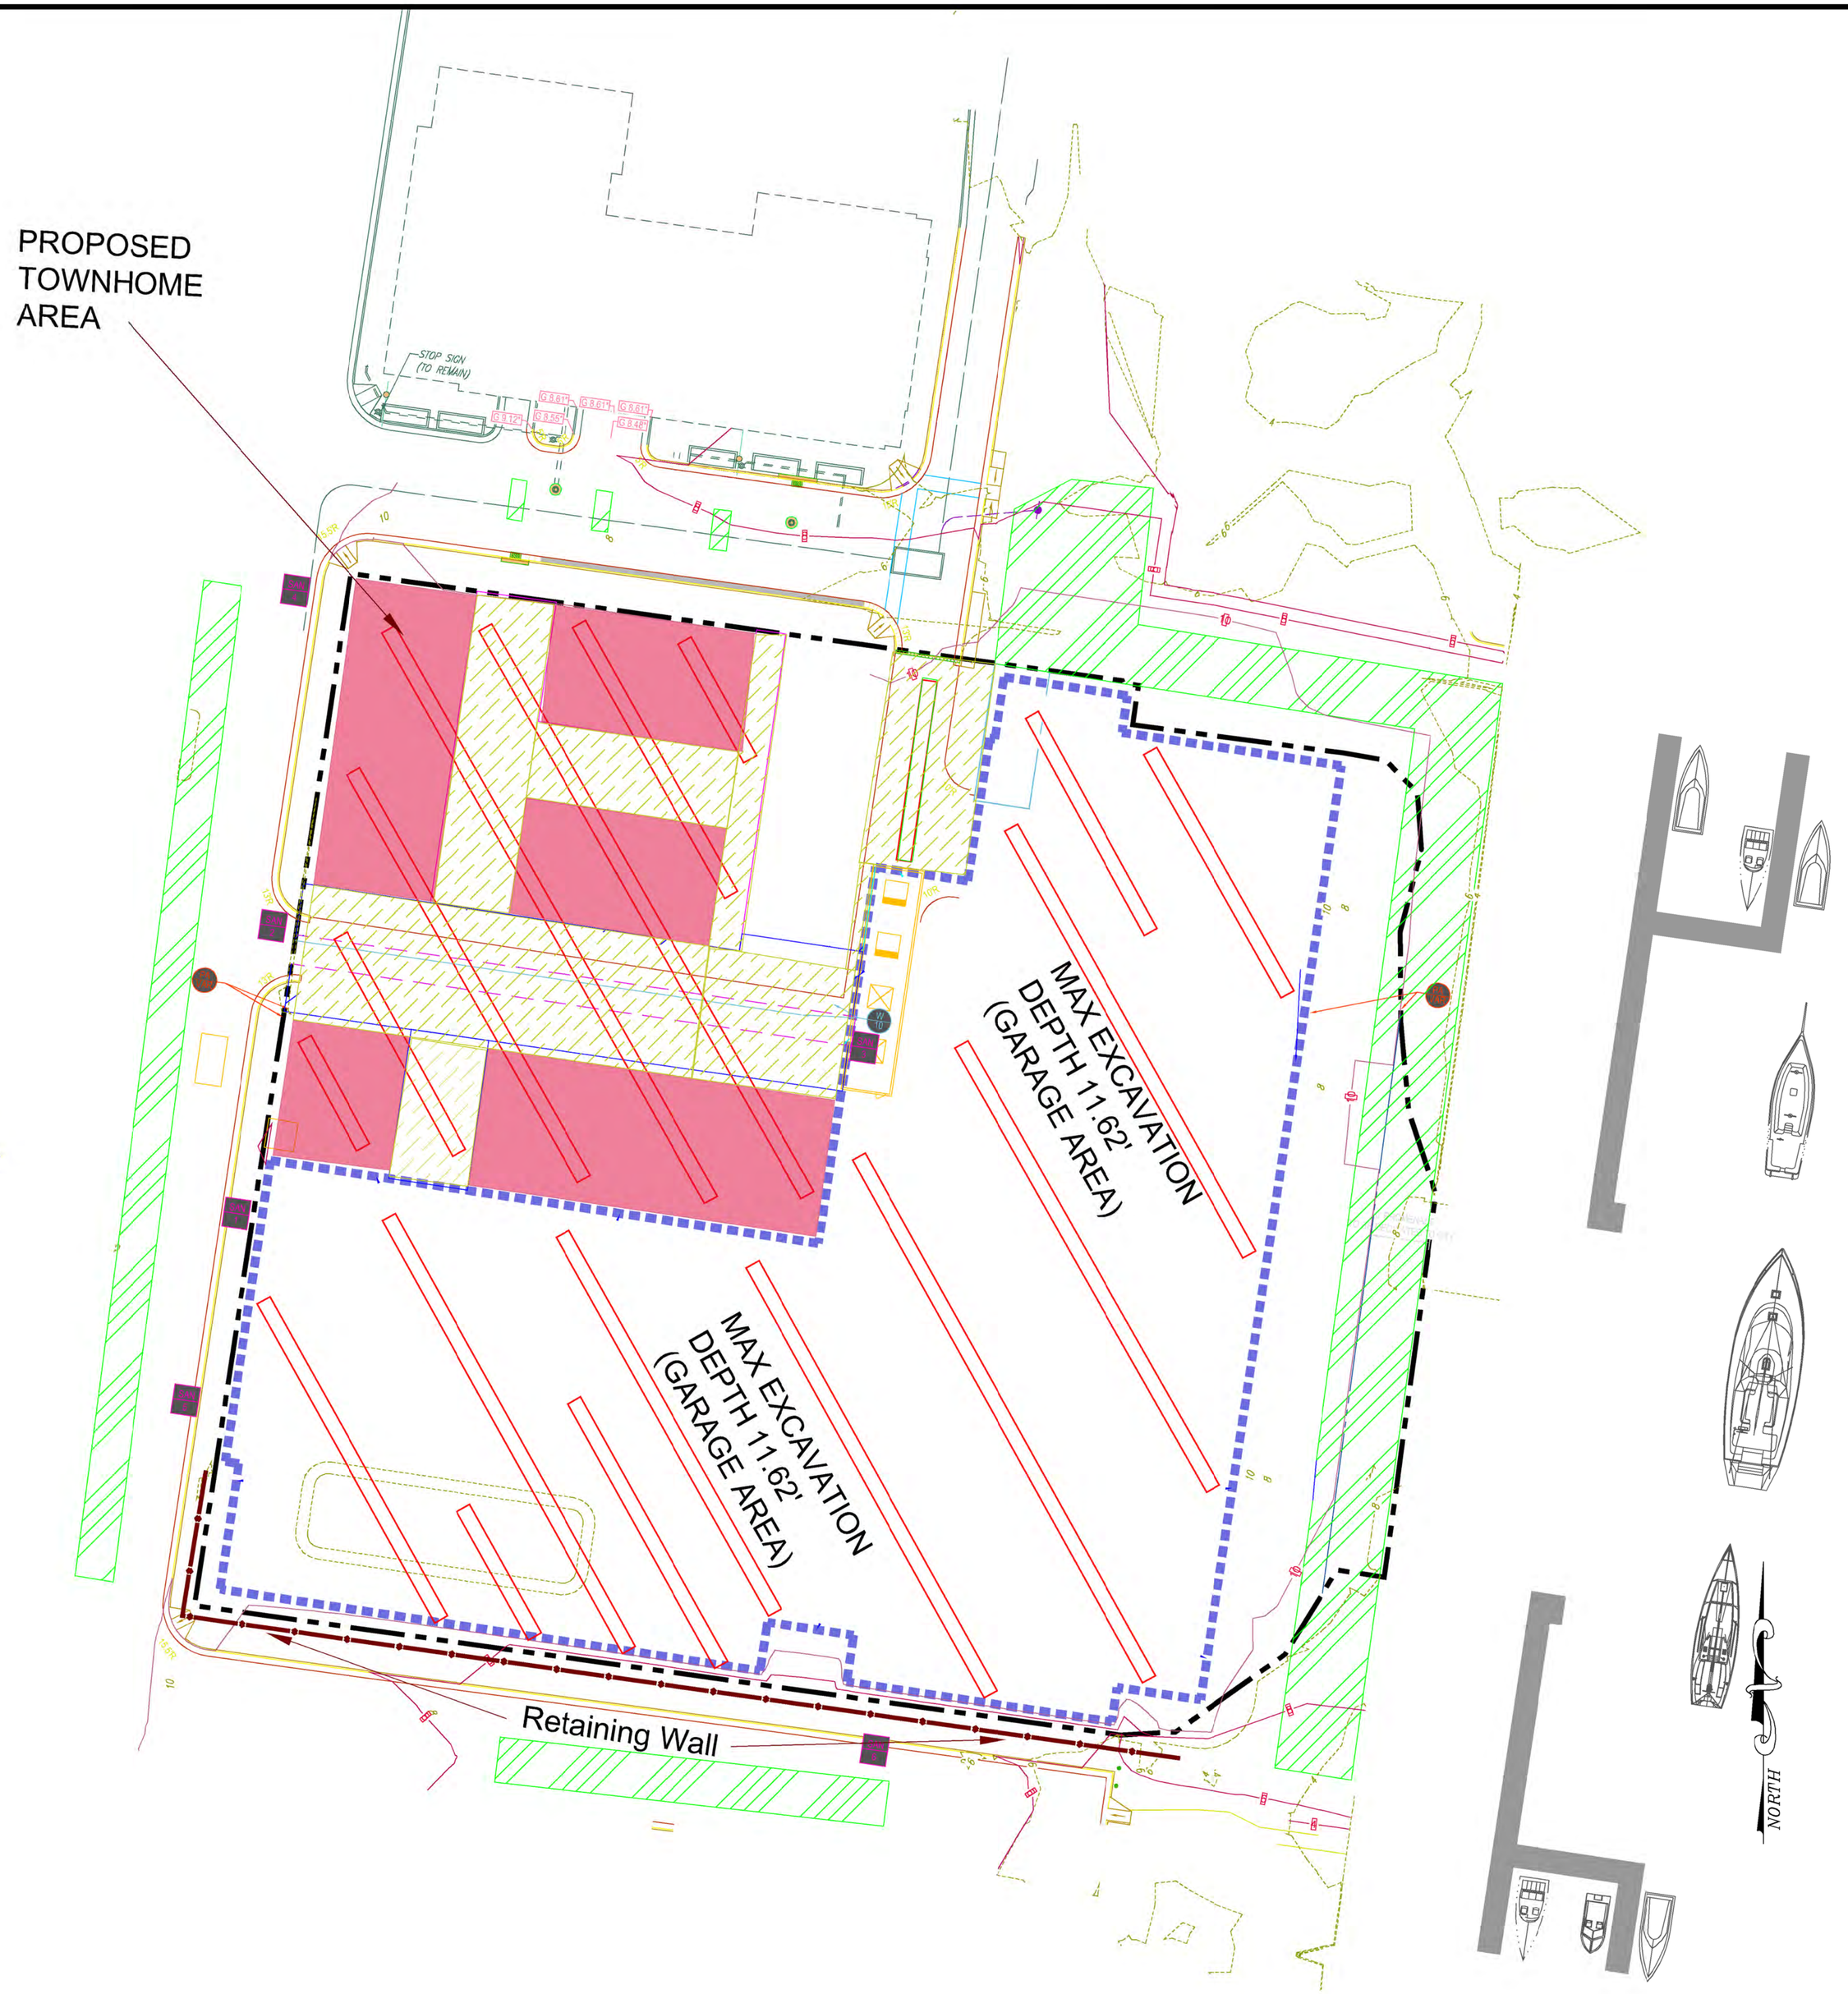
The following is a summary of the tasks to be completed:

1 Meet with Alexandria Archaeology staff to finalize the field strategy based on the results of the Documentary Study.

2 Notify Alexandria Archaeology of the demolition monitoring start date. Conduct the field monitoring and trench excavation. Note that an Archeological Preservation Certification may be needed from the city, if the site is not yet under construction.

3 If significant finds are made, produce a Resource Management Plan that will include an executive summary of fieldwork, to-scale maps showing features and excavated areas and a scope of work for the next phase of fieldwork. Meet with Alexandria Archaeology to present the results.

4 Register all sites with DHR and submit copy of the registration forms to Alexandria Archaeology.



5 Process all significant artifacts and complete the analysis.

6 If no significant resources are discovered, produce and submit two draft copies of the Archeological Evaluation Report to Alexandria Archaeology, including the public summary document and the text and graphics for the historic marker, if warranted. If significant resources are discovered, the Evaluation Report may be incorporated into the final report that includes implementation of all preservation actions stipulated in the Resource Management Plans.

7 Deliver to Alexandria Archaeology four copies (including one unbound copy) and CD of the final report, final versions and CDs of the public summary and historic marker text and graphics, plus all original field notes, copies of historic documents, photographs, slides, digital images, cassette tapes, transcriptions, forms and associated records. In addition, arrange for the donation and delivery of the artifacts to an appropriate storage facility. Alexandria Archeology is the preferred repository and requires a City of Alexandria Deed of Gift form.

Formats for Digital Deliverables:

1. Photographs: .jpg.
2. Line Drawings: .gif or .jpg as appropriate.
3. Final Report/Public Summary Word, PageMaker and/or PDF
4. Oral History Word
5. Catalogue: Word, Access or Excel
6. Other Written material: Word, Access, Excel, PageMaker or PDF as appropriate

Resource Management Plans

ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings within the northwest quadrant of the site. Prior to the commencement of archeological work, engineered fill was temporarily placed across the property in order to reduce flood hazards associated with the site and enable compliance with floodplain regulations. During the removal of these overlying (non-historic) fill soils from the northwestern portion of the site, several stone foundations and brick foundations and features were exposed. Numerous additional archeological features were identified during the subsequent exploratory trenching within this area. The location of all features and exploratory trenches have been survey located (Figure 1).

This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for three of these features: Feature 18, a stone foundation with brick flooring along Union Street; Feature 19, a brick-lined semi-circular feature that abuts the southeast edge of Feature 18, and Feature 4, and second stone foundation south of Feature 18.

Decisions regarding the significance of the features were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. All three features retain integrity and therefore can address one of the research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice):

> can we attribute any historic remains (features or artifacts) to the various industries on the block- blacksmiths, carpenters, coopers, grocers, etc? To the domestic component of the block?

Because Features 18, 19 and 4 have the potential to help us understand the domestic lifeways and various industries along the waterfront during the late 18$^{th}$ and 19$^{th}$ centuries, they are considered significant and archeological data recovery is required by the City.

Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archaeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

The ultimate goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the features prior to their destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Fieldwork, and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. Thunderbird Archeology will arrange the donation of the artifacts from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Documentary Research

According to our documentary research, the portion of the property containing the three features was originally part of Town Lot 77, which was first purchased by Nathaniel Chapman in 1749. Chapman's heirs sold the lot to Thomas Fleming in 1770. The creation of Union Street around 1785 divided this town lot, and the portion south of Union Street (and within the Robinson Landing property) was further subdivided after Fleming's death. Parcels 2-4 were created by Thomas Patten in 1797 when he acquired, then subdivided and sold the portion of Lot 77 east of Union Street.

Parcel 2, which contains Features 18 and 19, was sold to William Hartshorne in 1797 and then to Archibald McClish (Sr.), a cooper and gauger of liquors who also leased property on Point Lumley (Alexandria Deed Book I: 287;419). The parcel was described later as being located 80 feet south of the intersection of Duke and Union Streets and measuring 24 feet north-south by 56 feet and one inch east-west (AG 15 July 1833:1). The dwelling on Parcel 2 was the home of the McClish family through most of the 19th century, as noted in tax and other records. The dwelling appears on 19th and 20th century maps and photographs until it was demolished circa 1938 (Figures 2-4).

Little information has been uncovered concerning the occupants and owners of Parcel 3, which contains the dwelling designated Feature 4, although the dwelling also appears on 19th and 20th century maps and photographs (see Figure 3). Reardon's Estate was taxed in 1810 for the house and lot; Edward Jones is listed as the occupant that year. Elizabeth Jones and Frederick E. Moore subsequently appear as occupants in 1813/14. "Reardon" may have been John Reardon; individuals with this name appear in late 18th and early 19th century records as a cooper and as an inspector of beef, pork, and fish (Miller 1992: 64-65). Jones and Moore have not been found in archival records at this time.

Feature 18: Stone Foundation with Brick Floor

The stone foundation measures approximately 30.5 feet north-south by about 22.5 feet east-west on its exterior and is situated at about 8 feet above mean sea level in elevation (Figure 5 and Figure 6). The interior measures about 26.8 feet north-south by 18.8 feet east-west; an apparent brick pier (Feature 18-1) measuring approximately 1.6 feet east-west and 1.1 feet north-south is centered within the middle of the brick floor.

The foundation was exposed after the engineered fill was removed from the northwestern portion of the site. Three test units were placed within Feature 18 in order to evaluate the interior fills: Test Unit 4 in the foundation's southeast corner, Test Unit 6 in the center along the brick pier (F.18-1), and Test Unit 8 in the foundation's northwest corner (see Figure 1). Test unit excavations identified cultural fill levels overlying sterile subsoil, as shown in the profiles below:

Test Unit 6
- Fill 1: 0-1.2 feet below surface – [10YR 6/4] light yellowish brown sand with 40% gravel inclusions, overburden
- Fill 2: 1.2-1.9 feet below surface – [10YR 5/6] yellowish brown sand
- Fill 3: 1.9-2.5 feet below surface – [10YR 4/6] dark yellowish brown sand
- C horizon (subsoil): 2.5-2.8 feet below surface – [GLEY1 5/10Y] clay

Test Unit

Stone Foundation

Brick Floor or Feature

The overlying soil (Fill 1) contained brick rubble mixed with gravel from the engineered fill and was not screened. Fill 2 contained mostly sterile sand and generated few artifacts. Fill 3 contained a darker sand with a higher quantity of artifacts, including glass, faunal remains, and ceramics. Laboratory analysis of the artifact assemblage recovered from the test unit is ongoing.

Proposed Methodology

Field Investigations

The southern half of the interior of the dwelling will be initially excavated, beginning with the southeast quadrant. If this excavation produces data that is deemed not useful or is redundant in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology, the remaining soils in the northern half can be removed en masse without screening for artifacts, after final approval from Alexandria Archaeology. Once the cellar has been fully excavated and all foundations are exposed, the feature will be documented with documented with photographs including the addition of survey located photo markers. Photogrammetry software will be used to create 3D (georeferenced) models.

Vertical excavation will be by natural/cultural soil levels. Excavation will be halted when gleyed soils, gravel, water, or well-developed B horizons too old for human occupation are reached. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. All profiles will be drawn of the interior soils with the end result of completing a cross-feature stratigraphic profile.

Fill 1, which is mixed with modern CR6 engineered fill, and Fill 2 will be removed without screening; however, the soils from Fill 2 will be "trowel-sorted" and any unique find will be collected at discretion of the project archeologist. Initially, the soils from Fill 3 from the entire southeast quadrant will be water-screened through 1/16-inch mesh hardware cloth. If water screening of these soils produces data that is deemed not useful or is redundant, the percentage of soil from Fill 3 to be water screened from the remained of the feature will be reduced or entirely terminated after consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. Water screening will be conducted onsite.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field. Up to three flotation samples (at least one from Fill 3), measuring approximately one-gallon, will be retained from feature soils with superior integrity that are associated with the occupation of the dwelling, and from any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as builders trench or trash pits.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the soils associated with Feature 18 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Feature 18 will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

All recovered faunal material will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for analysis; faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. The raw data obtained will include species present and estimated minimum number of individuals of each species present.

The one-gallon soil samples will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for flotation. Soils will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. As warranted, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Additional Documentary Research and Reporting

Additional documentary research will be needed to place the feature into its historic and architectural context. The results of the documentary research, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Feature 18 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report.

Feature 19: Brick-Lined Well/Privy

A circular brick-lined feature was discovered during the excavation of exploratory Trench 9A and was recorded as Feature 19 (Figures 7-8). The feature abuts the southeast edge of Feature 18 and was found at a depth of about 7.5 feet in elevation. The feature is semi-circular and measures approximately 4.2 feet in diameter on its exterior with an interior measurement of 3.4 feet in diameter. A small trench excavated along the feature's outer wall, revealed the depth to be approximately three feet. No excavations have been conducted within the feature at this time.

The function of the feature is unknown, but appears to be a well or cistern that may have been later used as a privy, as a small shed is shown in this approximate area in the circa 1880 photograph (see Figure 3).

Field Investigations

The feature will be bisected along an east-west axis. WSSI archeologists will hand excavate the southern half of the feature by stratigraphic levels; the associated builder's trench will be excavated separately, but concurrently with the southern half of the feature. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. After all photos and other documentation are complete, the northern half will be excavated by stratigraphic levels. The northern half of the builder's trench will not be excavated.

All excavated soil will be screened. The southern half soils will be dry screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth screen. If feature soils with superior integrity are encountered within the southern half (i.e. the soils are not mixed 19$^{th}$/20$^{th}$ century contexts), then the southern half of the feature will be water screened through 1/16-inch mesh; however, if there is a paucity of artifacts in the assemblage or a lack of functional diversity, then the southern half of the feature will be dry screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth screens. In order to recover micro-artifact data, up to five (5) one-gallon soil samples will be taken from historic feature soils (one per strata); these samples will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for flotation and macro-botanical analysis.

If the feature appears to have last functioned as a privy based on the recovered artifact assemblage or organic nature of the soil, these levels will be water screened and up to five soil samples will be retained for historic privy pollen/parasite analysis, and five samples for historic privy phytolith analysis. These soil samples will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for analysis.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will likewise be weighed and discarded in the field.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the test units and from the soils associated with Feature 19 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards. No more than 2000 artifacts are anticipated.

Feature 19 will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

All recovered faunal material will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for analysis; faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. The raw data obtained will include species present and estimated minimum number of individuals of each species present. No more than 1000 bone or bone fragments are anticipated.

The soil samples will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for flotation and macro-botanical analysis. Soils will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. If the feature appears to have last functioned as a privy based on the recovered artifact assemblage, soil samples will be sent to a qualified subconsultant for historic privy pollen/parasite and historic privy phytolith analyses.

Additional Documentary Research and Reporting

Additional documentary research will be needed to place the feature into its historic and architectural context. The results of the documentary research, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Feature 19 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report.

Feature 4: Stone Foundation

The stone foundation measures approximately 24 feet north-south by about 22 feet east-west on its exterior and is situated at 8 feet in elevation (Figure 9 and see Figure 6). An apparent hearth/chimney pad measuring approximately 6 feet east-west and 3 feet north-south is centered along the southern wall of the foundation, organic staining extends north into the interior of the foundation.

Two 3-foot square test units were excavated in the southern area of the feature, investigating the southeast foundation corner and the probable hearth/chimney pad. The test units several fill levels overlying sterile sand:

Test Unit 5
- Fill 1: 0- 0.6 feet below surface – [10YR 4/4] dark yellowish brown sandy loam
- Fill 2: 0.6- 1.7 below surface – [10YR 4/4] dark yellowish brown sand with 20% brick fragments
- Fill 3: 1.7- 2.25 feet below surface – [10YR 4/6] light yellowish brown sand with 10% charcoal and brick flecking

Fill 4: 2.25- 2.9 feet below surface – [10YR 5/6] yellowish brown sand
Fill 5: 2.9- 3.0 feet below surface – [10YR 4/8] yellowish brown sand
Fill 6 (redeposited subsoil): 3.1- 3.4 feet below surface – GLEY [2 8/10b] marine clay with brick flecking

The overlying soil (Fills 1, 2, and 3) appear to be historic fills. Fill 4 may represent a living surface; Fill 5 is a thin brick layer; and excavation was halted upon reaching Fill 6, with the discovery of wooden planks across the floor of the test unit.

Laboratory analysis of the artifact assemblage recovered from the test unit is ongoing.

Initially, all excavated soils will be dry screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth screen. If feature soils with superior integrity are encountered during excavation, WSSI archaeologists will consult with Alexandria Archeology about the need for a change in methodology. Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length x width x height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Up to four flotation samples measuring approximately one-gallon, will be retained from feature soils with superior integrity that are associated with the occupation of the dwelling, and from any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as builders trench or trash pits.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the test units and from the soils associated with Feature 4 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

RESOURCE MANAGEMENT PLAN
FOR FEATURE 5: BRICK FOUNDATION AND FEATURE 13: BRICK WELL
ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings and a one-story below grade parking garage. Prior to the commencement of archeological work, engineered fill was temporarily placed across the property in order to reduce flood hazards associated with the site and enable compliance with floodplain regulations. During the removal of these overlying (non-historic) fill soils from the northwestern portion of the site, several stone foundations and brick foundations and features were exposed. Numerous additional archeological features were identified during the subsequent exploratory trenching within this area. The location of features and exploratory trenches have been survey located (Figure 1).

This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for two of these features: Feature 5, a brick foundation exposed near the intersection of Duke and Union Streets and Feature 13, a brick-lined well (see Figure 1). The features were documented with notes, photographs, and drawings, and were evaluated for their significance (see descriptions below).

Decisions regarding the significance of the features were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. Features 5 and 13 retain integrity and therefore can address one of the research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as twice amended):

> can we attribute any historic remains (features or artifacts) to the various industries on the block- blacksmiths, carpenters, coopers, grocers, etc? To the domestic component of the block?

Because Features 5 and 13 have the potential to help us understand the domestic lifeways and various industries along the waterfront during the late 18$^{th}$ and 19$^{th}$ centuries, they are considered significant and archeological data recovery is required by the City.

Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archaeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

The ultimate goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the features prior to their destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Fieldwork, and report contents associated with the Phase III data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the property owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. The archeological consultant will be responsible for arranging for the donation of the artifacts with the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Feature 5: Brick Foundation

According to our documentary research, the portion of the property containing Feature 5 was originally part of Town Lot 77, which was first purchased by Nathaniel Chapman in 1749. Chapman's heirs sold the lot to Thomas Fleming in 1770. The creation of Union Street around 1785 divided this town lot into two sections, and the portion of the lot south of Union Street and within the Robinson Landing property was further subdivided after Fleming's death in 1786. The subdivided lots contained numerous buildings that served as dwellings, businesses, or a combination of both.

Feature 5 is located within "Lot 1" of this subdivision. A two-story frame store and dwelling at the corner of Duke and Union Streets was insured in 1815 with the Mutual Assurance Society of Virginia; the policy describes the six surrounding frame buildings, but no brick buildings are mentioned. It is not known if the building represented by Feature 5 was a frame or a brick building.

The brick foundation measures approximately 18 feet north-south by about 16 feet east-west on its exterior and is situated at 9 feet in elevation (Figure 2). The interior measures about 16.6 feet north-south by 14.8 feet east-west; an apparent brick hearth/chimney pad measuring approximately 6 feet east-west and 4.5 feet north-south is centered along the northern wall of the foundation, extending south into the interior of the foundation.

An informal exploratory trench was excavated into to the southeastern corner of the foundation's interior to determine if intact contexts or deposits were present within the feature and to assess the feature's stratigraphy; the trench measured approximately 6 feet north-south by 2.5 feet east west. Based on the results of the exploratory trench, a 3-foot square test unit was excavated in the northeastern corner of the feature, adjacent to the northern foundation wall and the probable hearth/chimney pad. The test unit identified four fill levels overlying sterile sand:

Test Unit 1
- Fill 1: 0- 0.45 feet below surface – brick and mortar rubble
- Fill 2: 0.45- 1.45 below surface – [10YR 4/3] brown sandy loam with charcoal flecking
- Fill 3: 1.45- 2.15 feet below surface – [10YR 4/6] light yellowish brown sand with small to medium quartz pebbles
- C horizon (subsoil): 2.15-2.6 feet below surface – [10YR 6/4] light yellowish brown loose course sand

The overlying soil (Fill 1) contained brick rubble mixed with a few artifacts (n=124), in comparison to Fill 2, which contained over 700 artifacts. Nearly half of the recovered artifacts from this level were faunal material. Laboratory analysis of the artifact assemblage recovered from the test unit is ongoing; however, a rough examination of the ceramics from Fill 2 indicates a terminus post quem (TPQ) of 1795 based solely on the presence of one small mocha pearlware sherd.

Based on the rough TPQ and the documentary evidence from the fire insurance policy, this building was filled in sometime after 1795 but still may have been extant in 1815.

Proposed Methodology

Field Investigations

The interior of the foundation will be excavated in quadrants, beginning with the northeast section. Each quadrant will be further subdivided and excavated in test units measuring roughly 4.625 by 6 feet in order to maintain horizontal control of artifact distribution. Vertical excavation will be by natural/cultural soil levels. Excavation will be halted when gleyed soils, gravel, water, or well-developed B horizons too old for human occupation are reached. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. Profiles will be drawn of the interior soils from each quadrant (i.e. the south and west walls of the excavated northeast quadrant) with the end result of completing a cross-feature stratigraphic profile.

Soils from the uppermost stratum (Fills 1) will be dry screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth screen. Initially the soils from Fill 2 and Fill 3 from the entire northeast quadrant will be water-screened through 1/16-inch mesh hardware cloth. If water screening of these soils produces data that is deemed not useful or is redundant, the percentage of soil from Fills 2 and 3 to be water screened in the remaining three quadrants will be reduced or entirely terminated after consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. If possible, water screening will be conducted onsite, with appropriate drainage and erosion and sediment control measures in place. Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length x width x height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Up to four flotation samples (one from each quadrant), measuring approximately one-gallon, will be retained from feature soils with superior integrity that are associated with the occupation of the dwelling, and from any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as builders trench or trash pits. Finally, four test units or trenches will be excavated along the exterior walls to look for builder's trenches.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the test units and from the soils associated with Feature 5 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Feature 5 will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

All recovered faunal material will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for analysis; faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. The raw data obtained will include species present and estimated minimum number of individuals of each species present.

The one-gallon soil samples will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for flotation. Soils will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. As warranted, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanicals analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Additional Documentary Research and Reporting

Additional documentary research will be needed to place the feature into its historic and architectural context. The results of the documentary research, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Feature 5 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report.

Feature 13: Brick-Lined Well

A brick-lined well was discovered during the excavation of exploratory trenches within the northwestern portion of the site level (see Figure 1); the well within Trench 8B was recorded as Feature 13 and was found at a depth of about 7 feet above mean sea level. The well is circular and measures approximately 7 feet in diameter on its exterior with an interior measurement of 5.75 feet in diameter (Figure 3) and is about 5 feet in depth (Figure 4). Evidence of a builder's trench was seen immediately adjacent to the well, measuring approximately 2 feet in width and following the general shape of the well. The bricks of Feature 13 appear to be dry laid in alternating courses of stretcher and header laid bricks; evidence of vertical wood plank lining on the exterior is apparent. The bottom of the feature sits in marine clay and the last course of bricks appears to be resting on a wooden ring. No excavations have been conducted within the interior of the feature. Details of construction will be fully documented during the field investigations.

Field Investigations

The feature will be bisected along an east-west axis. WSSI archeologists will hand excavate the northern half of the well by stratigraphic levels; the associated builder's trench will be excavated separately, but concurrently with the northern half of the well. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. After all photos and other documentation are complete, the southern half will be excavated by stratigraphic levels. The southern half of the builder's trench will not be excavated.

All excavated soil will be screened. The northern half soils will be dry screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth screen. If feature soils with superior integrity are encountered within the northern half (i.e. the soils are not mixed 19$^{th}$/20$^{th}$ century contexts), then the southern half of the feature will be water screened through 1/16-inch mesh; however, if there is a paucity of artifacts in the assemblage or a lack of functional diversity, then the southern half of the feature will be dry screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth screens. Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will likewise be weighed and discarded in the field. In order to recover micro-artifact data, approximately one-gallon soil samples per strata will be taken from historic feature soils; these samples will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for flotation and macro-botanical analysis.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the test units and from the soils associated with Feature 13 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Feature 13 will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

All recovered faunal material will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for analysis; faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. The soil samples will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for flotation and macro-botanical analysis. Soils will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds.

Additional Documentary Research and Reporting

Additional documentary research will be needed to place the feature into its historic and architectural context. RESOURCE MANAGEMENT PLAN
FOR FEATURE 12 (POTENTIAL PRIVY)
ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

Exploratory trenching within the northwest corner of the Robinson Landing site resulted in the identification of numerous archeological features, including building foundations, brick wells, and probable privies. This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 12, a possible box privy exposed in the western profile of Trench 8B (Figure 1). The feature measures 3 by 3 feet and is roughly 3 feet in depth. Because the feature is intact and undisturbed by subsequent use of the property in the 20th century, it has research potential and is considered significant. The recovered artifact assemblage from the feature can tell us information about the occupants and the use of this portion of original Town Lot 77. The feature must be mitigated soon, as it is in danger of collapsing or slumping into the open exploratory trench.

Fieldwork, and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology and the artifact collections must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the property owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation.

Field Investigations
The feature will be documented with photographs, notes, and will be survey located. The feature will be bisected and a representative profile will be drawn. The privy feature will be excavated in either arbitrary or stratigraphic levels. The soils will be water-screened on-site through 1/16" window mesh cloth (to recover small finds).

Laboratory
Archeological artifacts will be cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards. No more than 250 artifacts are anticipated.

Samples (approximately three (3) one-gallon sized ziplock bags) of the soils will be retained for flotation. The samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions hand-examined for the presence/absence of diagnostic artifacts and small finds. A portion of each flotation sample from each level of the feature will be retained for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanicals analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants. All faunal remains will be submitted to a qualified sub consultant for analysis. Faunal analysis is useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. The raw data obtained will include species present and estimated minimum number of individuals of each species present. No more than 200 bone or bone fragments are anticipated.

Additional Research and Reporting
Additional archival and historic research may be needed to place feature into its historic context. The results of the privy excavation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses will be integrated into one combined report describing the results of the Archeological Evaluation and the results of all Data Recovery Mitigation conducted at the site.

FOR FEATURE 45 (Dwelling Foundation)
AND FEATURE 23 (Hearth Foundation)
ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings and a one-story below grade parking garage. Prior to the commencement of archeological work, engineered fill was temporarily placed across the property in order to reduce flood hazards associated with the site and enable compliance with floodplain regulations. During the removal of these overlying (non-historic) fill soils from the northwestern portion of the site, several stone foundations and brick foundations and features were exposed. The location of features and exploratory trenches have been survey located (Figure 1).

This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 45, a stone and brick foundation abutting the Feature 5 exposed along Duke Street, and for Feature 23, a brick and stone chimney/oven foundation south of Feature 4 (see Figure 1). Decisions regarding the significance of the features were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. All three features retain integrity and therefore can address one of the research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work:

- can we attribute any historic remains (features or artifacts) to the various industries on the block- blacksmiths, carpenters, coopers, grocers, etc? To the domestic component of the block?

Data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archaeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

The ultimate goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the features prior to their destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Fieldwork, and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact the appropriate storage facility.

Documentary Research – Features 45 and 23

According to our documentary research, the portion of the property containing both features was originally part of Town Lot 77, which was first purchased by Nathaniel Chapman in 1749. Chapman's heirs sold the lot to Thomas Fleming in 1770. The creation of Union Street around 1785 divided this town lot into two sections, and the portion of the lot east of Union Street and within the Robinson Landing property was further subdivided after Fleming's death in 1786. The subdivided lots contained numerous buildings that served as dwellings, businesses, or a combination of both.

Feature 45 is located within "Lot 1" of this subdivision, which was purchased on January 6, 1794 by Captain George Slacum (1756-1810), a shipping merchant, who did not reside on the parcel (Alexandria Deed Book E:337). By 1796, at least two buildings stood on Slacum's corner lot: a two-story 26 by 16-foot frame building at the corner of Duke and Union Streets and a second frame house to the south. Tax records indicate that a third building occupied by John Wood, a shoemaker, stood to the east of the corner building by 1810; this building appears to be in the approximate location of Feature 45.

Parcels 2-4 were created by Thomas Patten in 1797 when he acquired, then subdivided and sold the portion of Lot 77 that lay east of Union Street. Feature 23 is located within "Lot 4" of this subdivision. On March 23, 1798, Patten sold Parcel 4 to Thomas Mazervey (Mezervey), a shopkeeper (Miller 1991: 333) who appears as occupant of the building on the parcel in the 1810 tax records. Mazervey conveyed the property to Theodore Skinner on June 15, 1810 (Alexandria Deed Books K:284; 5:368). Skinner died in March 1815, and the property was inherited by Rebecca Fletcher for the remainder of her life, and then reverted to the remainder of Theodore Skinner's brothers and sisters (Alexandria Will Book 2: 9). The parcel continued to be purchased throughout the years by absentee landlords, as noted in tax and other records; various tenants occupied the dwelling, including James Matthews in 1830, and Nathaniel Beachum and Edward Lacock in 1850. The dwelling appears on several late-19$^{th}$ century and 20$^{th}$ century maps and photographs (Figures 2-3).

Feature 45

Feature 45 measures approximately 15 feet north-south by about 20 feet east-west on its exterior and is situated between approximately 7.1 and 8.95 feet in elevation (Figure 2). The feature was evaluated by the excavation of two 3-foot square test units were within the feature's interior, one in the southeast corner of the feature (Test Unit 18) and one in the north-central portion of the feature (Test Unit 19). One 3-foot square test unit was also excavated along the exterior of the western foundation wall (Test Unit 20) (see Figure 1).

The test units identified several fill levels overlying sterile sand:

Test Unit 18
- Fill 1: 0- 0.6 feet below surface – [7.5YR 3/3] dark brown silty loam
- Fill 2: 0.6- 1.7 below surface – [7.5YR 3/2] dark brown silt
- Fill 3: 1.7- 2.25 feet below surface – [7.5YR 4/4] brown silty loam
- Fill 4: 2.25- 2.9 feet below surface – [10YR 3/2] very dark grayish brown silty loam with inclusions of [10YR 4/6] light yellowish brown silty clay loam
- Fill 5: 2.9- 3.0 feet below surface – [7.5YR 4/4] brown sand
- Fill 6: 3.1- 3.4 feet below surface – [7.5YR 3/2] dark brown sandy loam
- Fill 7: 2.9- 3.0 feet below surface – [10YR 4/6] dark yellowish brown sand
- Fill 8: 3.1- 3.4 feet below surface – [10YR 3/2] very dark grayish brown sandy loam mottled with [10YR 4/6] light yellowish brown sand
- Fill 9: 2.9- 3.0 feet below surface – [10YR 3/3] dark brown sandy clay loam
- Fill 10: 3.1- 3.4 feet below surface – [10YR 5/4] yellowish brown sand
- Fill 11: 3.1- 3.4 feet below surface – [10YR 5/9] yellowish brown sandy loam

Test Unit 19
- Fill 1: 0- 0.6 feet below surface – [10YR 4/3] brown sand
- Fill 2: 0.6- 1.7 below surface – [7.5YR 3/2] dark brown silt
- Fill 3: 1.7- 2.25 feet below surface – [7.5YR 4/4] brown silty loam
- Fill 4: 2.25- 2.9 feet below surface – [10YR 3/2] very dark grayish brown silty loam with inclusions of [10YR 4/6] light yellowish brown silty clay loam
- Fill 5: 2.9- 3.0 feet below surface – [7.5YR 4/4] brown sand
- Fill 6: 3.1- 3.4 feet below surface – [7.5YR 3/2] dark brown sandy loam

Laboratory analysis of the artifact assemblage recovered from the feature is ongoing, but the two upper two fills appear to be mixed contexts, containing creamware, pearlware, and whiteware.

Proposed Methodology - Field Investigations

Mitigation of the feature will involve excavation of 50% of the soils, beginning with the northeast quadrant, then the excavation of test units placed across the interior in a "checkerboard pattern". Vertical excavation will be by natural/cultural soil levels.

Excavation will be halted when gleyed soils, gravel, water, or well-developed B horizons too old for human occupation are reached. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. Profiles will be drawn of the interior soils from each quadrant (i.e. the south and west walls of the excavated northeast quadrant) with the end result of completing a cross-feature stratigraphic profile.

Fills 1 and 2 will be screened for artifacts, but the artifacts from these fills will not be washed or processed. The remainder of the soils from the feature will be dry screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth screen. If cultural deposits or levels with superior integrity are identified, then water screening of these levels through 1/16-inch mesh hardware cloth will be required, per the programmatic procedures approved by Alexandria Archaeology. If possible, water screening will be conducted onsite, with appropriate drainage and erosion and sediment control measures in place. Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length x width x height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Up to three flotation samples, measuring approximately one-gallon, will be retained from feature soils with superior integrity that are associated with the occupation of the dwelling, and from any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as builders trench or trash pits.

Feature 23

Feature 23 is interpreted as a chimney and (possibly) circular oven foundations is located four feet south of Feature 4 and is situated at approximately 8.5 feet in elevation (see Figure 1). The feature measures approximately 9 feet north-south by about 14 feet east-west (Figure 4). The circular feature was evaluated through the excavation of a 3 by 3-foot test unit, which revealed shallow sandy fill overlying a brick floor. The feature was bisected and profiled; the sandy fill was removed and screened for artifacts; and the entire brick floor was exposed (Figure 5). A builder's trench was observed along the eastern side of the feature.

Proposed Methodology - Field Investigations

Continued evaluation/mitigation of the feature will involve the removal of 25% of the brick floor and the excavation of the underlying cultural soils if present. If warranted, the excavation of an additional 25% of the brick floor and soils, totally 50% of the feature will be investigated. Vertical excavation will be by natural/cultural soil levels, as described in detail above in the Feature 45 methodology section. Up to two flotation samples, measuring approximately one-gallon, will be retained from feature soils with superior integrity that are associated with the occupation of the dwelling, and from any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as builders trench or trash pits.

Laboratory Methodology - Features 45 and 23

Archeological artifacts recovered from the soils associated with Feature 45 and 23 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Feature 45 and 23 will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

All recovered faunal material will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for analysis; faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. The raw data obtained will include species present and estimated minimum number of individuals of each species present.

The one-gallon soil samples will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for flotation. Soils will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. As warranted, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanicals analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Additional Research and Reporting – Features 45 and 23

In order to better understand the individuals that occupied and/or used this portion of the city waterfront and their place within the contexts of time and space, archeological data from these features will be compared to data from similar features within the site, the city of Alexandria and the larger region. An evaluation of the socio-economic status of the households on this portion of the city block will also be useful in further understanding life along the Alexandria waterfront at the time of occupations and use of these features. Finally, subsumed within the previous areas of research interest is the temporal framework within which the overall site evolved. Evidence for alterations in intra-site structure and function, as well as changes in socio-economic status and the role of the site in the matrix of surrounding settlements and in history, will be examined and interpreted with respect to site chronology. Additional archival and historic research will be needed to place feature into its historic context, to supplement the archeological data, and to make these comparisons and evaluations.

The results of the excavations, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses, and additional archival research will be integrated into one Final Archaeological Report.

FOR FEATURE 24, THE FEATURE 34 COMPLEX, FEATURE 44, AND THE POST BULKHEAD/CRIB Complex
ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings within the northwest quadrant of the site. Exploratory trenching and subsequent site leveling within this area revealed numerous archeological features, including stone foundations, wells and privies. This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 24, the brick foundation of a possible warehouse, a complex of brick foundations and soil features located along Duke Street that been designated the Feature 34 complex, the Hooe Warehouse foundations designated as Feature 44, and the Post Bulkhead/Crib complex to the west of Feature 24 (Figure 1).

Decisions regarding the significance of the features were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. All four features retain integrity and therefore can address one of the research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice):

> can we attribute any historic remains (features or artifacts) to the various industries on the block- blacksmiths, carpenters, coopers, grocers, etc? To the domestic component of the block?

Because Feature 24, Feature 34, Feature 44, and the post bulkhead/crib complex have the potential to help us understand the domestic lifeways and various industries along the waterfront during the late 18$^{th}$ and 19$^{th}$ centuries, and the infilling process related to the early expansion of the City of Alexandria. They are considered significant and archeological data recovery is required by the City.

The ultimate goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the features prior to their destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

Fieldwork and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. Thunderbird Archeology will arrange the donation of the artifacts from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Documentary Research

According to our documentary research, the portion of the property containing these features was originally part of Point Lumley, which had been reserved by the trustees of Alexandria as "public land" because of its natural deep water access to the Potomac River. The features lie within what has been designated Parcel 1 of historic Point Lumley; this parcel lies south of Duke Street, between the eastern boundary of Town Lot 77 and the Strand. As it encompasses almost the entirety of the original Point Lumley prior to its expansion during banking-out and infilling of the waterfront, this parcel was likely the site of Thomas Fleming's ca. 1750 ship yard. By 1780, his shipbuilding enterprise had collapsed and Fleming died in 1796. In 1780, the Trustees leased land to Robert Hooe, on which was constructed a four-story warehouse circa 1782/1783. The extant building located at 2 Duke Street was constructed at the original location of this warehouse; although the western side of the circa 1782/83 foundations have been archeological located (see Figure 1).

In the early 1800s, the corporation land between Lot 77 and the Hooe Warehouse was primarily leased to James Campbell and his two sons, Loudon and William. Feature 24 and the Feature 34 complex are located on this portion of Parcel 1 (see Figure 1) and were likely used for industrial, commercial, and residential purposes. Our research into the leases, tax records and occupants of these parcels is ongoing, but preliminary results have revealed that Parcel 1A was first leased by the Trustees to John Hill in 1796, and in 1801 was renewed for a 21-year term. However, Hill transferred his lease to James Campbell in 1804, and James to his sons in 1807. James Campbell also obtained leases from the Trustees for Parcels 1B and 1C in 1803 and 1802 respectively. After the death of their father, Loudon and William Campbell continued to lease the three parcels at least through 1830. The Campbell's did not reside on these parcels, although Loudon Campbell briefly operated a shop on Duke Street. Tax and census records give us a glimpse of the residents of the houses on these parcels; and at least six individuals are listed in the 1810 tax records residing in the houses on these parcels.

By 1850, James Green was leasing the majority of the corporation land south of Duke Street, and the immediate area of the features was likely open space. This land appears to have remained open up to and during the Civil War, and became a lumber yard in the 1870s.

Feature 24: Brick Foundation

Feature 24 represents the brick foundation of a building that measures approximately 14 feet north-south by about 38 feet east-west on its exterior and is situated at about 7.5 feet above mean sea level in elevation (Figures 2-3). The brick foundation at is not completely intact; the south and east walls had been largely disturbed by modern footers. A small brick wall (Feature 24-3) separates this building into to two adjoining structures along the approximated parcel lines, each side apparently had its own hearth/chimney.

The photographs and maps from those excavations have not been processed and added to the CAD drawings.

The hearth on the western end was exposed during out initial exploratory trenching and was designated Feature 9; the foundation walls on the north and west side of the building were subsequently exposed during block excavations, and the building was designated Feature 24. The wall on the south side of the building has been removed by disturbances from 20th century foundation footers. The hearth (24-2) on the east side of the duplex has been slightly impacted by a concrete footer.

Four test units were placed within Feature 24 in order to evaluate the interior fills (see Figure 1): Test Unit 11 on the east side of Feature 9, Test Unit 12 along the north wall, Test Unit 21 on the west side of the second hearth, and Test Unit 22 on the south side of the building. Test unit excavations identified cultural fill levels overlying nearly sterile historic fill used to bring the land out of the tidal mudflats prior to building as shown in the profiles below:

Test Unit 11

Brick Rubble: 0-0.3 feet below surface- crushed brick and mortar

Fill 1: 0.3-0.6 feet below surface – [10YR 3/3] dark brown silt with brick and charcoal fragments

Fill 2: 0.6-1.5 feet below surface – [10YR 4/6] dark yellowish brown sand with charcoal flecking

Fill 3: 1.5-1.95 feet below surface – [10YR 3/6] dark yellowish brown sandy clay with charcoal flecking

Fill 4: 1.95 – 2.2 feet below surface – [10YR 3/4] dark yellowish brown sandy clay with charcoal flecking

Fill 5: 2.2-2.35 feet below surface – [10YR 3/2] very dark grayish brown with 20% [10YR4/6] dark yellowish brown sand.

Fill 6: 2.35-2.95 feet below surface – [10YR 4/3] brown clay

Fill 7: 2.95-3.10 feet below surface – [10YR 4/3] brown clay with charcoal flecking

BC horizon: 3.85- 4.0 feet below surface – [10YR 4/4] dark yellowish brown sand @ water table

The overlying soils (Brick Rubble and Fill 1) contained brick rubble and a high density of artifacts from the late 18th century to the early 19th century. These strata likely correspond with the eventual destruction of the building. The Fill 2 and Fill 3 contained a very low density of artifacts compared to the destruction strata. Fill 4 had a higher concentration of artifacts, particularly in the bottom portion of the strata sitting on top of Fill 5, which may have been the floor of the building or the base layer during construction. The fills below Fill 5 were largely sterile and probably contained artifacts that had washed up in the tidal flats prior to construction of the building at Feature 24. The remaining test units contained similar stratigraphy with the artifact bearing strata within 2.5 feet of ground surface. Test Unit 11 contained more brick rubble that the others due to the proximity of Feature 9, which is the larger of the two chimney pads/hearth. Test Unit 22 reveled an interior brick wall separating Feature 24 into two buildings along the lot lines (24-3). The Laboratory analysis of the artifact assemblage recovered from the test units is ongoing.

Field Investigations

Parcel 1B

The western half of Feature 24, containing the hearth at Feature 9, will be separated into quadrants and the northeast quadrant will be excavated through Fill 5, which is approximately 5 x 8.5 feet, or 42.5 square feet. An additional 3' x 3' Test Unit will be excavated adjacent to Test Unit 22 on the west side to investigate possible feature soils associated with the wall at Feature 24-3. Vertical excavation will be by natural/cultural soil levels and will be halted at the base of Fill 5, which is approximately 2.5 feet below current ground surface. Upon completion of the northeastern quadrant, the southeastern quadrant will be excavated without screening down to Fill 5; this soil level will be screened for artifacts.

All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. If any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as builders trench or trash pits, those features will be bisected and WSSI archaeologists will hand excavate one half of the feature and dry-screen the soil through ¼ inch mesh. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Parcel 1 C

The eastern half will be separated into quadrants and the northeast quadrant, partially encompassing Test Unit 21 and approximately 6 x 7.25, will be hand-excavated by WSSI archaeologists. Finally, an additional test unit will be excavated west of TU 21. Vertical excavation will be by natural/cultural soil levels. Excavation will be halted at the base of Fill 3, approximately 2.5 feet below current ground surface. This is a similar soil stratum to Fill 5 in Test Unit 11, as Test Unit 21 did not have the two destruction strata present. All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. All soils will be dry-screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth. If any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as a builder's trench or trash pits, those features will be bisected and WSSI archaeologists will hand excavate one half of the feature and dry-screen the soil through ¼ inch mesh. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the soils associated with Feature 24 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Feature 24 will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

All recovered faunal material will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for analysis; faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. The raw data obtained will include species present and estimated minimum number of individuals of each species present.

The one-gallon soil samples will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for flotation. Soils will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. As warranted, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Additional Documentary Research and Reporting

Additional documentary research will be needed to place the feature into its historic and architectural context. The results of the documentary research, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Feature 24 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report.

Feature 34: Brick Structures

Feature 34 complex represents the brick foundations labeled as Feature 34, the brick hearth at Feature 35, and the soil features at 36 and 41 (Figure 4). The features were located during the site leveling in between the trenches. The entire complex measures 34.5 x 31.5 feet across both parcels. The brick foundations (Feature 34) are significantly impacted by modern construction and are not complete.

Two test units were placed within the Feature 34 in order to evaluate the interior fills: Test Unit 16 in the northwest corner of the feature and Test Unit 23 in the southeast corner of the feature. Two additional test units, Test Unit 17 and Test Unit 24, were placed near the hearth at Feature 35 to evaluate the soils. Test unit excavations identified cultural fill levels overlying sterile subsoil of Lumley Point as shown in the profiles below:

Test Unit 16

Fill 1: 0.0-0.3 feet below surface – [10YR 3/3] dark brown sandy loam
Fill 2: 0.3-0.8 feet below surface – [10YR 4/4] dark yellowish brown sandy clay loam
Fill 3: 0.8-1.0 feet below surface – [10YR 4/6] dark yellowish brown clay loam
Fill 4: 1.0 – 1.7 feet below surface – [10YR 4/4] dark yellowish brown clay loam
Fill 5: 1.7-2.1 feet below surface – [10YR 3/6] dark yellowish brown clay loam
B/C Horizon: 2.1-2.2 feet below surface – [10YR 5/4] yellowish brown sand

Test Unit 17

Fill 1: 0.0-0.2 feet below surface – [7.5YR 4/6] strong brown clay with brick and mortar fragments

Fill 2: 0.2-0.7 feet below surface – [10YR 3/2] very dark grayish brown sand with mortar and brick

Fill 3: 0.7-1.00 feet below surface – [10YR 5/8] yellowish brown clay

Fill 4: 1.00 – 1.4 feet below surface – [10YR 5/6] yellowish brown sand with brick fragments

Fill 5: 1.4-2.35 feet below surface – [7.5YR 5/4] brown clay

Fill 6: 2.35-2.85 feet below surface – [10YR 4/2] dark grayish brown sand

The overlying soils in TU 16 and TU 23 (Fill 1 and Fill 2) contained low density brick rubble and a high density of artifacts from the late 18th century to the early 19th century. These strata likely correspond with the eventual destruction and possibly the occupation of the building. Fill 4 in Test Unit 16 contained a higher density of brick and excavators thought it may be part of a floor, though no bricks were recorded as in situ. At Fill 5, approximately 2.1 feet below ground surface, the artifact density drops to near sterile. The same stratigraphy and artifact density was recorded in Test Unit 23, though the brick concentration was not present. The fills below Fill 5 were largely sterile and probably contained artifacts that had washed up in the tidal flats prior to construction of the building at Feature 34. The overlying soils in TU 17 and TU 24 showed artifact concentrations in the first 3 fill levels, particularly in Fill 1 and Fill 2. Artifact density approaches near sterile concentrations within Fill 5, approximately 2.3 feet below ground surface. No intact surfaces were recorded during the excavation of either test unit. All four units contained very little mixing with mid-19th century ceramic types, such as whiteware or ironstone. The overall date range appears consistent with late 18th century to 1830 occupation. The Laboratory analysis of the artifact assemblage recovered from the test unit is ongoing.

Proposed Methodology

Field Investigations

Feature 34, within Parcel 1C, will be separated into quadrants and the southwest quadrant, bordered by TU 16 and TU 23 and approximately 45 square feet, will be hand-excavated by WSSI archaeologists. Vertical excavation will be by natural/cultural soil levels. Excavation will be halted at the base of Fill 5, which is approximately 2.1 feet below current ground surface. All soils will be dry-screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth. All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. If any additional soil features are identified within the feature area, such as builders trench or trash pits, those features will be bisected and one half excavated and dry-screened through ¼ inch mesh. A one-gallon sample will be retained from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Parcel 1B

A total of ten (10) additional 3 x 3 test units will be excavated within Parcel 1B; two test units (TU 17 and TU 24) were completed during the evaluation. These units will be placed near Feature 35 and in known artifact concentrations along the eastern parcel border. Vertical excavation will be by natural/cultural soil levels. Excavation will be halted and the base of Fill 5, which is approximately 2.3 feet below ground surface. All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. All soils will be dry-screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth. If any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as builders trench or trash pits, those features will be bisected and one half excavated and dry-screened. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Feature 36 and Feature 41

Feature 36 is a circular soil feature approximately 3.5 x 3.5 feet adjacent to Feature 35. The feature will be bisected along an east-west axis. WSSI archeologists will hand excavate the southern half of the feature by stratigraphic levels. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. After all photos and other documentation are complete, a one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half.

Feature 41 is a circular soil feature approximately 1.7 x 2.0 feet adjacent to Feature 35. The feature will be bisected along an east-west axis. WSSI archeologists will hand excavate the southern half of the feature by stratigraphic levels. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. After all photos and documentation are complete, a one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will likewise be weighed and discarded in the field.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the soils associated with the Feature 34 complex will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

The Feature 34 complex will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

All recovered faunal material will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for analysis; faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. The raw data obtained will include species present and estimated minimum number of individuals of each species present.

The one-gallon soil samples will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for flotation. Soils will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. As warranted, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Additional Documentary Research and Reporting

Additional documentary research will be needed to place the feature into its historic and architectural context. The results of the documentary research, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Feature 34 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report.

Feature 44: The Hooe Warehouse

The stone foundation of the Hooe Warehouse measures approximately 70 feet north-south by about 13 feet east-west on its exterior (see Figure 1 and Figure 5). The foundations are comprised of schist and mortar and divided by an east to west interior wall that separates the feature into two bays. The exterior wall is approximately 4.0 feet deep from the top of the remaining foundation with a large shelf on the interior and exterior of the building. The interior wall also has a small shelf. The exterior wall is set on a wooden board, likely placed to facilitate construction in the tidal flat that existed on the edge of Point Lumley (Figure 6). Three 3-foot square test units were excavated within the feature during evaluation (see Figure 1).

Test Unit 14

Fill 1: 0-0.15 feet below surface – [10YR 4/3] brown sandy loam
Fill 2: 0.15-0.4 below surface – [10YR 2/2] very dark brown silt loam
Fill 3: 0.4-1.1 feet below surface – [10YR 4/6] light yellowish brown loamy sand
Fill 4: 1.1-1.6 feet below surface – [10YR 5/6] sand mottled with oyster shell
Fill 5: 1.6-1.7 feet below surface – [7.5YR 5/6] strong brown coarse sand
Fill 6: 1.7-2.2 feet below surface – [10YR 5/4] yellowish brown clay with oyster shell.
Fill 7: 2.2-3.0 feet below surface – [7.5YR 4/6] strong brown loamy clay.
Fill 8: 2.2-3.0 feet below surface – [2.5Y 4/2] dark grayish brown loamy clay.

Test Unit 15

Fill 1: 0-0.4 feet below surface – [10YR 2/1] compact sand with asphalt and gravel
Fill 2: 0.4-1.3 below surface – [10YR 5/4] yellowish brown compact silty clay loam
Fill 3: 1.3-1.8 feet below surface – [10YR 4/4] fine sandy clay loam with 10% mortar
Fill 4: 1.8-2.1 feet below surface – [10YR 4/3] brown silty clay loam
Fill 5: 2.1-3.0 feet below surface – [10YR 4/2] dark grayish brown with iron oxide stain.
Fill 6: 3.0-3.9 feet below surface – [10YR 3/2] very dark grayish brown sandy loam with wood bits
Fill 7: 3.7-4.0 feet below surface – [10YR 3/2] very dark grayish brown sandy loam

The overlying soil (Fill 1) in both units appear to be disturbed historic fills. Fill 2 through Fill 5 may represent infilling during destruction or post-construction for installation of the floor. The wood floor, located only in the northern half of Feature 44 rests on Fill 2  Fill 7 and 8 in TU 14 and Fill 6 and 7 in TU 15 likely represent the tidal flats along Point Lumley prior to construction of the Hooe Warehouse.

Three features were recorded during the evaluation of the Hooe Foundation. A small wood drain just underneath the floor in the northern half (Feature 44-1) and underneath Fill 1 (Feature 44-2) in the southern half was recorded and excavated (Figure 7). A one-gallon soil sample was retained from Feature 44-2 when it was excavated in TU 14. A partially intact wood floor was partially exposed in the northern half of the Hooe Warehouse (Figure 8). The floor consisted of wooden boards with very poor preservation, which lay overtop the drain in the northern half and run east to west (Feature 44-1). The floor has been significantly damaged by a modern utility in some portions of the feature. The wooden floor was not present in the southern half of Feature 44. Three boards were located in Test Unit 14 at the base of Fill 6 and designated as Feature 44-5 (Figure 9). It was presumed that these boards may be a floor, or more likely boards pressed into the wet fills during construction of the foundation to act as a more stable surface.

Field Investigations

The floor present in the northern half of Feature 44, designated Feature 44-3, will be fully exposed, the extents mapped, and photographed. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from underneath the floor boards in each 25% section. After the floorboards are documented, the entire drain feature (Feature 44-1 and 44-2) will be exposed to the top of the wood line in both sections of the Hooe Foundation, mapped, and photographed. A maximum of four (4) one-foot cross sections of the drainage feature will be excavated and screened for artifacts. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from this feature.

Finally, an 9 x 10 foot (90 square feet) section of the south portion of the Hooe foundation, which will encompass Test Unit 14, will be excavated by hand down to the level were the wood boards were present in order to expose are larger portion of them to determine the function. No soils will be screened. The boards will be photographed in place, mapped, and documented. One one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the soil immediately below the boards. If any additional soil features are identified within the foundation, such as builder's trench or trash pits, those features will be bisected and one half excavated and dry-screened through ¼ inch mesh. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half. All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. All soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length x width x height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the test units and from the soils associated with Feature 44 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Feature 44 will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

All recovered faunal material will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for analysis; faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. Additional documentary research will be needed to place the feature into its historic and architectural context. The results of the documentary research, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Feature 44 will be integrated into the Archeological Evaluation Report.

Bulkhead/Crib Post Feature Complex

Many post features make up this area including the following features: 6, 7, 8, 25, 27, 53, 61-68, and 71 (Figure 10). Several post features that are part of the Bulkhead/Crib feature have already been excavated within the Trench and Block excavation phases, but the aforementioned remaining posts contain the best preserved formations of the feature including some that are connected with horizontal wood planking that has survived. This area measures approximately 44 by 20 feet. The excavated posts range from 1 to 3 feet in depth below ground surface into a sandy subsoil in most places. The artifacts have been mixed, likely due to the infilling process that surrounds the post with fill from other locations to bring the elevation up out of the floodplain.

Proposed Methodology

Field Investigations

The area comprising of the following feature numbers: and measuring approximately 44 by 20 feet, will be cleaned extensively and all features mapped, survey located, and photographed in place. Since many of the posts have already been excavated, which included bisection, documentation, and soil samples, no more excavation is necessary to complete the mitigation of this complex of features. Additional posts that are uncovered and attributed to this infilling process during the leveling phase within the Townhouse Area will be mapped, survey located, and photographed.

Figure 10
Location of Bulkhead Post/Cribbing Feature Complex

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the test units and from the soils associated with Bulkhead/Crip post features will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

The Bulkhead/Crib post features will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. As warranted, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanicals analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants. Samples of the posts previously excavated were already retained, covered with black plastic, and left on site for Alexandria Archaeology, if they wish to retain them.

Additional Documentary Research and Reporting

Additional documentary research will be needed to place the feature into its historic and architectural context. The results of the documentary research, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of the post/cribbing feature will be integrated into the Archeological Evaluation Report.

RESOURCE MANAGEMENT PLAN
FOR FEATURE 32 & 48 (POSSIBLE BARREL PRIVIES) and FEATURE 46 (PRIVY)
ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will involve the construction of several above grade residential buildings within the northwest quadrant of the site. Prior to the commencement of archeological work, engineered fill was temporarily placed across the property in order to reduce flood hazards associated with the site and enable compliance with floodplain regulations. During the removal of these overlying (non-historic) fill soils from the northwestern portion of the site, several stone foundations and brick foundations were exposed. Additional building foundations, brick wells and numerous privy features were identified during the subsequent exploratory trenching and leveling within this area. The location of all features and exploratory trenches have been survey located. This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for two possible barrel privies: Feature 32 and Feature 48, and Feature 46, which appears to be a box privy (Figure 1).

Decisions regarding the significance of the features were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. All three features retain integrity with potential research value and therefore can address one of the research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice):

> can we attribute any historic remains (features or artifacts) to the various industries on the block- blacksmiths, carpenters, coopers, grocers, etc? To the domestic component of the block?

Features 32, 46 and 48 have the potential to help us understand the domestic lifeways and various industries along the waterfront during the late 18th and 19th centuries and are therefore considered significant; archeological data recovery is required by the City.

Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. The ultimate goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the features prior to their destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions.

Fieldwork, and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. Thunderbird Archeology will arrange the donation of the artifacts from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Robinson Landing - Resource Management Plan

WSSI #22335.04 - May 2017

Features 32 and 48 both measures approximately 2.5 feet in diameter and are located in the floor of Trench 9B and 9A respectively (see Figure 1). Only the lower portion of the barrels remain, firmly secured within the clay subsoil. Feature 46 was exposed during site leveling and measures roughly 4 by 6 feet; the depth of the feature is unknown, but is estimated to be 5 feet deep based on the dimensions of the two adjacent privies (Feature 12 and Feature 13).

Proposed Methodology - Features 32 & 48

Field Investigations

Each feature will be documented with photographs, notes, and will be survey located. The feature will be bisected and a representative profile will be drawn. One-half of each feature will be excavated in either arbitrary or stratigraphic levels. The soils will be dry-screened unless contexts with superior integrity or nightsoil deposits are encountered; these will be water-screened on-site through 1/16" window mesh cloth.

Laboratory

Archeological artifacts will be cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards. No more than 250 artifacts are anticipated. Soils samples from will be retained for flotation. The samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions hand-examined for the presence/absence of diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Four samples from each feature (8 in total) are expected. As warranted, a portion of each flotation sample from each level of privy soil from each feature will be retained for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanicals analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants. All faunal remains will be submitted to a qualified sub consultant for analysis. Faunal analysis is useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. The raw data obtained will include species present and estimated minimum number of individuals of each species present. No more than 200 bone or bone fragments are anticipated.

Proposed Methodology - Feature 46

Field Investigations

Feature 46 will be documented with photographs, notes, and will be survey located. The feature will be bisected and a representative profile will be drawn. The feature will be excavated in either arbitrary or stratigraphic levels. The soils will be dry-screened unless contexts with superior integrity or nightsoil deposits are encountered; these will be water-screened on-site through 1/16" window mesh cloth. The remaining half of the feature will not be excavated unless the research potential and significance is considered exceptional.

Laboratory

Archeological artifacts will be cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards. No more than 3000 artifacts are anticipated. Soils samples from will be retained from each level for flotation and macro-botanicals analyses; eight samples are expected. The samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions hand-examined for the presence/absence of diagnostic artifacts and small finds. As warranted, a portion of each flotation sample from each level of nightsoil will be retained for pollen, parasite, and phytolith analyses by qualified sub-consultants. All faunal remains will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for analysis. Faunal analysis is useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. The raw data obtained will include species present and estimated minimum number of individuals of each species present. No more than 500 bone or bone fragments are anticipated.

Additional Research and Reporting

In order to better understand the individuals that occupied and/or used this portion of the city waterfront and their place within the contexts of time and space, archeological data from these features will be compared to data from similar features within the site, the city of Alexandria and the larger region. An evaluation of the socio-economic status of the households on this portion of the city block will also be useful in further understanding life along the Alexandria waterfront at the time of occupations and use of these features. Finally, subsumed within the previous areas of research interest is the temporal framework within which the overall site evolved. Evidence for alterations in intra-site structure and function, as well as changes in socio-economic status and the role of the site in the matrix of surrounding settlements and in history, will be examined and interpreted with respect to site chronology. Additional archival and historic research will be needed to place feature into its historic context, to supplement the archeological data, and to make these comparisons and evaluations.

The results of the privy excavations, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses, and additional archival research will be integrated into one combined report describing the results of the Archeological Evaluation and the results of all Data Recovery Mitigation conducted at the site.

DRAFT

FOR FEATURE 81 Complex
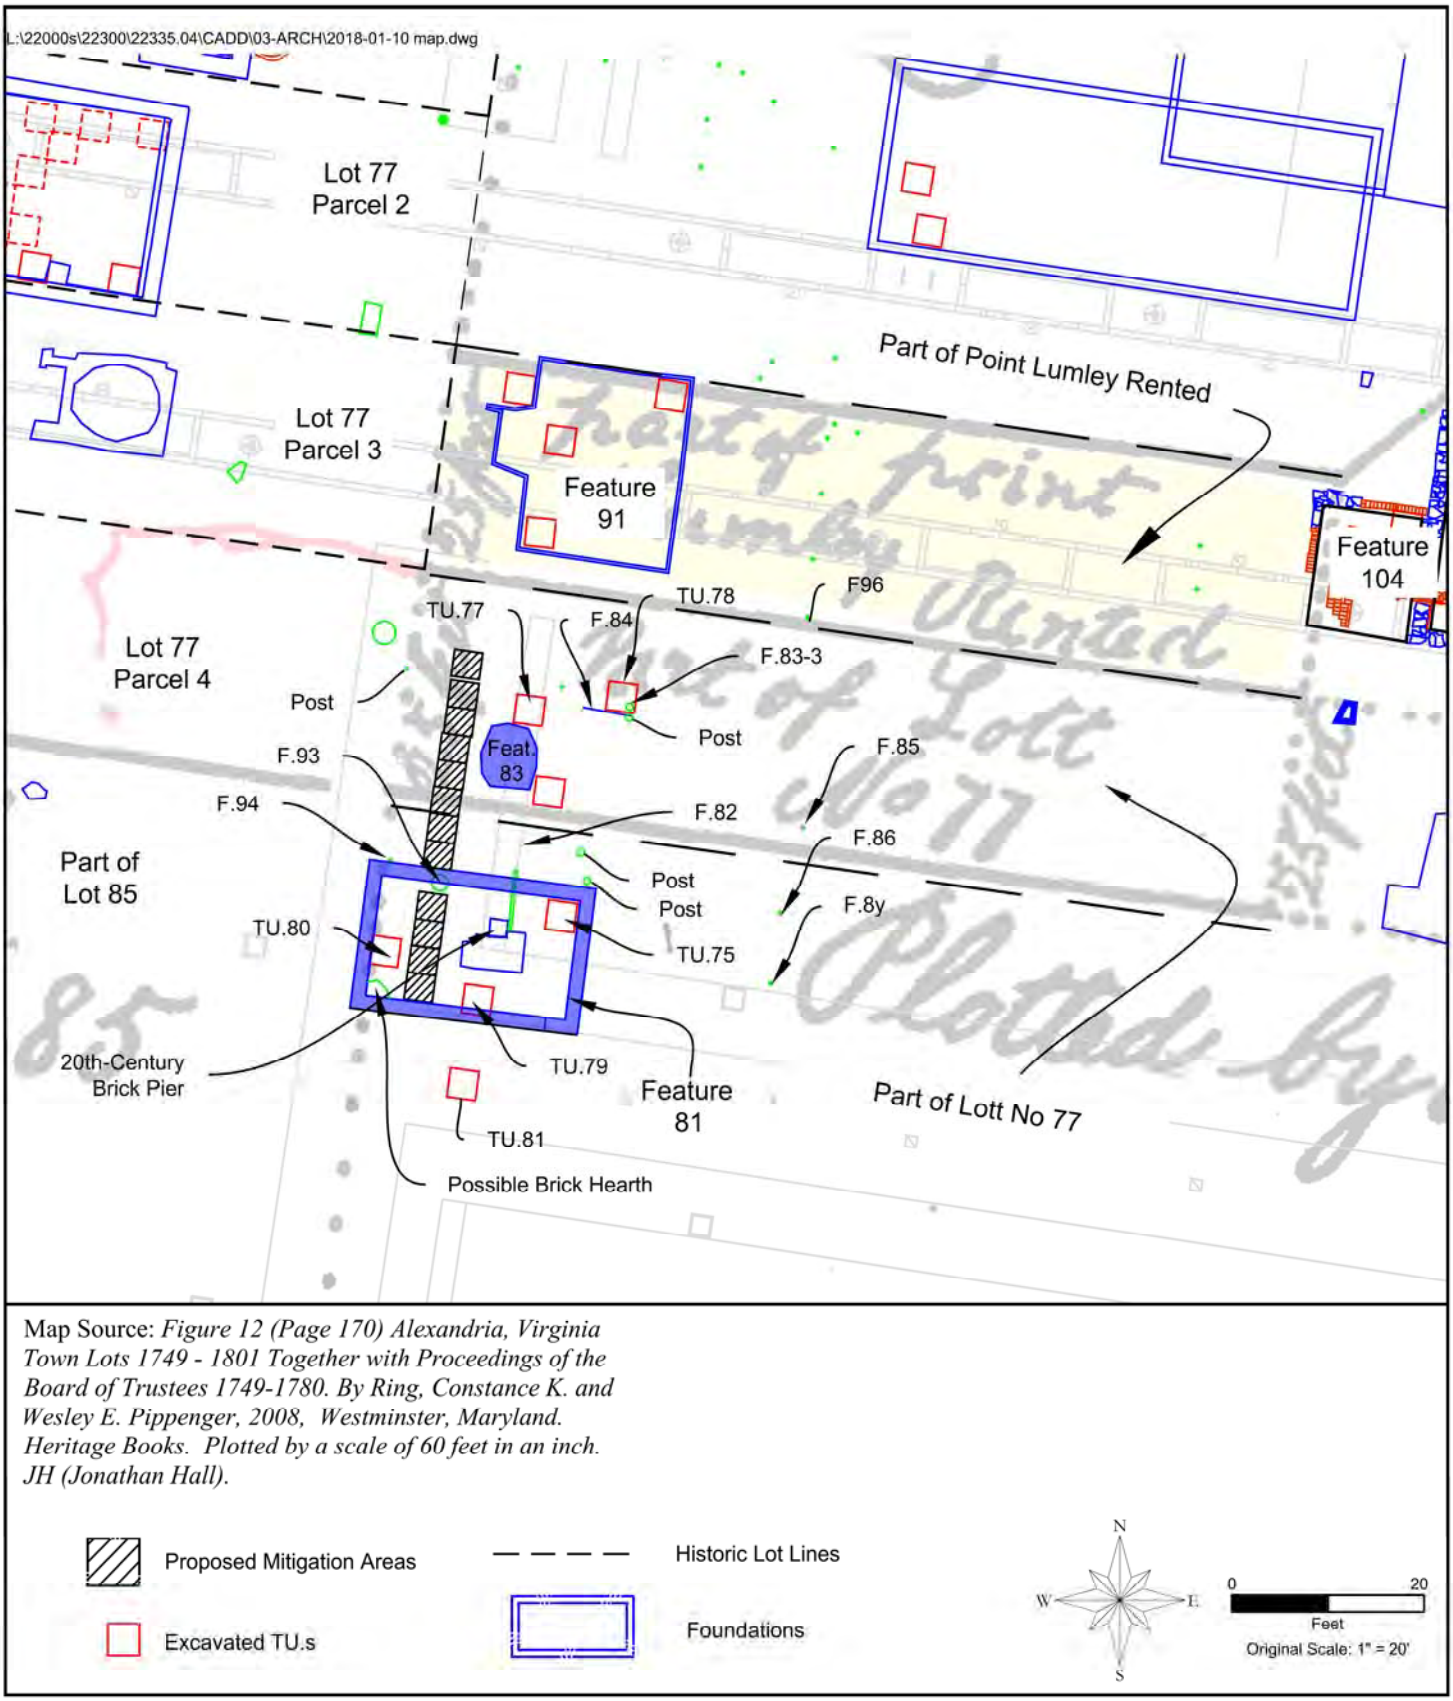
ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings with associated roads and alleys; underground parking is planned for over half of the site. Exploratory trenching and subsequent site leveling within this area revealed numerous archeological features, including stone foundations, wells and privies. This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for the complex of features around Feature 81, a stone foundation of a possible domicile and/or commercial building, which includes Features 82-84 and Feature 93-94 (Figure 1).



Decisions regarding the significance of this feature were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. The feature retains integrity and therefore can address research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice):

> can we attribute any historic remains (features or artifacts) to the various industries on the block- blacksmiths, carpenters, coopers, grocers, etc? To the domestic component of the block?

Because the Feature 81 complex has the potential to help us understand the domestic lifeways and various industries along the waterfront during the late 18th and 19th centuries, it is considered significant and archeological data recovery is required by the City.

The ultimate goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the features prior to their destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

Fieldwork and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. The archeological consultant will arrange the donation of the artifacts from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Documentary Research

According to our documentary research, the portion of the property containing the stone foundation identified as Feature 81 was originally part of Lot 85 extension; while the structural remains designated Feature 82, 83 and 84 were located on Part of Lot 77's extension. Additional research will need to be conducted into the land use and occupants of this two structures.

Feature 81 Complex

Feature 81 represents a stone foundation that measures approximately 15 by 24 feet and is situated at about approximately 6.0 feet above mean sea level in elevation (see Figure 1). Feature 83 is located roughly 10 feet north of Feature 81; this stone hearth foundation represents a second, and possibly immediately adjacent, structure. Several post holes were identified in the vicinity of the hearth foundation and based on their size and location were interpreted at this time to be corner posts of the building. The estimated size of the second building is 20 by 20 feet. Collapsed wood siding (Feature 82) was exposed between the two structure locations, but its association with Feature 81 or Feature 83 is unclear. One probable barrel privy was also located within the stone foundation (Feature 93).

Three test units (TUs) were placed within the Feature 81 foundation walls to evaluate the extent to which the interior fills were intact and if an occupation level was present. Three additional test units were excavated around Feature 83. Test unit excavation showed little integrity within the main foundation; however, a brick floor was found in TU75. A brick hearth or oven may have been unearthed in the southwestern corner of the structure. Soils south and east of Feature 83 did show integrity, but were shallow, overlying subsoil.

Proposed Construction Impacts

Planned construction in the vicinity of this feature complex includes one residential building along Annie Moore Place (road) and several below grade utilities (Figure 2). The historic foundation designated Feature 81 was exposed at approximately 6 feet in elevation, while the grade around Feature 83 ranges from 7.8 feet in the west to 5 feet on the eastern side of the feature. Only two of the proposed utility lines beneath Annie Moore Place will reach sufficient depth in elevation to potentially impact the feature complex. All other utility elevations will be located well above the feature complex.

The invert for the proposed storm sewer ranges between 8.66 – 7.68 feet in elevation from north to south across the feature complex; it will be situated just above western foundation wall of Feature 81 and the far western edge of Feature 83 (see Figure 2). Therefore, the utility will have minimal to no impact on the integrity of the feature complex. However, the invert for the proposed electric utility, which runs just west of the Feature 83 foundation, is 5.36 feet in elevation, and will significantly impact the feature in this location (see Figure 2).

Location of Feature 81 complex (F.81-84; F.93-94) with utility impacts

Proposed Methodology

Field Investigations

Mitigation of the feature will be limited to the electric utility line impacts, as determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology in a meeting on January 10, 2018. The proposed utility corridor is three-feet in width and approximately 40 feet in length across the feature complex (see Figure 2). All of the feature soil within the utility corridor to the north of the Feature 81 foundation (approximately 21 by 3 feet, or eight test units) will be excavated to the historic infilling or subsoil. Likewise, all of the feature soil within the utility corridor inside of the Feature 81 foundation (approximately 12.5 by 3 feet, or four test units) will be excavated down to the historic infilling or subsoil. Additionally, the entire foundation of Feature 81 will be cleaned and photographed to document conditions prior to backfilling the site during construction; however, photogrammetry will not be conducted.

One probable barrel privy was located within the stone foundation (Feature 93). The privy will be bisected and screened, and soil samples will be retained from the interior levels. If the bisection reveals integrity, the remaining half will be excavated and screened. All additional features encountered within the impact area will be exposed, documented, and excavated.

All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. All soils associated with the occupation of the feature will be dry-screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth. If any additional soil features identified within the feature, such as a builder's trench or trash pits, those features will be bisected and the archeological consultant will hand excavate one half of the feature and dry-screen the soil through 1/4-inch mesh. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the soils associated with the Feature 81 complex will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary) and cataloged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

The Feature 81 complex will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic

Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

Specialized analyses (faunal, macro-botanical, soil analyses) and artifact conservation will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. Faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. As warranted, the soil samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Additionally, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained, if deemed necessary, for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Reporting

The results of the documentary research completed to date, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of the Feature 81/83 complex will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report.

Post Archeological Excavation and Archeological Construction Monitoring

As archeological mitigation will be limited to the electric utility line impacts, the majority of the feature complex will be preserved beneath the proposed townhome construction. Therefore, once archeological documentation and mitigation has been completed and prior to the construction infilling of the site, the entire feature area will be covered in filter fabric, gravel and utility tape to clear demarcate the limits of the feature. Additionally, construction plans will reference the Archeological Clearance Map, which notes the location of all archeological features and the depths in elevation that have been cleared of archeological features. Any construction impacts below these "cleared" depths (i.e. into unexcavated portion of the Feature 81 complex) will require archeological monitoring.

FOR FEATURE 91
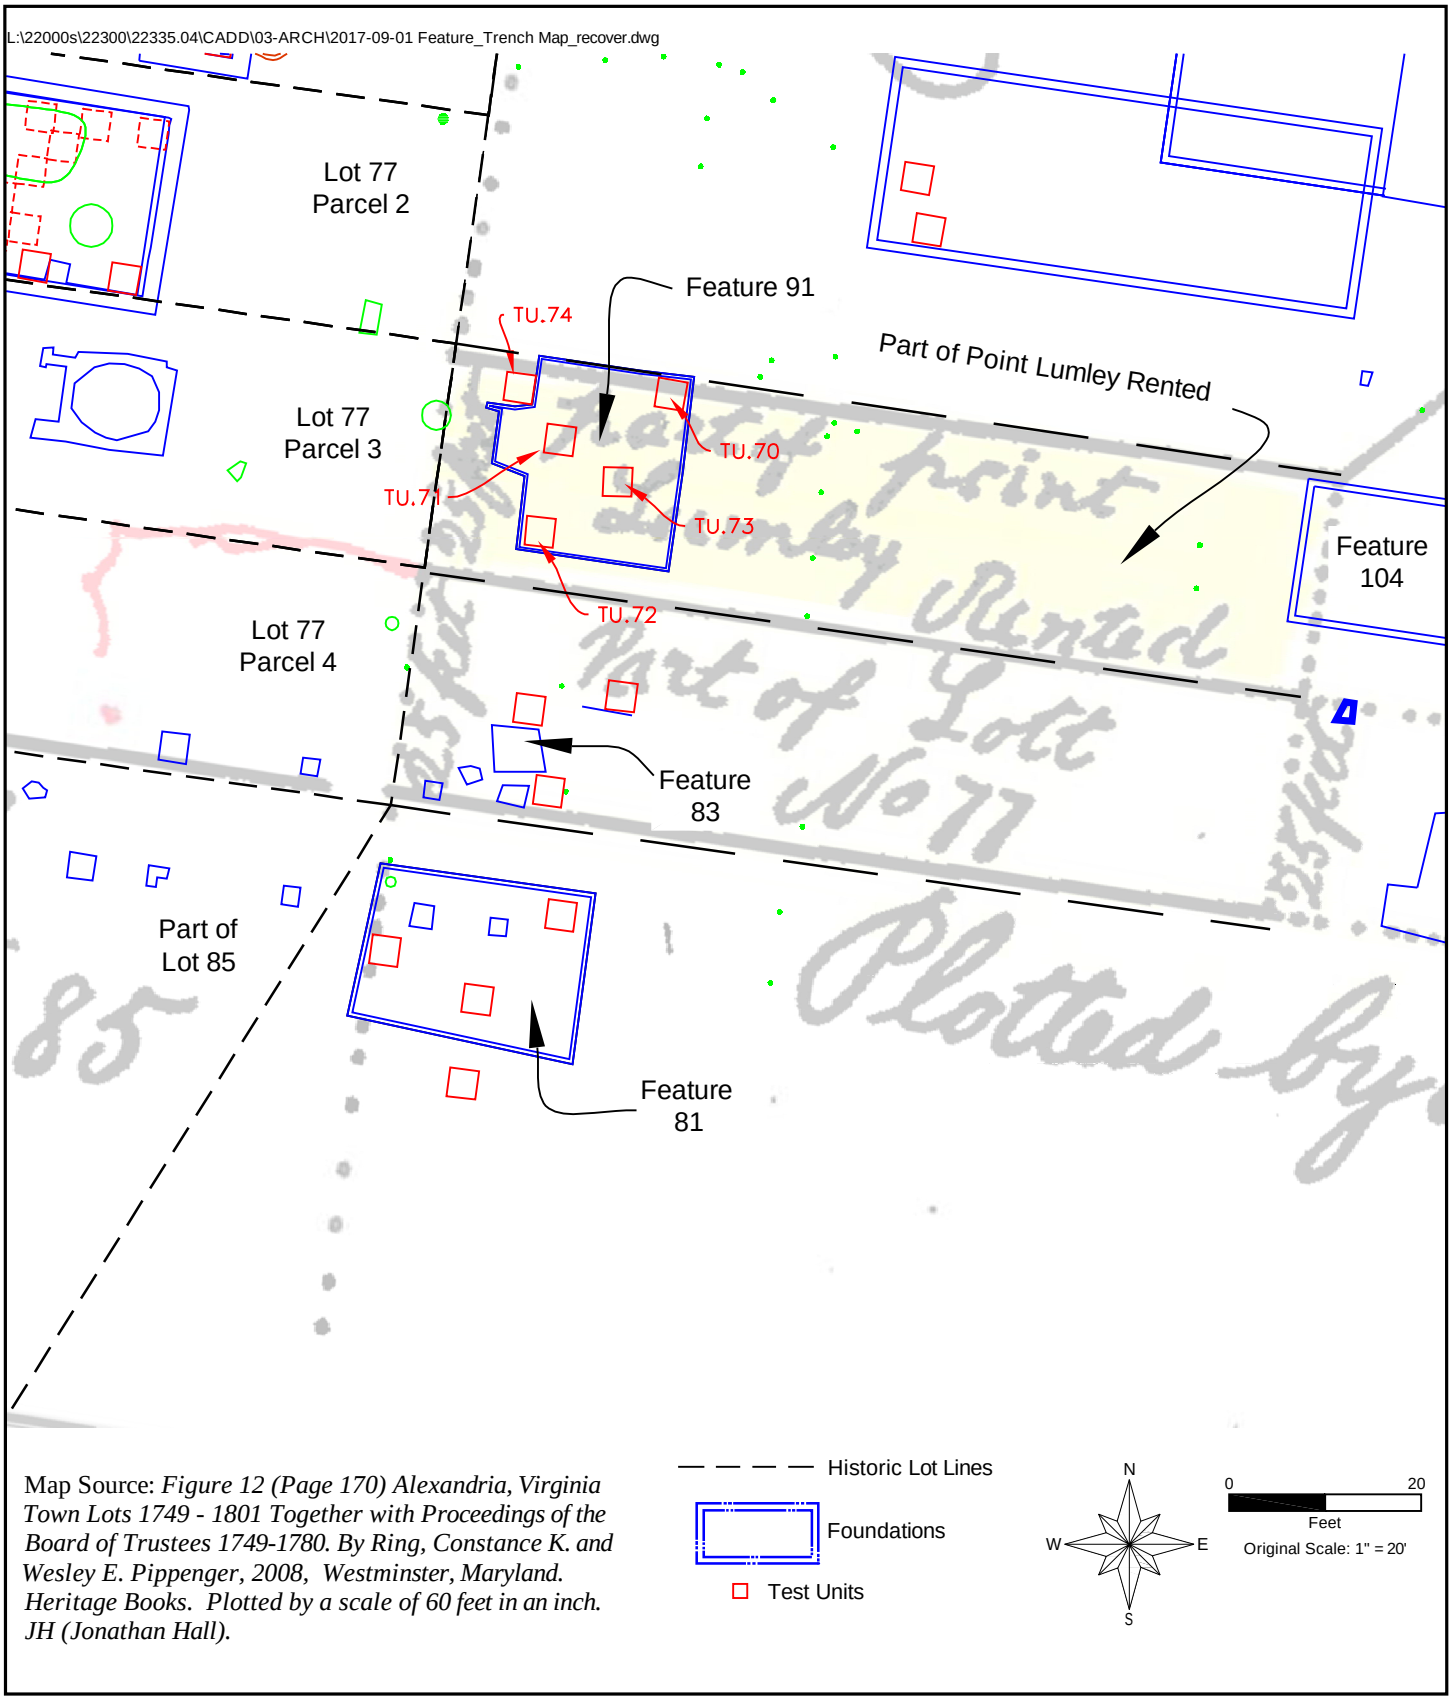
ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings with associated roads and alleys; underground parking is planned for over half of the site. Exploratory trenching and subsequent site leveling within this area revealed numerous archeological features, including stone foundations, wells and privies. This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 91, a brick foundation of a possible domicile and/or commercial building (Figure 1).



Decisions regarding the significance of this feature were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. All four features retain integrity and therefore can address research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice):

> can we attribute any historic remains (features or artifacts) to the various industries on the block- blacksmiths, carpenters, coopers, grocers, etc? To the domestic component of the block?

Because Feature 91 has the potential to help us understand the domestic lifeways and various industries along the waterfront during the late 18$^{th}$ and 19$^{th}$ centuries, they are considered significant and archeological data recovery is required by the City.

The ultimate goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the features prior to their destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

Fieldwork and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. Thunderbird Archeology will arrange the donation of the artifacts from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Documentary Research

According to our documentary research, the portion of the property containing Feature 91 was originally part of Point Lumley, which had been reserved by the trustees of Alexandria as "public land" because of its natural deep water access to the Potomac River. The foundation lies directly within what has been designated Parcel 3: Western Extension of Point Lumley. By 1774, this 25-foot wide strip of land had been created by Thomas Fleming through "banking-out" or wharf construction. The extension was originally leased to Thomas Fleming on March 29, 1774 for a term of 63 years, or until 1837. Upon Fleming's death, his heirs collectively inherited the lease on the parcel, but in 1797, by action of the special commissioner in the partition of Fleming's estate, the lease on the parcel was later entirely transferred to Thomas Patten, a local merchant (Alexandria Deed Book H: 49; I: 466).

Elizabeth Mary Anne Barnes Mason (who would later marry Alexander Seymour Hooe in 1802) subleased Parcel 3 from Thomas Patten on May 25, 1797 (Alexandria Deed Book K:194). On October 20, Patten transferred the right to receive the rents on the parcel from Elizabeth Mason to Elisha Janney and George Irish, of the firm Janney & Irish, (Alexandria Deed Book I:415). It is likely that the lease on the parcel did not remain in Thomas Patten's hands or in the control of Janney and Irish until the expiration of the Fleming lease in 1837, but the identity of subsequent leaseholders is unknown.

Documentary evidence indicates a building on this small parcel; the 1810 tax records list Elisha Janney's Assignees as leasing or owning a house and lot, which apparently served as a boarding house. Five individuals, all laborers or seamen, are listed as occupants of Janney's building, all but one noted as African American. Further research is need to identify if this is Janney's building.

Feature 91: Brick Foundation

Feature 91 represents the brick foundation of a building that measures approximately 20 feet north-south by approximately 16 feet east-west on its exterior and is situated at about approximately 7.5 feet above mean sea level in elevation (Figures 2-3). The brick foundation is nearly complete with disruption of the east wall just south of the center of the wall. The courses of brick start at the lowest elevation in this area, but are still extant. A pentagonal brick pad sits near the center of the west wall of the foundation.
Four test units (TUs) were placed within the foundation walls to evaluate the extent to which the interior fills were intact and if an occupation level was present. An additional test unit was placed outside the structure where the north side of the brick pad and the exterior of the west wall meet to determine the depth of subsoil in relation to the elevation of the extant foundation. Test unit excavation showed the multiple post destruction fill levels overlying, a suspected destruction layer for the feature. Below the destruction layer is what appears to be one or more soil strata associated with occupation of the structure. This is also the depth at which interior soil features were observed during excavation.

The following are descriptions of the stratigraphy observed in each test unit is presented below. The uppermost fills (approximately 1 foot to 1.5 feet of soil) within this feature appear to be mixed fills postdating the occupation of the structure and do not relate to the occupation or use of Feature 91 (TU70, Fill 2; TU71, Fills 1,2 & 3; TU73, Fill 3). Where not otherwise disturbed, these strata present as one or more shallow layers of brick and mortar rubble mixed with sandy soils overlying a relatively deep (approximately 1.5 feet thick) layer of dense yellowish-brown clay, which contained few artifacts.

Test Unit 70

Fill 1: 0 - 0.2 feet below surface – [10YR 2/2] very dark brown sandy loam with [10YR 7/6] yellow sand lens
Fill 2: 0.2 – 1.45 feet below surface – [10YR 4/6] dark yellowish brown clay
Fill 3: 1.45 – 1.7 feet below surface – [10YR 5/2] grayish brown sand
Fill 4: 1.7 – 1.75 feet below surface – [10YR 4/2] dark grayish brown loam
Fill 5: 1.75 - 2.5 feet below surface – [10YR 4/6] dark yellowish brown sand

Test Unit 72

Fill 1: 0 - 0.05 feet below surface – [10YR 5/3] brown sand
Fill 2: 0.05 – 0.35 feet below surface – [10YR 2/2] very dark brown silty loam
Fill 3: 0.35 - 0.75 feet below surface – [10YR 5/3] brown clay sandy loam

Fill 4: 0.75 – 1.3 feet below surface – [10YR 5/6] yellowish brown clay
Fill 5: 0.9 – 1.55 feet below surface – [10YR 4/4] dark yellowish brown sandy loam mottled with [10YR 5/4] yellowish brown sandy loam with 20% brick rubble (only in NW corner of Unit)
Fill 6: 1.3 – 1.9 feet below surface – [10YR 4/6] dark yellowish brown sand
Fill 7: 1.9 – 3.1 feet below surface – [10YR 4/3] brown sand mottled with [10YR 6/1] gray clay

Test Unit 73
Fill 1: 0 - 0.1 feet below surface – [10YR 3/3] dark brown loam
Fill 2: 0.1 – 0.15 feet below surface – [10YR 5/4] yellowish brown loam
Fill 3: 0.15 - 1.7 feet below surface – [10YR 3/6] dark yellowish brown clay
Fill 4: 1.7 – 1.9 feet below surface – [10YR 4/4] dark yellowish brown sand
Fill 5: 1.9 - 2 feet below surface – [10YR 4/3] brown sand, mottled with [10YR 3/6] dark yellowish brown sand
Fill 6: 2 - 2.25 feet below surface – [10YR 3/1] very dark gray sandy loam

Test Unit 74
Fill 1: 0 – 0.75 feet below surface – [10YR 4/6] dark yellowish brown silty clay (very compact)
Bt1: 0.75 – 1.35 feet below surface – [7.5YR 5/8] strong brown clay mixed with 2% [10YR7/1] light gray clay
Bt2: 1.35 – 2 feet below surface – [10YR7/1] light gray clay

TUs 70, 71 and 73 all exhibited a sandy layer (TU70, Fill 3; TU71, Fill 4; TU73, Fill 4) underlying the post occupational fills described above, which appears to be a destruction layer with increased brick rubble inclusions. In TU 70 and 71 this layer was directly overlying features 91-2 and 91-3 respectively both of which appear to be drainage features consisting of wood planks (Figures 3 and 4). A Spanish coin, decorated pipe, and scissors were all found in this apparent destruction layer in TU 70. More personal items were found in the underlying layers in the same unit.

In TU 73 the destruction layer was overlying a dark loamy layer containing wood fragments, straight pins and ball clay pipe bowl fragments exhibiting Freemason iconography (Figure 5). This same layer was not encountered in TU 72 or 71. However, similar stratigraphy and artifacts (straight pins) have been observed in other features, still undergoing evaluation, to the south.

Excavation of TU 71 was abandoned due to flooding issues which made the brick foundation unstable, and therefore was deemed unsafe to continue excavation. The test unit was lined with plastic and back filled to prevent further collapse of the brick pad and unit walls. The stratigraphy above Feature 91-3 in this unit is mixed fills similar to those observed in other completed units.

TU 72 showed evidence of disturbance from bioturbation and post occupational intrusions (Features 91-4 and 91-5). There did not appear to be any evidence of either the destruction layer or the underlying occupational layers present in the other units excavated in the interior of Feature 91.

TU 74 was excavated outside the brick foundation and revealed only a shallow fill layer overlying well developed subsoil. The western half of Feature 91 appears to have been excavated into the marine clay, while the eastern half rests on (or is slightly intrusive to) the sandy tidal flat. The transition between the marine clay subsoil and the tidal flat sands may be observable at the bottom of excavation for this feature.

Proposed Methodology

Field Investigations

Mitigation of the feature will involve the archeological excavation of no more than 50% of the interior of the foundation. The northwest quadrant will be excavated first followed by a portion of the southwest quadrant. Post occupational fills like those encountered in the previously excavated units and overlying the apparent destruction layer, as identified and described above, will be removed without screening for artifacts. After the completion of hand excavation of the two quadrants, the bulk of the remainder of the feature will be excavated mechanically, as is possible, while keeping the foundation intact. The remainder of the soil not safely removable mechanically will be excavated by hand, and post-excavation photogrammetry photos will be taken.

All features encountered during the excavation of the initial two quadrants, or encountered during mechanical excavation, will be fully exposed, documented, and excavated as described below before being removed.

All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. All soils associated with the occupation of the feature will be dry-screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth. If any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as a builder's trench or trash pits, those features will be bisected and WSSI archeologists will hand excavate one half of the feature and dry-screen the soil through 1/4-inch mesh. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the soils associated with Feature 91 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Feature 91 will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

All recovered faunal material will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for analysis; faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. The raw data obtained will include species present and estimated minimum number of individuals of each species present.

The one-gallon soil samples will be submitted to a qualified sub-consultant for flotation. Soils will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. As warranted, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Additional Documentary Research and Reporting

Additional documentary research will be needed to place the feature into its historic and architectural context. The results of the documentary research, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Feature 91 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report.

Documentary Research

According to our documentary research, the land containing Feature 104 is located on Parcel 4 of Historic Point Lumley (the Eastern Extension). Originally located within the Potomac River, Thomas Fleming had "banked out" and created this narrow strip of land by 1780. In 1794 the Town leased this lot to Robert Townsend Hooe for a term of 44 years – until 1838. Hooe also purchased the adjacent parcel to the south in that same year, and by 1796 a stable was constructed on Parcel 4 and a warehouse on the adjacent Lot 77 parcel to the south (MAS Vol. 1: 37). Upon Hooe's death in 1809, his will nominally left the remainder of the lease to Richard Harrison (Alexandria Will Book C: 185), but also directed the executor to sell what assets were necessary to settle Hooe's debts; the lease on Parcel 4 was apparently sold to that end.

On August 14, 1809, the residue of Parcel 4's 44-year lease was transferred to James Keith Jr., who leased the property a day later on August 15, to James Hewitt Hooe, kinsman of Robert T. Hooe (Alexandria Deed Book R:439; S:374). The following April (1810), J. H. Hooe sold the lease to John Muncaster, a merchant and past associate of James Hewett Hooe. The 1810 tax records list John Muncaster occupying this location.

Additional research needs to be conducted into the land use and occupation of this area to place the archeological mitigation of Feature 104 into context.

Feature 104: Brick and Stone Foundation

Feature 104 represents the brick and stone foundation of an ell-shaped building. The western and larger section measures approximately 24.5 feet north-south by 16.5 feet east-west on its exterior (404.25 square feet), while the smaller wing measures 14 by 12 feet (168 square feet). The building is situated at about approximately 5.5 feet in elevation (Figure 2).

Three stone walls from the main foundation of the building are extant and consist of 2-3 courses of stone that extends roughly 1 to 1.5 feet below the existing surface. Only remnants of mortar and loose articulated stone appear to remain from the eastern wall, which historically faced the Strand. The 1921 Sanborn Fire Insurance map shows that the Herfurth Engine & Machine Company later constructed a frame storage shed in this location, which may have damaged portions of the foundation of Feature 104 (Figure 3). The Sanborn map indicates that the eastern and western ends of this shed were constructed of brick, and may have had a more substantial foundation that destroyed the earlier one related to Feature 104.

Only portions of the foundation of the smaller section of the house are extent (see Figure 1). Again, they may have been damaged by subsequent use of the property.

Archeological excavation, probing and cat-hole excavation, failed to produce evidence of the missing portions of the foundation walls of Feature 104.

Four test units (TUs) were placed within the foundation walls to evaluate the extent to which the interior fills were intact and to determine if an occupation level was present. Excavation of the test units showed multiple strata marked by rubble overlying the soils related to historic infilling in this area (Figures 4-7). Descriptions of the stratigraphy observed in each test unit are presented below.

The soil sequence consists generally of destruction levels overlying soils associated with the historic infilling in this area. The uppermost strata contain rubble material, presumably from the destruction of the building; no occupation layer is apparent. Beneath the destruction levels, and the foundation itself, are one or two strata that may have been placed just prior to the construction of the building, including a layer with an oyster shell concentration. These layers, in turn, overly the historic infilled soils.

A layer of oyster shells was noted at roughly 2 feet (±0.5 feet) below the surface in the soil profiles of each test unit within the main stone foundation; this stratum is below the lowest course of foundation stone. Although shell was noted in the soils of TU98, the oyster concentration does not appear to extend into this portion of the building. This shell stratum was thickest in the southwest corner of TU 95.

Artifacts collected from both Fill 1 and Fill 2 in the test units are mixed; the assemblage includes creamware, pearlware, whiteware, and yellowware sherds; freeblown (pre-1860) and contact mold (1810-1880) bottle glass fragments; pre-1864 windowpane fragments; and wrought and cut nail fragments. Notable artifacts include a silver half-dime with a date of 1836 (TU 97 Fill 2) and a Civil War era eagle breastplate (general surface collection). Artifact analysis is ongoing.

Despite the lack of occupation layer, the artifact from the destruction fills may provide information related to the buildings occupation and use. The excavation of a larger block both in the main stone foundation and the brick addition will provide both a larger sample of artifacts to better understand the use of the building as well as provide a larger window to locate features associated with the occupation of the structure if they are present.

Proposed Methodology

Field Investigations

Mitigation of the feature will involve the archeological excavation of no more than 250 square feet of the interior of the foundation (50% of total square footage minus the four previously excavated test units, totaling 36 square feet). The two portions of the building will be divided into quadrants. Fills 1 and 2 contained mixed contexts and will be removed without screening. The remaining fills overlying the historic infilling (TU95 Fills 3-7; TU 96 Fills 3-10; TU 97 Fills 3-7; TU 98 Fills 3-6) will be excavated to the shallower of the depth of utility impacts or to the top of the historic infilling.

All features encountered during the excavation of the blocks described above, or encountered during mechanical excavation and removal of the feature, will be fully exposed, documented, and excavated as described below before being removed.

All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. All soils associated with the occupation of the feature will be dry-screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth. If any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as a builder's trench or trash pits, those features will be bisected and the archeological consultant will hand excavate one half of the feature and dry-screen the soil through 1/4-inch mesh. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the soils associated with Feature 104 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), and cataloged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Feature 104 will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

Specialized analyses (faunal, macro-botanical, soil analyses) and artifact conservation will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. Faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. As warranted, the soil samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Additionally, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained, if deemed necessary, for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Reporting

The results of the documentary research to date, the archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Feature 104 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report.

FOR FEATURE 120
ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings with associated roads and alleys; underground parking is planned for over half of the site. Exploratory trenching and subsequent site leveling within this area revealed numerous archeological features, including stone foundations, wells and privies. This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 120, a brick and stone foundation of a possible domicile (Figure 1).

Decisions regarding the significance of this feature were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. Feature 120 retains integrity and therefore can address research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice):

> can we attribute any historic remains (features or artifacts) to the various industries on the block- blacksmiths, carpenters, coopers, grocers, etc? To the domestic component of the block?

Because Feature 120 has the potential to help us understand the domestic lifeways and various industries along the waterfront during the late 18$^{th}$ and 19$^{th}$ centuries, they are considered significant and archeological data recovery is required by the City. This feature is located within the garage area and will be fully impacted by proposed construction.

The ultimate goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the features prior to their destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

Fieldwork and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. Thunderbird Archeology will arrange the donation of the artifacts from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Documentary Research

Thomas Fleming purchased Lot 85 from the Trustees of Alexandria on May 9, 1763 when the town was expanded (Ring and Pippenger 2008: 75). The original extents of Lot 85 included at most only a small area of land at the southwestern edge of the what is now the study area; most of the southern portion of the block lay within the Potomac River in 1763. During Fleming's ownership, it is nearly certain that he engaged in banking-out the property to increase access to the Potomac channel; however, it is unclear how much of this work was completed before he sold the property in 1770 to James Kirk, a merchant and later Mayor of Alexandria (Ring and Pippenger 2008:75).

The eastward extension of Lot 85 became known for several decades as Kirk's Wharf and played a key role in Alexandria's waterfront trade. The banking-out of the property had likely extended the lot eastward to near its current size by 1785, when Union Street was established along the waterfront.

The portion of Lot 85 lying east of The Strand is designated Parcel 5 and served as the active wharf-front from at least the mid-1780s (see Figure 2). Numerous individuals leased portions of the wharf in the late 18th and early 19th century including Joseph Caverly (1787), a ship carpenter, John Murray and Company (1787), merchants, Andrew Jamieson (1791), baker; Thomas Patten and Company, merchant (1792), Robert Hamilton (1795), merchant; and Robert Henderson (1795), shopkeeper. Later tenants of other Kirk heirs include William Hartshorne (1803-1813) and Joseph Dean (1813-1830), merchants. The wharf was frequently known by the name of the major leaseholder during the period, being called at varying times Kirk's, Caverly's, Hartshorne's, or Hamilton's wharf in documents of the time (Pulliam 2006, n.d.).

The land lying west of the Strand is composed primarily of Parcel 1 (see Figure 2). Parcel 2 was likely not separated from Lot 1 until 1826; however, Parcels 3 and 4 were leased decades earlier. Feature 120 is located within Parcel 4.

Lot 85: Parcel 4

Parcel 4 is located at the corner of Wolfe Street and The Strand, lying to the west of the Strand (see Figure 2). This parcel was leased to James Caverley prior to 1795, and subsequently by Robert Henderson (Alexandria Deed Book F: 309). In 1805, William Patterson leased the property for a term of 15 years (Alexandria Deed Book K: 92). Patterson may have also leased Parcel 3 at the same time, but the documentary record has not been pulled to confirm this at this time. The 1810 tax records list William Patterson as occupying an unspecified number of houses and lots on Wolfe Street; the records also note that a shopkeeper and tavern license are associated with the parcel. Additional research on this establishment and use of the parcel during this period is needed.

Parcel 4 (and likely Parcel 2) were sold to Josiah H. Davis from Sarah Kirk and William Keyser executors of Robert Kirk on March 6, 1826 (Alexandria Deed Book P-2:331). At least one building had stood on Parcel 4 since the early 19th century, housing various tenants and businesses during the leases of Caverly, Patterson, and perhaps others. Tax records in 1830 show Josiah Davis as taxed for two houses and lots (on Parcels 3 and 4), occupied by William Stuart and James Allen. In 1831, Josiah H. Davis advertised for rent "a Dwelling and Grocery, at the corner of Wolfe & Strand streets, at present occupied by Capt Duncan" (AG 3 November 1831:1). The advertisement also mentioned that Wolfe Street was soon to be paved.

In 1846, Davis sold the parcels to James Green (Alexandria Deed Book G-3: 380). Green appears to have continued leasing some of the buildings in Lot 85 to other individuals and businesses. The 1850 tax records list three houses and lots and a lumber yard as one unit, which likely includes at least one of the buildings on Parcels 3 and 4. The occupants of these structures were given as James P. Fugitt and J. L. Richardson & Co.

The ownership of Lot 85 changed hands frequently in the period following the death of James Green in 1880. The 1885 Sanborn Fire Insurance map shows four dwellings on Lot 85 along Wolfe Street between South Union Street and The Strand (Figure 3). Two two-story structures were located at 716 and 718 Wolfe Street and two dwellings were identified on Parcel 4 (719 and 719 ½ Wolfe Street); the latter building included a one-and-½-story addition. With the exception of the building at 718 Wolfe Street, which was converted into an office, all others were demolished circa 1890.

In the early 20th century, new buildings were constructed on Parcel 4, partially over the location of Feature 120.

Feature 120: Brick and Stone Foundation

Feature 120 represents the partially exposed brick and stone foundation of a building lying partially under the north side of Wolfe Street that measures approximately 32 feet east-west on its exterior. About 22 feet of the building is exposed running north-south. The remains of the building are situated at about approximately 4.25 feet above mean sea level in elevation (Figures 4 and 5). The structure is situated approximately 23 west of the cobblestone remains of a historic portion of the Strand. What remains of this structure is primarily a stone foundation with either brick repairs or additions to the western wall.

Evaluation of the foundation (which was partially exposed at the time) consisted of only two test units (TUs). They were placed to evaluate the extent to which the interior fills were intact and to determine if an occupation level was present. Descriptions and photographs of the stratigraphy observed in each test unit are presented below (Figures 6 and 7); a summary of the artifact assemblage is appended to this document (Tables 1 and 2).

TU 99 was placed in the northeast corner of the exposed feature, and was designed to determine the depth of the foundation, as well as the integrity of the fill soils. Greater quantities of rubble material were observed in the soils within TU 99 as compared to TU 100. Additionally, the strata between approximately 1 foot below surface to 3 feet below surface produced a greater quantity of artifacts in comparison to TU 100, including marbles, a comb, pipe fragments, slate pencils, buttons, etc.

The artifact assemblage from Fill 5 through Fill 7 from TU 99 dates to the mid-to-late 19th century. Ceramics consisted primarily of ironstone (1840-1900+) and whiteware (1820-1900+) sherds that included hand-painted, transfer printed and flow-blue decoration, as well as yellowware (1830-1940) and American Rockingham/Bennington (1800-1912; 1845-1900+). Glass artifacts from these fills included over 30 post-1840 Prosser buttons, post 1827 pressed tableware, freeblown (pre 1860) and contact mold (1810-1880) bottle glass, and potash windowpane sherds. A bottle embossed with "R.P. Cook" (1855-1860) and a post-1865 two-cent piece were recovered from Fill 7.

TU 100 was placed near the northwest corner of the feature between two short wall spurs (one constructed of brick; the other of stone) that extend approximately three feet into the interior of the building. This was initially suspected to be a hearth, but the soils and artifacts observed here did not corroborate this speculation.

TU 100 yielded considerably fewer artifacts than those observed in TU 99. The uppermost soils (Fills 1-4) contained whiteware, yellowware and American Rockingham/Bennington sherds, but with a nearly equal amount of pearlware (1780-1820) sherds, and a few creamware (1762-1820) and luster ware (1780-1820) sherds. In contrast, Fills 5 and 6 yielded primarily artifacts dating back first half of the 19th century and only one whiteware sherd was recovered from Fill 6. However, excavation of both test units was impeded by the presence of groundwater in the area making it difficult to excavate the lowest levels and to identify features. The groundwater mitigation efforts included small sump pits one corner of each unit, with hand pumps in constant use. Two whiteware sherds were recovered from the sump pits in Fill 5 and Fill 6 of TU 100. Both units were excavated as deep as possible, however excavation was terminated without conclusively identifying an occupation layer. Based on the earlier dates of the artifact assemblage in the lower levels, it is possible that Fills 5 and 6 represent the historic infilling in this location of the feature Water mitigation will be addressed during mitigation excavations; several sumps have been excavated near the feature and a dewatering well point system will be installed onsite, which should lower the overall water table at the site.

Discussion

Two building foundations have been identified within Parcel 4 during the archeological investigations (Feature 112 and Feature 120). Based on the documentary research conducted to date, we know that at least one building was standing on Parcel 4 in the early 19th century. Tax records in 1830 show Josiah Davis was taxed for two houses and lots (Parcel 3 and Parcel 4), but the 1831 newspaper description of a dwelling on the corner of the Strand and Wolfe Street is likely describing Feature 120.

No apparent occupation level was observed during the archeological evaluation of Feature 120, which was limited to two test units; however, evidence of the historic infilling may have been located at the lowest levels of TU 100.

The artifact assemblage from TU 99 dates the fills to the mid-to-late 19th century. The lowermost fill in TU 99 yielded few artifacts, and still fewer that could be dated. These included one ironstone sherd, two pre-1860 bottle glass sherds and one pre-1864

windowpane sherd. Based on this evidence, these fills from TU 99 relate to the latter half of the building's occupation and its subsequent destruction circa 1890.

The artifact assemblage from the uppermost fills of TU 100 (Fills 1-4) also dates to the mid-to-late 19th century; Fill 5, by contrast, contains artifacts dating to the late 18th/early 19th century. A handful of artifacts were recovered from the soils below Fill 5, and during the excavation of internal sumps to alleviate flooding at the base of the unit, that date to the latter half of the 19th century (three whiteware sherds and a post 1850 bottle glass sherd). It is possible that these artifacts were displaced from elsewhere in the soil column. This is one question that can be addressed by additional excavation in this quadrant of the building.

We feel that mitigation excavation within the vicinity of TU 100 can address questions relating to the date of construction of the building (early 19th century) and the period of use up to its destruction, circa 1890.

Proposed Methodology

Field Investigations

Mitigation of the feature will involve the archeological excavation of 25% of the interior of the foundation, as it is currently exposed, which currently measures 32 by 22 feet. The remainder of the building will be impacted during garage construction.

Excavation will begin in the northwest corner of the feature to investigate whether the lower soils (Fills 5 and 6) in TU 100 represent historic infilling, or occupation levels (see Figure 1). The excavation will consist of a 16 by 11-foot block; however, data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archeological work, and alternatively two 8 by 11-foot blocks may be excavated across the features.

All features encountered during the excavation of the blocks described above or encountered during mechanical excavation and removal of the feature, will be fully exposed, documented, and excavated as described below before being removed.

All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle.

All soils associated with the occupation of the feature will be dry-screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth; however, water screening the excavated fills through ¼-inch mesh could potentially speed up the screening process in more wet levels. If any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as a builder's trench or trash pits, those features will be bisected and WSSI archeologists will hand excavate one half of the feature and dry-screen the soil through 1/4-inch mesh. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts will be cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), and cataloged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards. Feature 120 will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

Specialized analyses (faunal, macro-botanical, soil analyses) and artifact conservation will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. Faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. As warranted, the soil samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Additionally, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained, if deemed necessary, for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Reporting

The results of the excavations, artifact evaluation, any specialized analyses, and documentary research conducted to date will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report.

FOR FEATURE 123: THE STRAND
ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings with associated roads and alleys; underground parking is planned for over half of the site. Exploratory trenching and subsequent site leveling within this area revealed numerous archeological features, including stone foundations, wells and privies.

This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 123, a historic section of the Strand Street (Figures 1 and 2).

Decisions regarding the significance of this feature were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. The feature retains integrity and the City is requiring archaeological data recovery of the cobblestone road and brick gutter. The ultimate goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the features prior to their destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

Fieldwork and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. Thunderbird Archeology will arrange the donation of the artifacts from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Documentary Research

The Strand was established in the 1780s as a 21-foot-wide alley that extended from Wolfe Street to Duke Street, running along the west side of the Hooe Warehouse (Feature 44), now the west side of the extant building at 2 Duke Street.

Feature 123: Cobblestone Street, and Curb with Brick Gutter

Feature 123 represents the partially exposed brick and stone road an approximately 45-foot-long portion of the historical strand street. The remains of this historic road bed include an approximately 5-foot-wide portion of the cobble stone road surface, with a roughly 1-foot-wide brick gutter along is west edge and 1.25-foot-wide cobble and pebble curb running along its east edge. The remains of the road are situated at about approximately 3.2 feet above mean sea level in elevation (see Figures 1-2). While the brick gutter is nearly continuous for the length of the exposed section of road, the curb and street surface have been disturbed near the center of the exposed section. This feature is roughly in alignment with the modern Strand Street located to the north. Few artifacts were collected in association with this feature; what remains of interest is the underlying stratigraphy which may provide information regarding the construction of the historic road bed.

Field Investigations

Mitigation of the feature will involve the archeological excavation of a trench measuring 1.5 feet wide and approximately 24 feet long, placed across an undisturbed portion of the feature to expose the stratigraphy underlying the road bed. The trench will also expose stratigraphy to the east and west of the feature to compare and identify any differences from beneath the feature to the surrounding soils.

The trench will be excavated to a depth at which the WSSI archaeologist is confident they have fully excavated the soils associated with the feature. The estimated expected depth of this trench 1.5 to 2 feet but is subject to change if deemed necessary by WSSI archaeologists. One brick, one street cobble, and one stone will be collected from the gutter, road surface, and curb respectively as samples of each material. The trench and feature will be documented with plan view and profiles drawings and photographs. The soils will be dry-screened for artifacts and a one-gallon soil sample will be retained for special analyses as warranted. Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by unit number and by soil horizon.

All additional features encountered during the excavation of the trench described above, or encountered during mechanical excavation and removal of the feature, will be fully exposed, documented, and excavated as described below before being removed.

Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the soils associated with Feature 123 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Specialized analyses (faunal, macro-botanical, soil analyses) and artifact conservation will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. Faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. As warranted, the soil samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Additionally, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained, if deemed necessary, for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Reporting

The results of the documentary research completed to date, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of the Feature 81/83 complex will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report.

RESOURCE MANAGEMENT PLAN ADDENDUM
FOR FEATURE 125 AND 150
ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings with associated roads and alleys; underground parking is planned for over half of the site. Exploratory trenching and subsequent site leveling within this area revealed numerous archeological features, including stone foundations, brick foundations, an early 19th century road, and privies. This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 125, a stone and wood foundation of a possible domicile, and Feature 150, an associated wooden box privy (Figure 1).

Decisions regarding the significance of this feature were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. The two features retain integrity and therefore can address research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice):

> can we attribute any historic remains (features or artifacts) to the various industries on the block- blacksmiths, carpenters, coopers, grocers, etc? To the domestic component of the block?

Because Feature 125 and 150 has the potential to help us understand the domestic lifeways and various industries along the waterfront during the late 18th and early 19th centuries, they are considered significant and archeological data recovery is required by the City.

The ultimate goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the features prior to their destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

Fieldwork and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. Thunderbird Archeology will arrange the donation of the artifacts from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Feature 125: Timber and Stone Foundation on Wolfe Street

Feature 125 represents the wood and stone foundation of a building that measures approximately 42 x 25 feet. The foundation consists of a central stone foundation flanked by two symmetrical bays on the north and south. The foundation for each bay consists of large wooden sills (with mortices) overlying a stone foundation. The central stone foundation measures roughly 12 x 25 feet and each wooden bay measures 15 x 25 ft. The wooden sills contain mortices and are underlain by stone foundations (Figures 2-4). Feature 125 is situated adjacent to Wolfe Street to the south and approximately 50 feet east of Union Street. Feature 150, a wooden box, was located roughly 10 feet north of Feature 125 and is likely a privy associated with this structure.

Four test units (TUs) were placed within the foundation walls, one in each of the three bays with an extra one placed within the stone bay to evaluate a gap in the foundation. All of the units were placed to evaluate the extent to which the interior fills were intact and to determine if an occupation level was present. TU 88 and TU 87 exhibited evidence of a potential occupation stratum, with TU 87 containing a potential threshold feature. TU 86 and TU 89. Ground water in all four test units made assessing them extremely difficult. Descriptions of the stratigraphy observed in each test unit are presented below.

Fill 5: 1.7 – 2.1 feet below surface – [10YR 5/2] sandy loam

Fill 6: 2.1 - 2.4 feet below surface – [10YR 3/2] very dark grayish brown

TU 86 was placed in the northeast corner of the northern wood bay, and was designed to determine the depth of the foundation, as well as the integrity of the fill soils. Fill 1 through Fill 3 appear to be post-destruction fill, as evidenced by the gley clay in Fill 3. The artifacts, which have not been fully assessed, appear to be lower density than the other test units. The diagnostic ceramic assemblage consists of creamware (1762-1820), pearlware (1780-1830) and, with wrought and machine cut nails (Post 1790). None of the strata, including the previously mentioned post-destruction fills, contain late 19$^{th}$ or 20$^{th}$ century artifacts. Fill 5 appears to correspond with Fill 4 in Test Unit 87, which may be related to a threshold found in the same test unit. Fill 4 through Fill 7 likely represent construction and occupation activities and contain a slightly higher density assemblage than the other strata.

TU 87 was placed at the gap in the stone foundation on the east side of the building. The unit was placed to determine the depth of the foundation, asses the gap in the foundation and the integrity of the fill soils. The first three Fill strata appear to be destruction fill. Fill 4 through Fill 6 appear to represent occupation or construction strata. In Figure 5, the strata in question are immediately below the cast iron pot. Subsequent to the recording of the Test Unit profiles the east wall was shaved back to fully expose the stone foundations. During this process a small piece of wood housed within the gap in the eastern wall of the stone foundation was recorded as a possible threshold (Figure 6). The threshold is associated with Fill 4 (and possibly Fill 5 and 6), a very dark sandy loam with charcoal. The diagnostic ceramic assemblage consists of creamware (1762-1820), pearlware (1780-1830), pre-1860 glass, and wrought iron and machine cut iron nails (Post 1790). None of the strata, including the previously mentioned destruction fills, contain late 19$^{th}$ or 20$^{th}$ century artifacts. Though all of the strata in TU 87 contain this assemblage with no mixing of late 19$^{th}$ century artifacts, the strata associated with the potential occupation and construction (Fill 4 thru Fill 6) contain a higher density of these items, particularly wrought iron nails and creamware ceramics.

TU 88 was placed in the center of the central bay to assess the integrity of the soils within the foundation, particularly with respect to a potential cellar. The first four fill strata appear to be destruction soils. Fill 5 through Fill 8 likely represents occupation or construction strata. Fill 6 contains black sand similar to Fill 5 in TU 86 and Fill 4 in TU 87 (Figure 7).

The diagnostic ceramic assemblage is consistent with the previous two test units. The diagnostic ceramic assemblage consists of creamware (1762-1820), pearlware (1780-1830), and wrought iron and machine cut iron nails (Post 1790). None of the strata, including the previously mentioned destruction fills, contain late 19$^{th}$ or 20$^{th}$ century artifacts. Though all of the strata in TU 88 contain this assemblage with no mixing of late 19$^{th}$ century artifacts, the strata associated with the potential occupation and construction (Fill 4 thru Fill 6) contain a slightly higher density of these items.

TU 89 was placed in the southwest corner of the southern bay and was designed to determine the depth of the foundation, as well as the integrity of the fill soils. The first five Fill strata appear to be destruction fill. Fill 6 contains darker sandy loam similar to Fill 5 in TU 86 and Fill 4 in TU 87. TU 89 was abandoned at Fill 6 due to the constant presence of ground or purged/trapped water. The diagnostic ceramic assemblage is consistent with the previous three test units. The density of diagnostic ceramics increases in Fill 5, as well as the presence of machine cut iron nails (post 1790).

Excavation of all test units was impeded by the presence of groundwater in the area making it difficult to identify features. The groundwater mitigation efforts included small sump pits one corner of each unit, with hand pumps in constant use, and torpedo heaters to assist in drying. All units were excavated as deep as possible, however excavation was terminated in Test Unit 89 without conclusively identifying an occupation layer. This issue will be exacerbated by the larger block units during mitigation excavations and additional sumps within the feature will have to be excavated.

Field Investigations

The fill layers in every evaluation test unit exhibited an early 19th century date range with negligible[1]mixing of artifacts from the second half of the century, including the strata potentially associated with the destruction of the feature. As such, all of the fill strata contribute to the study and understanding of the construction, use, and demolition of the structure and will provide a statistically relevant sample size for proper comparative inquiries. Feature 125 is also a unique construction method compared to the rest of the features found within the block and unique within the City of Alexandria.

Mitigation of the feature will involve the archeological excavation of no more than 50% of the interior of the foundation. Blocks will be excavated in each of the three bays of Feature 125 and staggered in such a way as to provide complete soil profiles of the aforementioned bays (Figure 8). A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from each soil strata believed to be related to construction or occupation activity in each 25% square. This will result in a minimum of six soil samples and a maximum of eighteen.

Two additional 3 x 3 test units will be excavated on the south end of the feature to assess additional wood extensions discovered after the removal of a retention wall parallel to Wolfe Street and subsequent to the evaluation excavations. After the completion of hand excavation of Feature 125, the bulk of the remainder of the feature will be excavated mechanically, as is possible, while keeping the foundation intact and free from groundwater. The remainder of the soil not safely removable mechanically will be excavated by hand, and post-excavation photogrammetry photos will be taken.

All features encountered during the excavation of the blocks described above, or encountered during mechanical excavation and removal of the feature, will be fully exposed, documented, and excavated as described below before being removed.

All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. All soils associated with the occupation of the feature will be dry-screened through 1/4-inch mesh hardware cloth.

If any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as a builder's trench or trash pits, those features will be bisected and WSSI archeologists will hand excavate one half of the feature and dry-screen the soil through 1/4-inch mesh. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half.

[1] (n=1, whiteware (1820-1900+) fragment from the surface)

Feature 125

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the soils associated with Feature 125 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled, and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Feature 125 will be assigned a date reflecting its terminus post quem (TPQ), which represents a date after which the feature contents were deposited and is determined by the date of the most recent artifact(s) present. Additionally, Mean Ceramic Dates for the feature assemblage will be calculated following South (1977) and Miller's (1992) revision of South's dates. The presence/absence and relative proportions of key ceramic types in the artifact assemblage will also be used to infer the temporal range of use for this specific context.

Specialized analyses (faunal, macro-botanical, soil analyses) and artifact conservation will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. Faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. As warranted, the soil samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Additionally, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained, if deemed necessary, for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Reporting

The results of the documentary research completed to date, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Feature 125 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report, which will present the combined results of the Archeological Evaluation and Data Recovery Mitigation conducted at the site.

Feature 150: Wooden Box Privy

Field Investigations

Feature 150 is wooden box privy that measures approximately 5 feet by 2.5 feet (see Figure 8); it is similar in appearance to the privies designated Feature 12 and Feature 49. Based on proximity, Feature 150 appears to be directly associated with Feature 125 and may provide significant data about the inhabitants of this structure, as well as comparative data to the other privies found on the site.

Feature 150 will be bisected and 50% of the feature will first be excavated in either arbitrary or stratigraphic levels, at the discretion of the archeologist in charge. The soils will be dry-screened unless contexts with superior integrity or night soil deposits are encountered; these will be water-screened on-site through 1/16" window mesh cloth. Previous excavations of wooden box privies suggest at least 2 to 2.5 feet of nightsoil will be present. The remaining half of the privy soils will be stratigraphically excavated, but will be retained in storage totes without screening for later use by the city archaeologists.

All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from each soil horizon containing contexts with superior integrity or night soil deposits from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Laboratory

Archeological artifacts will be cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Specialized analyses (faunal, macro-botanical, soil analyses) and artifact conservation will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. Faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. As warranted, the soil samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Additionally, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained, if deemed necessary, for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Reporting

The results of the privy excavations, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses, and documentary research conducted to date will be integrated be integrated into the Final Archeological Report.

REMOVAL/DISMANTLE PLAN FOR FEATURE 134
ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The massive granite foundations of the Pioneer Mill, constructed circa 1854, were located during archeological investigations within the northeast end of the Robinson Landing site. The Pioneer Mill, designated Feature 134, has been successfully evaluated; no mitigation beyond documentation was recommended. This Plan has been prepared for the archeological removal/dismantling of Feature 134.

Feature 134: Pioneer Mill

The Pioneer Mill is a large (121 x 112 foot) stone foundation with several brick pads and stone columns. Four trenches were excavated within the foundations to assess the subsurface for integrity, particularly related to the original use of the building as a flour mill in the mid-19th century. The trench profiles, and subsequent discussions with a consulting archeologist that specializes in industrial contexts, revealed that very little integrity related to the mid-19th century remained beyond the elements that had already been exposed. In consultation with Alexandria Archaeology, Thunderbird Archeology has determined that the structural elements of the Pioneer Mill can be removed at this time.

Proposed Methodology

Prior to removal, an earthen ramp will be constructed over the southwest corner to allow access to Feature 134. Under the supervision and monitoring of the WSSI archeologists, the structural elements of Feature 134 and the related fill soils on the interior and exterior will be removed using a large track hoe with a flat-bladed bucket starting on the north side and working towards the ramp in the southwest corner. Structural elements and artifacts (e.g. millstones, machine parts, etc) related to the Pioneer Mill that are uncovered during the removal process will be documented and photographed before removal.

Features unrelated to Pioneer Mill will be recorded and subject to the archaeological evaluation and mitigation process, as warranted. The soils will be stockpiled with other soils from the project area in order to keep the area clear for assessing the presence/absence of additional features or culturally sterile subsoil. If no features are present, all soils will be removed to culturally sterile subsoil. The client will be responsible for water management if it prevents the archeologists from assessing features or the presence of culturally sterile subsoil.

The stone that comprises Pioneer Mill foundations will be stockpiled separately from the soil for reuse by RT South, and potentially by the City of Alexandria. The City will designate an offsite stockpile location for all stone, prior to its removal, in order to move the material offsite efficiently.

FOR FEATURE 151 & FEATURE 155 at ROBINSON LANDING,
CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA
April 11, 2018

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings with associated roads and alleys; underground parking is planned for over half of the site. Exploratory trenching and subsequent site leveling within this area revealed numerous archeological features, including stone foundations, brick foundations, an early 19th century road, privies and soil retention systems (cribbing and bulkhead wharves). This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 151, a stone foundation and associated wood cribbing possibly associated with the Kirk's circa 1790 wharf and Feature 155, the remains of a large wooden vessel which are integrated into the bulkhead wharf architecture that lies along the north side of Feature 151 (Figure 1).

Decisions regarding the significance of the feature were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. The features retain integrity and therefore can address the initial identification level research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice): Will the site contain the remnants of 18th and early 19th century wharves and structures? Features 151 and 155 also have the potential to help us understand the various commercial industries and use of space along the early waterfront These features are considered significant and archeological data recovery is required by the City.

The goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the feature prior to its destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change based on findings during the course of the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

Fieldwork and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. Thunderbird Archeology will arrange the donation of the artifacts from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.[1]

[1] Note that elements of ship and wharf architecture are not considered artifacts. These items will be donated to the City but will not be delivered to the City; specific treatment of such items is detailed later in this document.

Documentary Research

According to our documentary research, the portion of the property containing these features lies on the boundary of Town Lot 85 and what was originally part of Point Lumley, which had been reserved by the trustees of Alexandria as "public land" because of its natural deep-water access to the Potomac River.

Point Lumley and Lot 77

The trustees of Alexandria owned the land at Point Lumley but leaseholders typically owned any buildings they constructed on the leased land; such buildings were frequently sold or deconstructed when leases ended. Alexandria maintained ownership of Point Lumley until 1892, when the land was first sold to private individuals.

The public land at Point Lumley was first leased in the 1750s to Thomas Fleming, a ship builder, although the first recorded lease that could be located was dated 1774 (Pulliam 2014). Parcels 3 and 4 represent land created by Thomas Fleming through banking-out or wharf construction by 1774, but still owned by the town (see Figure 1). These lot extensions may have been the location for secondary structures or wharves related to Thomas Fleming's shipbuilding enterprise.

Fleming made similar improvements to Lot 77, which he purchased from George Chapman in 1770 (see Figure 1). Lot 77 was expanded in a narrow 25-foot-wide spur extending from the southeast corner and may originally have served to provide river access to the remainder of the lot. It is unclear how Fleming made use of the portion of Lot 77 lying within the study area and he died shortly after enough land had been created to establish Union Street along the waterfront. The use and occupants of these parcels following his death is also unknown at this time; it is possible that a lot owned by a Dr. Mathews of Baltimore and occupied in 1810 by Andrew Bartle, a house, bridge, and wharf-builder, was located on Lot 77 Western extension, or it may have located to the south in Lot 85.

The Eastern Extension of Lot 77 was sold to Robert Townshend Hooe by George Hunter, executor to Thomas Fleming, on January 1, 1794 (Alexandria Deed Book E:419). By 1796, Robert Townsend Hooe built a one-story wooden warehouse measuring 74 feet by 24 feet on "the lower side of Hoe's wharf," most likely within this parcel (MAS Vol. 1: 37). By 1805, when Hooe revalued his warehouse, the Mutual Assurance Society document indicated that Hooe's warehouse was:

> Contiguous within 30 Feet to
> 2 Houses built of brick & Covered with Wood
> 1 [ditto] of Stone & Covered with wood
> 30 Wooden Houses [MAS Vol. 8: 540]

Robert T. Hooe conveyed the property to partner Richard Harrison and lawyers Charles Simm and Thomas Swann on August 11, 1808 (Alexandria Deed Book R:255), who in turn sold the parcel to John Muncaster in 1810 (Alexandria Deed Book S: 379). Muncaster also leased Point Lumley Parcel 4, adjacent to the north of this parcel. It is likely that Lot 77 Parcel 6 was the location of the 24 by 74-foot warehouse built by Robert Hooe (MAS Vol 1: 37) and later occupied by Muncaster.

Lot 85

Thomas Fleming purchased Lot 85 from the Trustees of Alexandria on May 9, 1763 and almost certainly began to improve his access to the waterfront by "banking out" and creating more usable land east of the original lot line. It is unclear how much of this work was completed before he sold the property in 1770 to James Kirk, a merchant and later Mayor of Alexandria (Ring and Pippenger 2008: 75). The banking-out of the property likely continued under Kirk's ownership and was extended eastward to near its current size by 1785, when Union Street was established along the waterfront. The eastward extension of Lot 85 became known for several decades as Kirk's Wharf and played a key role in Alexandria's waterfront trade.

Following the death of James Kirk in 1786, his widow Bridget Fleming Kirk, took control of the wharf and other family assets. She placed an advertisement that year, which suggests that in 1786, there were undeveloped lots on the wharf but at least one finished warehouse complete with a cellar:

> "several very eligible WATER LOTS, on the wharf of the late JAMES KIRK; also to be let, a STORE HOUSE on said wharf, consisting of a STORE ready fitted up with 4 rooms and a cellar" [VJAA 13 July 1786: 1].

The specific location of this warehouse is unknown but must be east of The Strand on Parcel 5 (see Figure 1). The stone foundation designated Feature 151 appears to be located on Kirk's Wharf and may be the warehouse from this advertisement.

Bridget Kirk exercised considerable influence on the late 18$^{th}$ century development of the south end of Alexandria's water-front; she may have been directly responsible for the creation of The Strand when she laid out a 21-foot wide alley across the wharf in 1787 (Ring and Pippenger 2008: 75). With Bridget Kirk's death in 1797 the property was passed to her son, Robert Kirk. The Kirk's maintained possession of the lot for a significant period of time, leasing it to various commercial interests. With the death of Robert Kirk in 1811, his wife Sarah Kirk took over control of the property.

Projected Locations of 1798 Hartshorn Warehouses on Kirk's Wharf

Numerous individuals leased portions of the wharf in the late 18th and early 19th century including Joseph Caverly (1787), a ship carpenter, John Murray and Company (1787), merchants, Andrew Jamieson (1791), baker; Thomas Patten and Company, merchant (1792), Robert Hamilton (1795), merchant; and Robert Henderson (1795), shopkeeper. Later tenants of other Kirk heirs include William Hartshorne (1803-1813) and Joseph Dean (1813-1830), merchants. The wharf was frequently known by the name of the major leaseholder during the period, being called at varying times Kirk's, Caverly's, Hartshorne's, or Hamilton's wharf in documents of the time (Pulliam 2006: 1 Lot 85).

In 1803, William Hartshorne purchased a Mutual Assurance Society fire insurance policy for three warehouses located on Parcel 5 (see Figure 2 on proceeding page). The three warehouses were described as "situated between the wharf of Col. Robt. T. Hooe and that of a lumb yard belonging to Col. Hooe," suggesting that the warehouses were located in the northern part of the wharf (as also indicated by the Mutual Assurance documents for Hooe's warehouse on Lot 77 Parcel 6, which alluded to a warehouse of Hartshorne's standing adjacent to the south), and that a portion of the wharf served as a lumber yard. The insurance document also noted that five wooden houses were situated near the insured buildings, indicating several other standing buildings on the wharf.

Parcel 5, formerly known as "Kirk's Wharf", was sold to Henry Daingerfield on January 4, 1830 by Sarah Kirk (Alexandria Deed Book S-2:107); Dangerfield sold the property to James Green in May 1843 (Alexandria Deed Book D-3:79). No occupant is recorded in the 1850 tax record for the "House and Wharf" east of The Strand, suggesting that they were used by directly by Green's business rather than leased. Additional research into subleases and tax information could provide additional information regarding the ownership and use of the wharf and of Feature 151.

Feature 151: Warehouse Foundations and Cribbing

Feature 151 is a stone foundation that measures approximately 30 feet square (32 by 27 feet) with walls roughly 1.5 feet in width (Figures 3 and 4). The foundation is divided into three bays by north-south stone walls that extend from the southern wall but terminated before reaching the norther wall – leaving a four-foot-wide gap or passageway. The two western "rooms" are roughly seven feet in width and the easternmost is 10 feet wide.

Two excavation blocks (Block 1 and Block 2) were excavated within the feature during the Phase II evaluation of Feature 151 (see Figure 4). Both units were excavated to evaluate the extent to which the interior fills were intact and to determine if an occupation level was present. The fill layers in both evaluation test units exhibited a late 18th to mid-19th century date range. Most of these artifacts were recovered from the Fill 1 horizon, located above the cobble layer, and largely consisted of bottle glass. Although some free-blown (pre-1860) and contact mold (1810-1880) were identified, most of the glass was too patinated or deteriorated to be diagnostic. The full inventory of artifacts recovered from these two excavation blocks, as well as artifacts collected from the surface of the feature is attached to the end of this management plan. The remaining horizons contained a very low artifact density. Descriptions of the stratigraphy observed in each test unit are presented below.

Block 1 (Figures 5 and 6)

Block 1 was placed in northwest corner of Feature 151 to determine the depth of the foundation, as well as the integrity of the fill soils. Fill 1 appears to represent a destruction stratum and contains large amounts wood fragments with pine tar and resin. Most of the artifacts recovered from Block 1 came from this horizon and consisted primarily of bottle glass. Although some was free-blown (pre-1860) and contact mold (1810-1880) were identified, most of the glass was too patinated or deteriorated to be diagnostic. Datable ceramics also from Fill 1 include hard paste Chinese export porcelain dating to between 1775 and 1810. Fill 2 consisted of cobble stones and is thought to have been the floor of the structure. No artifacts were recovered from this horizon. A stone foundation footer was uncovered in Fill 3, nearly directly under the level of the cobble stone floor. Lenses of wood chips, evidence of tidal flats, and a very low artifact density from Fills 3-6 indicate that these underlying fills are a result of historic infilling and predate the use of the structure.

Fill 2: 0.15 – 0.35 feet below surface – [10YR 3/2] very dark grayish brown sand, cobble inclusions

Fill 3: 0.35 – 0.6 feet below surface – [10YR 2/1] black silt, pine tar throughout

Fill 5: 0.75 – 1.15 feet below surface – [10YR 4/4] dark yellowish brown sandy clay loam

Fill 6: 1.15 – 1.4 feet below surface – [10YR 5/6] yellowish brown sandy clay loam

Block 2 (Figures 7-8)

Block 2 was placed along the eastern wall of Feature 151 and was designed to determine the depth of the foundation, as well as the integrity of the fill soils. Unlike Block 1, there were only two distinguishable fills in Block 2. Due to the high concentration of pine tar in Block 2, Fill 1 was intermingled with the cobble stone layer identified as Fill 2 in Block 1. The stratum appears to represent a destruction fill and possible collapse of the superstructure due to the boards recovered. Just as with Block 1, most of the artifacts from Block 2 were recovered from Fill 1 and consisted primarily of bottle glass dating to a similarly discrete time period. Fill 2 in this block is likely the result of historic infilling and contains lenses of wood chips and a very low artifact density.

Fill 1: 0 – 1.0 feet below surface – [10YR 3/1] very dark gray sandy clay loam, wood and coal inclusions

Feature 155: Ship/Bulkhead Wharf Soil Retention System

Wetland Studies and Solutions, Inc. archeologists discovered the partial remains of a large ship, which has been integrated into two bulkhead wharf structures that run perpendicular to and run west of the ship (Figures 9 and 10; see Figure 1). The visible elements of the ship include futtocks, keelson, hull planking, sacrificial planking and a possible stern post; and currently measures approximately 46 feet in length by 12.3 feet in width. The bow of the ship underlies the bulkhead wharf (F155-2) and the stone foundation (F151), while Feature 160, another bulkhead wharf retention wall, overlies the stern of the ship. The wharf architecture is comprised of large cut beams and un-milled logs that run parallel and perpendicular to the vessel and may have been partially secured to the ship prior to it placement. These timber wharves are secured by several tie-back braces.

Feature 155-2, currently measures roughly 80 feet in length and 4-6 high and is supported by seven tie-back braces that extend north of the retention wall. Feature 160 is approximately 70 feet in length.

Based on available information, the entire feature complex likely dates to the late 18$^{th}$-century and most likely was placed in this location as the framework for creating new land.

Proposed Field Methodology

Field Investigations – Feature 151

Mitigation of the feature will involve removing the Fill 1 destruction horizon to expose the cobble stone floor. One 6x3 test unit will be excavated against the associated stacked wood cribbing system. Following completion of these test units, the surrounding soil will be mechanically removed to determine the depth and extent of the cribbing. Feature 155 is a scuttled ship and associated cribbing that appears to be associated with the Feature 151 cribbing and may underlie the stone foundation of Feature 151. Photogrammetry will be conducted on the entire soil retention cribbing system, as deemed necessary.

All features encountered during the excavation of the test units described above or encountered during mechanical excavation and removal of the feature, will be fully exposed, documented, and excavated as described below before being removed.

All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle.

If any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as a builder's trench or trash pits, those features will be bisected and WSSI archeologists will hand excavate one half of the feature and dry-screen the soil through 1/4-inch mesh. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

The remnants of the feature complex (ship and bulkhead wharves) will be exposed in its entirety and documented with notes, photographs, a scaled drawing and profiles. The feature complex will be survey located and elevations will be recorded.

Fieldwork will be conducted by WSSI archeologists under contract to the Owner, with the assistance of WSSI sub-consultants, City staff and City consultants and City volunteers, if available. The City shall provide proof of insurance and to the extent permitted by law, will hold the Owner harmless for all work performed onsite by City-affiliated personnel.

Michael Worthington of the Oxford Tree-Ring Laboratory, under subcontract to WSSI, will assess the condition of all wood features, and collect samples of the wharf architecture and the ship for dendroarcheological dating and wood identification.

Color 3D photogrammetry will also be captured of the ship wharf and warehouse along all vertical and horizontal planes will also be captured and conform to photogrammetry methods/standards. These photogrammetric recordings not only serve to document the ship and associated wharf architecture for archeological analysis, but to create comprehensive 3D models that can be used in publishing, public outreach, and historical studies of the site even after the features have been removed or covered.

Given the significance of the ship and wharf architecture, the City of Alexandria wishes to stabalize the ship's wood timbers for later display and use. Due to the fragile nature of the resource, the elements of the feature will be constantly kept moist while exposed and covered when not being directly examined.

Photogrammetry

A digital camera with no fewer than 16 megapixels will be used to document the feature. Photographs will be taken in both RAW and JPEG formats. Photographs will be taken from an appropriate distance, dependent upon camera resolution, from the subject to ensure each pixel represents no more than 2mm. To produce the best results, photogrammetry control points will be located using conventional survey methods.

Images for photogrammetry will be captured in the same layers used to excavate the ship. For this feature, four (4) rounds of photogrammetry will be needed to fully record the ship and portions of the wharf architecture. The first will capture portions of the wharf architecture and the excavated ship in situ prior to any removal of any elements. The second will be taken after the removal of the bulkhead wharf retention walls (portions of Feature 155 and Feature 160), Feature 151, and the box element from amidships, to show the extent of the entire ship from bow to stern. The third will capture the hull planking. The fourth will capture the sacrificial planking.

Agisoft Photoscan will be used to produce the 3D models. All photographs will be reviewed for clarity and image quality before processing. The model will be set to the Virginia State Plane North US feet coordinate system. Horizontal Datum will be set to NAD83, and Vertical datum will be set to NAVD88. Both a point cloud and a 3D textured surface model will be created. Initial processing of image alignment and sparse point cloud will be performed to ensure adequate photo-documentation prior to removal.
All photographs will be submitted with original and unchanged EXIF data. Metadata for control points used in each 3D model will submitted in table format. Original point cloud data will be submitted in .las format and the 3D model will be submitted in .obj file format. The 3D model face count will be reduced to produce a 3D PDF for report submission. (This size model will be adequate for public outreach in various platforms and could be accessed by multiple portable electronic devices.)

Research Questions

1. What can analysis tell us about the ship's origin, date of construction, construction methods, use and function? Was the ship originally built to haul heavy cargo? Or was this a military ship?
2. What evidence do we have that the ship was purposely scuttled?
3. What methods were used to attach the wharf architecture to the vessel?

Excavations

WSSI archeologists, with the assistance of City staff and consultants, will excavate and dismantle the ship, and if the City wishes to preserve these elements, up to a 15-foot wide portion of the associated wharf architecture located adjacent to the ship (i.e. a portion of Feature 155-2).

The soils beneath and between the ship's floor timbers and futtocks will be archeologically excavated; observed artifacts will be collected and bagged with provenience information correlated to adjacent timber elements. Upon completion of the soil removal from the ship, the hull remains will be recorded and the ship excavated. Recording the hull remains in situ is essential for future study of the ship as dimensions of the timbers can be an indicator of both the size and the function of the vessel.

Additionally, a drawing of the feature will be completed as a master plan for the location of timbers and other key construction elements. This plan will be used to note the identification codes of the ship elements and will aid greatly in later efforts to reconstruct the ship once it has been conserved.

Once recording is completed and the necessary labels are attached, the hull elements will be excavated, starting with the box feature amidships, followed by the keelson, the frames, the hull planking, and the keel. Wooden wedges and rubber mallets will be used to manually loosen all hull elements. This method is preferable as it minimizes damage and potential breakage during the excavation process. Should this method fail to properly separate the remains, other methods including steel chisels and limited use of saws will be employed.

The specifications for all tools, including the size and material of the chisels and the blade width of any saws, will be recorded to ensure complete data for the conservation and reconstruction process. No cuts should need to be made to the floors or futtocks, as these are sized below the maximum length of the provided truck bed. Any cuts made to the hull strakes should be done between planks to minimize damage to the planks, themselves. Cuts to the keelson and keel should be made only as necessary under the supervision of an archaeological conservator and maritime archaeologist to ensure no significant loss of data and the smallest possible visual seams. If rabbeting and/or a scarf is found along the keel, this should be measured, recorded photographically and added into the feature sketch before the keel sections are taken apart. Insofar as it is possible and does not represent a danger to the crew or the hull remains, themselves, treenails, spikes, and nails should be left in place in the ship timbers and hull planking.

Labeling

During the excavation process prior the removal of any ship element, each timber in a layer will be assigned a unique identification code. Labeling of the ship remains will follow a process consistent to the one outlined by Richard J. Steffy in Wooden Shipbuilding and the Interpretation of Shipwrecks (2006), wherein an alphanumeric code will be used based on the location and function of the timbers. The labeling will be directed by WSSI staff archeologist, Chelsea Cohen. Each timber element will be documented starting at the southern end of the ship in the area that intersects with the wharf wall. Frame designation will be based on their position relative to the keel. Floor timbers that span the keel will be labeled as "FEFW" with the first visible timber taking the designation "FEFW 1." All subsequent timbers will be numerically grouped in sets of floors, first futtocks, and half frames. Those to the east of the keel will be labeled as "FE" and receive a hyphenated sub-designate odd number (e.g. FE 14-1, FE 14-3). Those that sit west of the keel will be labeled as "FW" and receive a hyphenated sub-designate even number (e.g. FW 14-2, FW 14-4). As it is not currently known what, if any, joining exists between frame timbers, these numerical sets are not meant to serve an analytical purpose, but rather to keep ordered the timbers as they are removed. Should any timbers break during the process of excavation, they will receive an alphabetical sub-designate to note their position on the frame, with "a" representing the fragment closest to the keel (e.g. FW 14-2a, 14-2b).

Hull planking will be labeled in much the same manner, starting with the innermost strakes of planking (the garboard strakes) and working outward and upward. Planks to the east of the ship's keel (relative to a starting point at the wharf wall) will receive a designation of "PE," and a numerical indicator, with the garboard strake representing "PE 1." Individual planks will each receive a sub-designate from south to north (e.g. PE 1-1, PE 1-2). Planks to the west of the keel will receive a designation of "PW" and follow the same numbering and sub-designation pattern. Any hull planks that break as they are excavated will receive an alphabetical sub-designate, going in alphabetical order of the fragment's place relative to the south end of the ship (e.g. 1-1a, 1-1b, 1-1c, etc). Any breaks should also be lightly drawn into the site sketch.

Keel remains will receive a designation of "K." As it is likely that the keel will need to be carefully separated into multiple pieces in order to facilitate transportation, each section of the keel should be given a subsequent numerical designation noting its position, with "K1" at the south end of the ship at the wharf wall. The keelson will be documented in the same way using a designation of "KS." Any breaks that may naturally or manually occur in the keel should be lightly sketched into the site drawing to ensure accurate records and reconstruction.

Any hull remains found outside of the ship will receive a prefix of "UM" (for unidentified member), with a designation added based on the side of the keel to which the object was found. A timber found to the east of the keel would then be "UME," while a timber found to the west would be "UMW." Each piece will then be given a numerical sub-designation in its order of excavation (e.g. UME 4, UMW 4, UME 5). These should also be drawn in and identified on the master drawing of the feature excavation.

Additional prefixes may need to be created if other ship elements that are not currently visible are discovered. Should this happen, the prefixes will be recorded. All designations should follow the same conventions as the established labels, with ship components identified by their position east or west of the keel, and numerical designators ordered so that the lowest number represents the component closest to the south end of the ship.

Elements of wharf architecture that will be conserved will be similarly labeled. These will receive a prefix of "A" (for "architecture"); labelling will correspond to the master plan drawing.

All labels will be made under the direction of WSSI staff archeologist, Chelsea Cohen using material that is suitable to be submerged for extended periods. Labels should be attached to each individual element before it is removed using a durable, rust-proof or non-oxidizing method of attachment.

Stabilization and Preservation of Ship and Wharf Elements

Given the significance of the ship and wharf architecture, the City of Alexandria wishes to stabilize the ship's wood timbers for later study, display and use. Also, at the request of the City, up to a 15-foot wide portion of the associated wharf architecture (i.e. a portion of Feature 155-2) will also be dismantled (and cut with a chain-saw to an appropriate length) and donated to the City for stabilization and possible future display/ use.

A specialist in maritime history and archaeology with expertise with ship-building techniques, as well as a specialist in archeological conservation techniques, will be consulted and present on-site during the dismantling and removal of the framing and futtocks. The Owner will provide machinery and machine operators to move the wood to a transport vehicle supplied by the City.

WSSI, under contract with the Owner, and the City will provide the labor for mapping, tagging and removing the wood. The Owner will sign and Deed of Gift for the timbers to the City, who will assume ownership of all ship and timber architecture at the time of loading, will efficiently transport such materials offsite, and will be responsible for the scope and fees for transportation, storage, and preservation of all such material. Elements of Features 155 that will not be transported offsite by the City will be discarded.

Laboratory

Artifacts archeologically recovered from the soils associated with all features will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), and cataloged, in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Specialized analyses (faunal, macro-botanical, soil analyses) and artifact conservation will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. As warranted, any soil samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Additionally, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained, if deemed necessary, for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

It may be necessary to retain additional samples if caulking is discovered between hull planking on Feature 155 (Ship #2). Since caulking not only played a valuable role in keeping a ship afloat, it also differed greatly over time and region, such samples are invaluable in analyzing the construction and history of the vessel.

Reporting

The results of the documentary research completed to date, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Features 151 and 155 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report, which will present the combined results of the Archeological Evaluation and Data Recovery Mitigation conducted at the site.

Selected Glossary of Ship and Boat Terms (Steffy 2006)

Amidships. Refers to the middle of the ship. In construction, however, it is often used as an adjective referring to the broadest part of the hull, wherever it may be.

Aft. Toward the stern of the vessel.

Bow.The forward part of a hull, specifically, from the point where the sides curve inward to the stem.

Caulking. Oakum, moss, animal hair, or other fibrous material driven into the seams of planking and covered with pitch to make the seams watertight

Floor. A frame timber that crossed the keel and spanned the bottom; the central piece of a compound frame.

Frame. A transverse timber, or line or assembly of timbers, that described the body shape of a vessel and to which the planking and ceiling were fastened.

Forward. Toward the bow of the vessel.

Futtocks. A frame timber other than a floor timber, half-frame, or top timber; one of the middle pieces of a frame.

Half-frame. A frame whose heel began at or near one side of the keel or deadwood and spanned part or all of that side of the hull. Such frames are typically used in pairs.

Hull Planking. The outer planking of the ship, fastened to the outside of the frames.

Keel. The main longitudinal timber of most hulls, upon which the frames and ends of the hull were mounted.

Keelson. An internal longitudinal timber or line of timbers, mounted atop the frames along the centerline of the keel, that provided additional longitudinal strength to the bottom of the hull.

Molded Dimension. The various dimensions of timbers as seen from the sheer and body views of construction plans. Thus, the vertical surfaces (the sides) of keels, the fore-and-aft sides of the posts, the vertical or athwartships surfaces of frames, etc.

Port. The left side of the vessel when facing forward.

Rabbeting. A groove or cut made in a piece of timber in such a way that the edges of another piece could be fit into it to make a tight joint.

Sacrificial Planking. A thin layer of planking attached to the hull planking below the waterline to serve as a means of keeping teredo worms from consuming the hull planking.

Scarf.An overlapping joint used to connect two timbers or planks without increasing their dimensions.

Sided Dimension. The dimension of an unmolded surface; the distance across an outer frame surface, the forward or after surface of a stem or sternpost, or the upper surface of a keel or keelson

Starboard. The right side of the vessel when facing forward.

Stern. The after end of the vessel.

Treenail. A round or multi-sided piece of hardwood, driven through planks and timbers to connect them. Treenails were employed most frequently in attaching planking to frames, attaching knees to ceiling or beams, and in the scarfing of timbers.

RESOURCE MANAGEMENT PLAN ADDENDUM
FOR FEATURE 151 at ROBINSON LANDING
CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings with associated roads and alleys; underground parking is planned for over half of the site. Exploratory trenching and subsequent site leveling within this area revealed numerous archeological features, including building foundations, an early 19th century road, privies and soil retention systems (cribbing). This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 151, a stone foundation and wood cribbing possibly associated with the Kirk's circa 1790 wharf (Figure 1).

Decisions regarding the significance of this feature were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. The feature retains integrity and therefore can address the initial identification level research question from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice): Will the site contain the remnants 18th and 19th century wharves and structures?

Because Feature 151 has the potential to help us understand the various industries and use of space along the waterfront during the late 18th and early 19th centuries, this feature is considered significant and archeological data recovery is required by the City.

The ultimate goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the feature prior to their destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

Fieldwork and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. Thunderbird Archeology will arrange the donation of the artifacts from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Background Documentary Research

Thomas Fleming purchased Lot 85 from the Trustees of Alexandria on May 9, 1763 and almost certainly began to improve his access to the waterfront by "banking out" and creating more usable land east of the original lot line. It is unclear how much of this work was completed before he sold the property in 1770 to James Kirk, a merchant and later Mayor of Alexandria (Ring and Pippenger 2008: 75). The banking-out of the property likely continued under Kirk's ownership and was extended eastward to near its current size by 1785, when Union Street was established along the waterfront. The eastward extension of Lot 85 became known for several decades as Kirk's Wharf and played a key role in Alexandria's waterfront trade.

Following the death of James Kirk in 1786, his widow Bridget Fleming Kirk, took control of the wharf and other family assets. She placed an advertisement that year, which suggests that in 1786, there were undeveloped lots on the wharf but at least one finished warehouse complete with a cellar:

> "several very eligible WATER LOTS, on the wharf of the late JAMES KIRK; also to be let, a STORE HOUSE on said wharf, consisting of a STORE ready fitted up with 4 rooms and a cellar" [VJAA 13 July 1786: 1].

The specific location of this warehouse is unknown but must be east of The Strand on Parcel 5. The stone foundation designated Feature 151 appears to be located on Kirk's Wharf and may be the warehouse from this advertisement.

Bridget Kirk exercised considerable influence on the late 18th century development of the south end of Alexandria's water-front; she may have been directly responsible for the creation of The Strand when she laid out a 21-foot wide alley across the wharf in 1787 (Ring and Pippenger 2008: 75). With Bridget Kirk's death in 1797 the property was passed to her son, Robert Kirk. The Kirk's maintained possession of the lot for a significant period of time, leasing it to various commercial interests. With the death of Robert Kirk in 1811, his wife Sarah Kirk took over control of the property.

Numerous individuals leased portions of the wharf in the late 18th and early 19th century including Joseph Caverly (1787), a ship carpenter, John Murray and Company (1787), merchants, Andrew Jamieson (1791), baker; Thomas Patten and Company, merchant (1792), Robert Hamilton (1795), merchant; and Robert Henderson (1795), shopkeeper. Later tenants of other Kirk heirs include William Hartshorne (1803-1813) and Joseph Dean (1813-1830), merchants. The wharf was frequently known by the name of the major leaseholder during the period, being called at varying times Kirk's, Caverly's, Hartshorne's, or Hamilton's wharf in documents of the time (Pulliam 2006: 1 Lot 85).

In 1803, William Hartshorne purchased a Mutual Assurance Society fire insurance policy for three warehouses located on Parcel 5 (see Figure 2 on proceeding page). The three warehouses were described as "situated between the wharf of Col. Robt. T. Hooe and that of a lumb yard belonging to Col. Hooe," suggesting that the warehouses were located in the northern part of the wharf (as also indicated by the Mutual Assurance documents for Hooe's warehouse on Lot 77 Parcel 6, which alluded to a warehouse of Hartshorne's standing adjacent to the south), and that a portion of the wharf served as a lumber yard. The insurance document also noted that five wooden houses were situated near the insured buildings, indicating several other standing buildings on the wharf.

Parcel 5, formerly known as "Kirk's Wharf", was sold to Henry Daingerfield on January 4, 1830 by Sarah Kirk (Alexandria Deed Book S-2:107); Dangerfield sold the property to James Green in May 1843 (Alexandria Deed Book D-3:79). No occupant is recorded in the 1850 tax record for the "House and Wharf" east of The Strand, suggesting that they were used by directly by Green's business rather than leased. Additional research into subleases and tax information could provide additional information regarding the ownership and use of the wharf and of Feature 151.

Feature 151

Feature 151 is a stone foundation that measures approximately 30 feet square (32 by 27 feet) with walls roughly 1.5 feet in width (Figure 3 and 4). The foundation is divided into three bays by north-south stone walls that extend from the southern wall but terminated before reaching the norther wall – leaving a four-foot-wide gap or passageway. The two western "rooms" are roughly seven feet in width and the easternmost is 10 feet wide.

Two excavation blocks (Block 1 and Block 2) were excavated within the feature during the Phase II evaluation of Feature 151 (see Figure 4). Both units were excavated to evaluate the extent to which the interior fills were intact and to determine if an occupation level was present. The fill layers in both evaluation test units exhibited a late 18th to mid-19th century date range. Most of these artifacts were recovered from the Fill 1 horizon, located above the cobble layer, and largely consisted of bottle glass. Although some free-blown (pre-1860) and contact mold (1810-1880) were identified, most of the glass was too patinated or deteriorated to be diagnostic. The full inventory of artifacts recovered from these two excavation blocks, as well as artifacts collected from the surface of the feature is attached to the end of this management plan. The remaining horizons contained a very low artifact density. Descriptions of the stratigraphy observed in each test unit are presented below.

Block 1 was placed in northwest corner of Feature 151 to determine the depth of the foundation, as well as the integrity of the fill soils. Fill 1 appears to represent a destruction stratum and contains large amounts wood fragments with pine tar and resin. Most of the artifacts recovered from Block 1 came from this horizon and consisted primarily of bottle glass. Although some was free-blown (pre-1860) and contact mold (1810-1880) were identified, most of the glass was too patinated or deteriorated to be diagnostic. Datable ceramics also from Fill 1 include hard paste Chinese export porcelain dating to between 1775 and 1810. Fill 2 consisted of cobble stones and is thought to have been the floor of the structure. No artifacts were recovered from this horizon. A stone foundation footer was uncovered in Fill 3, nearly directly under the level of the cobble stone floor. Lenses of wood chips, evidence of tidal flats, and a very low artifact density from Fills 3-6 indicate that these underlying fills are a result of historic infilling and predate the use of the structure.

- Fill 1: 0 – 0.15 feet below surface – [10YR 2/1] black silt, coal and wood inclusions, pine tar throughout
- Fill 2: 0.15 – 0.35 feet below surface – [10YR 3/2] very dark grayish brown sand, cobble inclusions
- Fill 3: 0.35 – 0.6 feet below surface – [10YR 2/1] black silt, pine tar throughout
- Fill 4: 0.6 –0.75 feet below surface – [10YR 4/3] dark brown sandy clay mottled with [10YR 2/1] black sandy clay
- Fill 5: 0.75 – 1.15 feet below surface – [10YR 4/4] dark yellowish brown sandy clay loam
- Fill 6: 1.15 – 1.4 feet below surface – [10YR 5/6] yellowish brown sandy clay loam

Block 2 (Figures 7-9)

Block 2 was placed along the eastern wall of Feature 151 and was designed to determine the depth of the foundation, as well as the integrity of the fill soils. Unlike Block 1, there were only two distinguishable fills in Block 2. Due to the high concentration of pine tar in Block 2, Fill 1 was intermingled with the cobble stone layer identified as Fill 2 in Block 1. The stratum appears to represent a destruction fill and possible collapse of the superstructure due to the boards recovered. Just as with Block 1, most of the artifacts from Block 2 were recovered from Fill 1 and consisted primarily of bottle glass dating to a similarly discrete time period. Fill 2 in this block is likely the result of historic infilling and contains lenses of wood chips and a very low artifact density.

Fill 1: 0 – 1.0 feet below surface – [10YR 3/1] very dark gray sandy clay loam, wood and coal inclusions

Proposed Field Methodology

Field Investigations

Mitigation of the feature will involve removing the Fill 1 destruction horizon to expose the cobble stone floor. One 6x3 test units will be excavated against the associated stacked wood cribbing system. Following completion of these test units, the surrounding soil will be mechanically removed to determine the depth and extent of the cribbing. Feature 155 is a scuttled ship and associated cribbing that appears to be associated with the Feature 151 cribbing and may underlie the stone foundation of Feature 151. Photogrammetry will be conducted on the entire soil retention cribbing system, as deemed necessary.

All features encountered during the excavation of the test units described above or encountered during mechanical excavation and removal of the feature, will be fully exposed, documented, and excavated as described below before being removed.

All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle.

If any additional soil features identified within the foundation, such as a builder's trench or trash pits, those features will be bisected and WSSI archeologists will hand excavate one half of the feature and dry-screen the soil through 1/4-inch mesh. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Laboratory Analysis

Archeological artifacts recovered from the soils associated with Feature 151 will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), and cataloged, in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Specialized analyses (faunal, macro-botanical, soil analyses) and artifact conservation will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. As warranted, the soil samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Additionally, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained, if deemed necessary, for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Reporting

The results of the documentary research completed to date, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Feature 151 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report, which will present the combined results of the Archeological Evaluation and Data Recovery Mitigation conducted at the site.

ARTIFACT INVENTORY

Feature 151, Block 1, Fill 1

Ceramics

1 hard paste porcelain sherd (Chinese export), undecorated, base fragment, flat vessel, indeterminate base diameter
1 hard paste porcelain sherd (Chinese export), underglaze blue hand painted floral decoration interior, flat vessel (1775-1810, MACL 2018)
2 redware sherds (mend), handle fragments, dark brown glazed, hollow vessel, tar coated

Glass

1 olive green cylindrical bottle sherd, base fragment, free-blown, bulged heel, dome-shaped push-up, sand pontil, wine bottle style, base diameter 91.3 mm, patinated (pre -1840, Magid 2010)
3 olive green cylindrical bottle sherds, base fragments, heavily patinated
18 olive green cylindrical bottle sherds, free-blown, patinated (pre-1860)
19 olive green cylindrical bottle sherds, patinated
114 olive green cylindrical bottle sherds, very heavily patinated
7 unidentified olive green spalls, patinated

Metal

1 wrought 8d nail, rosehead, spatulate tip, pulled, tar coated
1 wrought nail fragment, pulled, tar coated
1 wrought nail fragment, rosehead, point tip, clinched
1 wrought nail fragment, unidentified head, pulled, tar coated
1 wrought nail fragment, unidentified head, spatulate tip, pulled, tar coated
2 wrought nail fragments, roseheads, pulled, tar coated
2 wrought nail fragments, unidentified heads, tar coated

Miscellaneous

1 bone fragment, tar coated, 3.6 grams
3 coke fragments (discarded in lab), 4.8 grams
1 wooden bung, tar coated one side, 33.1 grams

ROBINSON LANDING, CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings with associated roads and alleys; underground parking is planned for over half of the site. Exploratory trenching and subsequent site leveling within this area revealed numerous archeological features, including stone foundations, brick foundations, an early 19th century road, and privies. This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 157, a wooden box privy (Figure 1).

Decisions regarding the significance of this feature were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. The southern wall of Feature 157 at current grade has been disturbed but the feature likely retains good overall integrity and therefore can address research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice):

> can we attribute any historic remains (features or artifacts) to the various industries on the block- blacksmiths, carpenters, coopers, grocers, etc? To the domestic component of the block?

Because Feature 157 has the potential to help us understand the domestic lifeways and various industries along the waterfront during the late 18th and early 19th centuries, they are considered significant and archeological data recovery is required by the City.

The ultimate goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the features prior to their destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change on the basis of findings during the course of the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

Fieldwork and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. Thunderbird Archeology will arrange the donation of the artifacts from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Field Investigations

Feature 157 is wooden box privy that measures approximately 4.2 feet by 1.7 feet (see Figure 1); it is similar in appearance to the privy designated Feature 150. Based on proximity, Feature 157 appears to be directly associated with the dwellings along Wolfe street and may provide significant data about the inhabitants of those structures, as well as comparative data to the other privies found on the site.

Feature 157 will be bisected and 50% of the feature will first be excavated in either arbitrary or stratigraphic levels, at the discretion of the archeologist in charge. The soils will be dry-screened unless contexts with superior integrity or night soil deposits are encountered; these will be water-screened on-site through 1/16" window mesh cloth. Previous excavations of wooden box privies suggest approximately 2 to 2.5 feet of nightsoil will be present.

All appropriate drawings and photographs will be recorded for plan views and profiles. Soil horizons will be classified according to standard pedological designations (A, Ap, B, C, etc.) and described using the Munsell Soil Color Chart designations and soil textures will be described using the United States Department of Agriculture soil texture triangle. A one-gallon soil sample will be retained from each soil horizon containing contexts with superior integrity or night soil deposits from the remaining half.

Recovered artifacts will be bagged and labeled by soil horizon. Whole bricks will be measured (length by width by height), weighed, and discarded in the field. Brick, mortar, and oyster shell fragments will be weighed and discarded in the field.

Laboratory

Archeological artifacts will be cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), cataloged, labeled and packaged in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Specialized analyses (faunal, macro-botanical, soil analyses) and artifact conservation will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. Faunal analysis can be useful in the determination of economic and subsistence patterns of the site's inhabitants. As warranted, the soil samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Additionally, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained, if deemed necessary, for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Reporting

The results of the privy excavations, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses, and documentary research conducted to date will be integrated be integrated into the Final Archeological Report.

FOR FEATURE 159 (Ship #3) at ROBINSON LANDING,
CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA
May 9, 2018

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings with associated roads and alleys; underground parking is planned for over half of the site. Exploratory trenching and subsequent site leveling within this area revealed numerous archeological features, including stone foundations, brick foundations, an early 19th century road, privies and soil retention systems (cribbing and bulkhead wharves).

This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 159, the remains of a large wooden vessel which appear to be integrated into bulkhead wharf architecture to the north and potentially to the west (Feature 163) of the vessel (Figure 1). Feature 159 measures approximately 50 feet in length by an estimated 25 feet in width but extends beyond the limits of the proposed construction impacts for an underground parking garage. The feature also appears to extend beyond the property boundary and into the City of Alexandria right of way for Wolfe Street.

Decisions regarding the significance of the feature were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. The feature retains integrity and therefore can address the initial identification level research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice): Will the site contain the remnants of 18th and early 19th century wharves and structures? Additional research questions are presented below.

The goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the feature prior to its destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change based on findings during the course of the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

Fieldwork and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation.

Documentary Research

According to our documentary research, the portion of the property containing this feature lies within Parcel 5 of Town Lot 85.

Lot 85: Parcel 5 Wharf

The portion of Lot 85 lying east of The Strand is designated Parcel 5 (Figure 1). Although the actual extents are unknown at this time, at least a portion of this parcel served as the active wharf-front from at least the mid-1780s. A review of historic maps shows that this immediate area was not banked-out until the 1840s. The 1798 Gilpin map shows the corner of the site – and Feature 159 – within the Potomac River. The 1842 Young map and the 1845 Ewing map are the first to show the land banked out this far.

Numerous individuals leased portions of the wharf in the late 18th and early 19th century including Joseph Caverly (1787), a ship carpenter, John Murray and Company (1787), merchants, Andrew Jamieson (1791), baker; Thomas Patten and Company, merchant (1792), Robert Hamilton (1795), merchant; and Robert Henderson (1795), shopkeeper. Later tenants of other Kirk heirs include William Hartshorne (1803-1813) and Joseph Dean (1813-1830), merchants. The wharf was frequently known by the name of the major leaseholder during the period, being called at varying times Kirk's, Caverly's, Hartshorne's, or Hamilton's wharf in documents of the time (Pulliam 2006, n.d.).

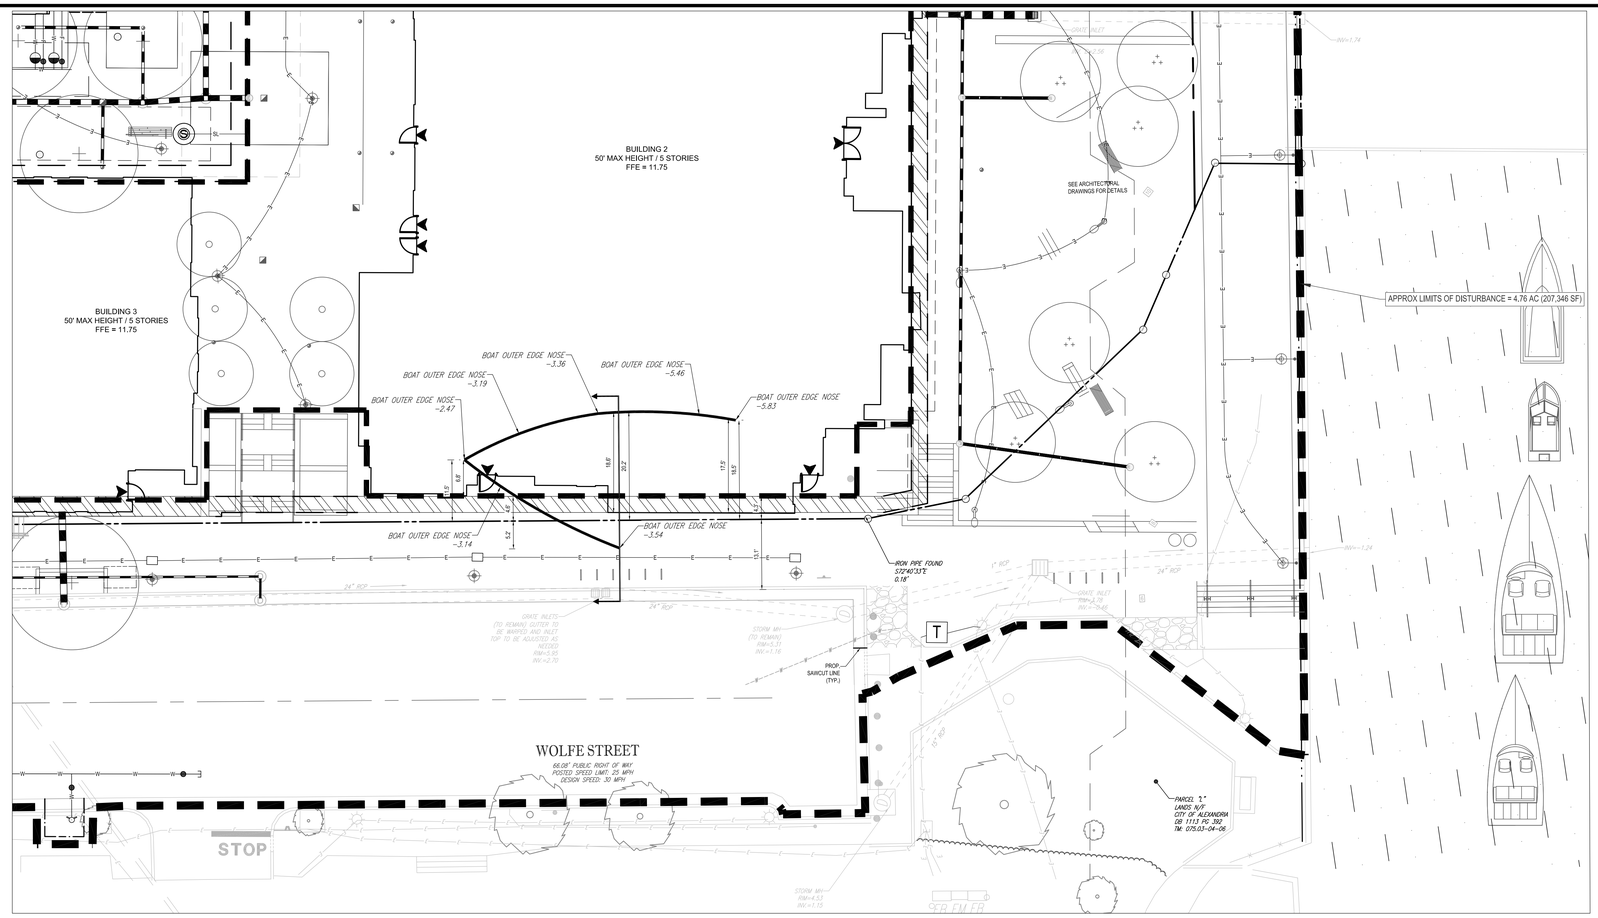
Following the death of James Kirk in 1786, his widow Bridget Fleming Kirk, took control of the wharf and other family assets. She placed an advertisement that year, which suggests that in 1786, there were undeveloped lots on the wharf but at least one finished warehouse complete with a cellar:

> "several very eligible WATER LOTS, on the wharf of the late JAMES KIRK; also to be let, a STORE HOUSE on said wharf, consisting of a STORE ready fitted up with 4 rooms and a cellar" [VJAA 13 July 1786: 1].

The specific location of this advertised warehouse is unknown but may be the stone foundation designated Feature 151.

[1] Note that elements of ship and wharf architecture are not considered artifacts. These items will be donated to the City but will not be delivered to the City; specific treatment of such items is detailed later in this document.

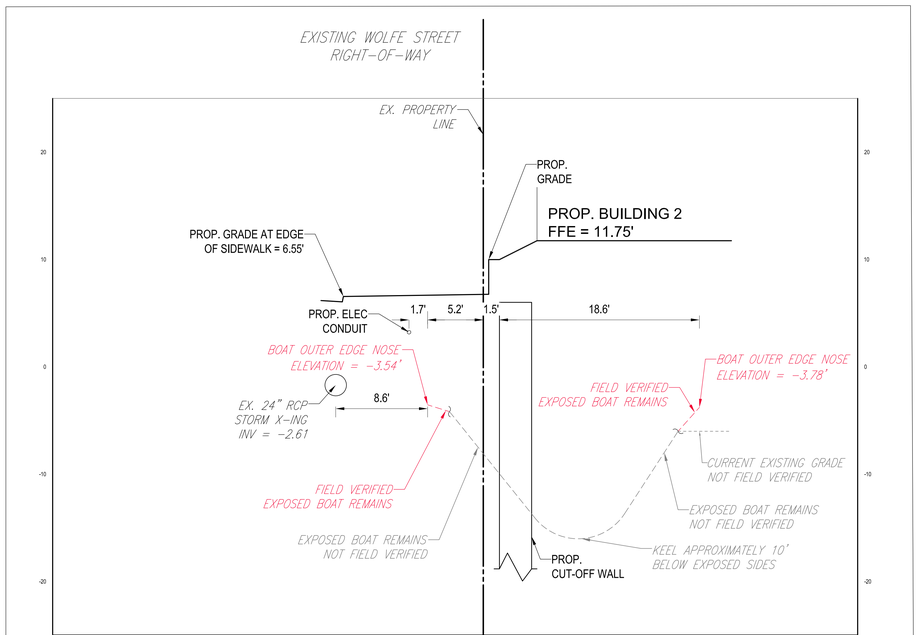
Bridget Kirk exercised considerable influence on the late 18th century development of the south end of Alexandria's water-front; she may have been directly responsible for the creation of The Strand when she laid out a 21-foot wide alley across the wharf in 1787 (Ring and Pippenger 2008: 75). With Bridget Kirk's death in 1797 the property was passed to her son, Robert Kirk. The Kirk's maintained possession of the lot for a significant period of time, leasing it to various commercial interests. With the death of Robert Kirk in 1811, his wife Sarah Kirk took over control of the property.



Parcel 5 was sold by Sarah Kirk to Henry Daingerfield on January 4, 1830 (Alexandria Deed Book S-2:107). Tax records in 1830 list Daingerfield as owner of the "Warehouses and Wharf" by the corner of Wolfe Street and The Strand, and Joshua Yeaton, a merchant, as an occupant. Dangerfield sold the property to James Green in May 1843 (Alexandria Deed Book D-3:79) and it was subsumed into his expansive lumberyard and other business operations on the Robinson Landing property. No occupant is recorded in the 1850 tax record for the "House and Wharf" east of The Strand, suggesting that they were not leased to another individual.

Additional research into subleases and tax information could provide additional information regarding the construction, the ownership and use of the Lot 85.

Feature 159: Ship/Bulkhead Wharf Soil Retention System



Wetland Studies and Solutions, Inc. archeologists discovered the partial remains of a large ship (Feature 159-1), which appears to be integrated into bulkhead wharf structures, which have not been completely exposed or identified yet. The visible elements of the ship include futtocks, hull planking, and elements of the bow portion of the vessel; and currently measures approximately 50 feet in length by an estimated 25 feet in width (Figures 2 and 3; see Figure 1). The ship extends to the east beyond the limits of the proposed construction impacts for the underground parking garage, and to the south, beyond the property boundary and into the City of Alexandria right of way for Wolfe Street.

Although the ship has not yet been completed exposed, the ship is larger and more complete (or intact) than the other two ships at the current site and when compared to the ship excavated at the Indigo Hotel in 2015. Maritime archeologists and other experts were consulted immediately to examine the visible portions of the ship, which include large sections of the starboard and port side of the ship and a nearly complete bow section. At first glance, all four of the ships (including the Indigo Hotel ship) appear to be of similar construction, with tightly spaced futtocks and similar wooden and iron fastenings. However, the hull planks of Feature 159 appear to be twice as thick than the other ships, which suggests this may be an ocean-going vessel, rather than confined to coastal waters. Visible elements of the bow were tentatively identified as garboard strakes, a cutwater apron and a cant frame, and can be compared to the nearly complete bow section of Feature 155 (Ship #2), which has already been carefully been dismantled and removed from the site for additional study. The hull also appears to be covered with intact ceiling planks, which were not present in Feature 155 (Ship #2). Because of the completeness of both sides of the ship, it may be possible to calculate the turn of the bilge, or curvature of the hull. This would help WSSI and other maritime archeologists estimate the cargo capacity, a clue to the type of ship this may have been.

Wharf architecture, comprised of at least four to five large un-milled logs, have been laid perpendicular across the sides of the ship (see Figure 3). They have not been survey located or mapped at this time. The southern ends of these beams extend under Wolfe Street into unexcavated areas. It is possible that they are secured to the ship or to a yet unexposed (yet theorized to be present) bulkhead wharf wall beneath Wolfe Street. Additional wharf architecture is located within currently unexcavated portions to the east of the ship, as several east-west aligned planks and posts are visible in the eastern profile of the excavation cut. This bulkhead feature may be repairs to or related to the additional expansion of Lot 85 in this area.

Feature 159-2 (see Figure 1), a large milled timber that measures 30 feet in length and was exposed in the floor of the current excavation between 7.0 and -8.8 feet in elevation. The timber does not appear to connect Feature 159-1 with the larger wharf (Feature 161) to the west.

Additional archeological work is needed to expose and evaluate the feature. Due to its current location in the corner of the proposed garage, it is currently unsafe to excavate, and engineered controls must be put into place. After investigating multiple options as documented in a May 4, 2018 memorandum from Greg Griffin to Eleanor Breen, the most feasible plan is to install the permanent support of excavation system: the garage cut off wall.

An estimated 40% of the ship of the port or south side of the ship will be left in situ outside of the cut-off wall after construction.

Garage Cut-Off Wall

The proposed cut-off wall for the underground parking garage will be constructed using the Trench cutting and Remixing Deep (TRD) method of wall construction in which the walls are "mixed-in-place using a specialized vertical cutter post mounted on a base crawler machine".

According the Hayward-Baker (see attached brochure), the 100-ton TRD machine "advances horizontally along the wall alignment while the cutter post [resembling a large chain saw] cuts and mixes soil in situ with the cement-based binder slurry". (Figures 4-6). The machine begins by vertically cutting and lowering sections of the post until the depth of the wall is reached, and then moves horizontally. The entire soil profile is blended through this vertical mixing action.

The TRD walls are designed to be "installed in soils ranging from soft organics to dense sand with cobbles and some rock formation" although "stiff soils and obstructions are sometimes pre-drilled ahead of the soil mixing process."

The TRD machine will have an obvious adverse effect on the ship feature within the three-foot wide impact area for the wall. Although unknown, the disturbance on the timbers lying outside of the wall area is not anticipated to be as severe and will be lessened or mitigated as much as possible through the following procedures, based on consultation with City of Alexandria engineers, maritime archeologists and conservation experts from Texas A & M and the Maryland Archaeology Conservation Lab, and EYA construction sub-consultants.

Prior to the onset of TRD wall construction, the ships will be backfilled with several feet of sand to fill in all exposed crevices, covered with filter fabric to demarcate its location when archeological excavation resumes, and backfilled with additional fill soil to a grade of 6 feet (roughly level with the grade of Wolfe Street). The exposed portions of the ship range in elevation from -2.0 feet to -5.5 feet from west to east; therefore 8-12 feet of fill will be placed on the feature to establish a secure platform for the TRD rig. The weight of the TRD machine will be evenly distributed using construction mats.

The self-compacting sand that will cover the ship, capped by an additional 3-9 feet of soil and the even distribution of weight of the TRD machine, will serve to lessen potential displacement of timbers during the construction of the cut-off wall.

Research Questions

To better understand the individuals that created and used this portion of the city waterfront and their place within the contexts of time and space, archeological data from this feature will be compared to data from similar features within the site, the city of Alexandria and the larger region. Research questions pertain not only to the original use of the ship, but to its integration of the ship into wharf architecture. Finally, subsumed within the areas of research interest is the temporal framework within which the overall site evolved. Dendrochronology will play a key role in determining the sequence of infilling and wharf construction in this area.

1. What can analysis tell us about the feature's origin, date of construction, use and function? Was the ship originally built to haul heavy cargo? Or was this a military ship?

2. The ship appears to have been used as the framework as landfill. Was it purposely attached to wharf architecture?

3. The ship appears to be located outside of the 1798 shoreline. Was it scuttled and dragged into place earlier than 1798? And then infilled?

4. What types of material were used to fill the ship? Cobbles, sand, trash? And is there a difference with the fill outside of the ship?

Proposed Field Methodology

Following the construction of the cut-off wall, the remnants of the ship will be exposed in its entirety and documented with notes, photographs, a scaled drawing and profiles. The feature complex will be survey located and elevations will be recorded.

Fieldwork will be conducted by WSSI archeologists under contract to the Owner, with the assistance of WSSI sub-consultants, City staff and City consultants and City volunteers, if available. The City shall provide proof of insurance and to the extent permitted by law, will hold the Owner harmless for all work performed onsite by City-affiliated personnel.

Michael Worthington of the Oxford Tree-Ring Laboratory, under subcontract to WSSI, will assess the condition of all wood features, and collect samples of the wharf architecture and the ship for dendroarcheological dating and wood identification.

Color 3D photogrammetry will also be captured of the ship/wharf along all vertical and horizontal planes and conform to current photogrammetry methods/standards and best practices. These photogrammetric recordings not only serve to document the ship and associated wharf architecture for archeological analysis, but to create comprehensive 3D models that can be used in publishing, public outreach, and historical studies of the site even after the features have been removed or covered.

Given the significance of the ship and wharf architecture, the City of Alexandria wishes to stabilize the ship's wood timbers for future use. Due to the fragile nature of the resource, the elements of the feature will be constantly kept wet while exposed and covered when not being directly examined.

A digital camera with no fewer than 16 megapixels will be used to document the feature. Photographs will be taken in both RAW and JPEG formats. Photographs will be taken from an appropriate distance, dependent upon camera resolution, from the subject to ensure each pixel represents no more than 2mm. To produce the best results, photogrammetry control points will be located using conventional survey methods.

Images for photogrammetry will be captured in the same layers used to excavate the ship. For this feature, up to five (5) rounds of photogrammetry are anticipated to fully record the ship and related portions of the wharf architecture. The first will capture portions of the wharf architecture and the excavated ship in situ prior to any removal of any elements. The second will be taken after the removal of the ceiling planks. The third will capture framing; the fourth the hull planking and the firth will capture the sacrificial planking.

Agisoft Photoscan will be used to produce the 3D models. All photographs will be reviewed for clarity and image quality before processing. The model will be set to the Virginia State Plane North US feet coordinate system. Horizontal Datum will be set to NAD83, and Vertical datum will be set to NAVD88. Both a point cloud and a 3D textured surface model will be created. Initial processing of image alignment and sparse point cloud will be performed to ensure adequate photo-documentation prior to removal.
All photographs will be submitted with original and unchanged EXIF data. Metadata for control points used in each 3D model will submitted in table format. Original point cloud data will be submitted in .las format and the 3D model will be submitted in .obj file format. The 3D model face count will be reduced to produce a 3D PDF for report submission. (This size model will be adequate for public outreach in various platforms and could be accessed by multiple portable electronic devices.)

WSSI archeologists, with the assistance of City staff and consultants, will excavate and dismantle the ship. The soils beneath the ceiling planks and between the ship's floor timbers and futtocks will be archeologically excavated; observed artifacts will be collected and bagged with provenience information correlated to adjacent timber elements and bagged by ship layer. If contexts with superior integrity are encountered, soil samples will be retained for flotation and macro-botanicals analyses. Additionally, samples of ballast (including coral) will be collected from inside intact contexts within this ship.

Specialized analyses (faunal, macro-botanical, soil analyses, ballast studies) and artifact conservation will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. As warranted, the soil samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Additionally, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained, if deemed necessary, for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

Upon completion of the soil removal from the ship, the hull remains will be recorded and the ship excavated/dismantled, as described below. Recording the hull remains in situ is essential for future study of the ship as dimensions of the timbers can be an indicator of both the size and the function of the vessel. A drawing of the feature will be completed as a master plan for the location of timbers and other key construction elements. This plan will be used to note the identification codes of the ship elements and will aid greatly in later efforts to reconstruct the ship, if warranted.

Once the necessary labels are attached, the keelson if it is present will be removed, followed by the frames, the hull planking, and the keel. Wooden wedges and rubber mallets will be used to manually loosen all hull elements. This method is preferable as it minimizes damage and potential breakage during the excavation process. Should this method fail to properly separate the remains, other methods including steel chisels and limited use of saws will be employed. The specifications for all tools, including the size and material of the chisels and the blade width of any saws, will be recorded to ensure complete data for the conservation and reconstruction process.

No cuts should need to be made to the floors or futtocks, as these are sized below the maximum length of the provided truck bed. Any cuts made to the hull strakes should be done between planks to minimize damage to the planks, themselves. Cuts to the keelson and keel should be made only as necessary under the supervision of an archaeological conservator and maritime archaeologist to ensure no significant loss of data and the smallest possible visual seams. If rabbeting and/or a scarf is found along the keel, this should be measured, recorded photographically and added into the feature sketch before the keel sections are taken apart. Insofar as it is possible and does not represent a danger to the crew or the hull remains, themselves, treenails, spikes, and nails should be left in place in the ship timbers and hull planking.

Labeling

During the excavation process prior the removal of any ship element, each timber in a layer will be assigned a unique identification code. Labeling of the ship remains will follow a process consistent to the one outlined by Richard J. Steffy in Wooden Shipbuilding and the Interpretation of Shipwrecks (2006), wherein an alphanumeric code will be used based on the location and function of the timbers. The labeling will be directed by WSSI staff archeologist, Chelsea Cohen. Each timber element will be documented starting at the northern end of the ship. Frame designation will be based on their position relative to the keel. Floor timbers that span the keel will be labeled as "FEFW" with the first visible timber taking the designation "FEFW 1." All subsequent timbers will be numerically grouped in sets of floors, first futtocks, and half frames. Those to the north of the keel will be labeled as "FN" and receive a hyphenated sub-designate odd number (e.g. FN 14-1, FN 14-3). Those that sit south of the keel will be labeled as "FS" and receive a hyphenated sub-designate even number (e.g. FS 14-2, FS 14-4). As it is not currently known what, if any, joining exists between frame timbers, these numerical sets are not meant to serve an analytical purpose, but rather to keep ordered the timbers as they are removed. Should any timbers break during the process of excavation, they will receive an alphabetical sub-designate to note their position on the frame, with "a" representing the fragment closest to the keel (e.g. FW 14-2a, 14-2b).

Hull planking will be labeled in much the same manner, starting with the innermost strakes of planking (the garboard strakes) and working outward and upward. Planks to the north of the ship's keel (relative to a starting point at the wharf wall) will receive a designation of "PN," and a numerical indicator, with the garboard strake representing "PN 1." Individual planks will each receive a sub-designate from south to north (e.g. PN 1-1, PN 1-2). Planks to the south of the keel will receive a designation of "PS" and follow the same numbering and sub-designation pattern. Any hull planks that break as they are excavated will receive an alphabetical sub-designate, going in alphabetical order of the fragment's place relative to the south end of the ship (e.g. 1-1a, 1-1b, 1-1c, etc). Any breaks should also be lightly drawn into the site sketch.

Keel remains will receive a designation of "K." As it is likely that the keel will need to be carefully separated into multiple pieces in order to facilitate transportation, each section of the keel should be given a subsequent numerical designation noting its position, with "K1" at the south end of the ship at the wharf wall. The keelson will be documented in the same way using a designation of "KS." Any breaks that may naturally or manually occur in the keel should be lightly sketched into the site drawing to ensure accurate records and reconstruction.

Any hull remains found outside of the ship will receive a prefix of "UM" (for unidentified member), with a designation added based on the side of the keel to which the object was found. A timber found to the east of the keel would then be "UME," while a timber found to the west would be "UMW." Each piece will then be given a numerical sub-designation in its order of excavation (e.g. UME 4, UMW 4, UME 5). These should also be drawn in and identified on the master drawing of the feature excavation.

Additional prefixes may need to be created if other ship elements that are not currently visible are discovered. Should this happen, the prefixes will be recorded. All designations should follow the same conventions as the established labels, with ship components identified by their position east or west of the keel, and numerical designators ordered so that the lowest number represents the component closest to the south end of the ship.

Elements of wharf architecture that will be conserved will be similarly labeled. These will receive a prefix of "A" (for "architecture"); labelling will correspond to the master plan drawing.

All labels will be made under the direction of WSSI staff archeologist, Chelsea Cohen using material that is suitable to be submerged for extended periods. Labels should be attached to each individual element before it is removed using a durable, rust-proof or non-oxidizing method of attachment.

Preservation and Conservation of Ship and Wharf Elements

Given the significance of the ship and wharf architecture, the City of Alexandria wishes to stabilize the ship's wood timbers for future study and potential use.

A specialist in maritime history and archaeology with expertise with ship-building techniques, as well as a specialist in archeological conservation techniques, will be consulted and present on-site during the dismantling and removal of the ship components. The Owner will provide machinery and machine operators to move the wood to a transport vehicle supplied by the City.

WSSI, under contract with the Owner, and the City will provide the labor for mapping, tagging and removing the wood. The Owner will sign and Deed of Gift for the timbers to the City, who will assume ownership of all ship and timber architecture at the time of loading, will efficiently transport such materials offsite, and will be responsible for the scope and fees for transportation, storage, and conservation of all such material. Elements of Feature 159 that will not be transported offsite by the City will be discarded.

Laboratory

Artifacts archeologically recovered from the soils associated with all features will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), and cataloged, in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Specialized analyses (faunal, macro-botanical, soil analyses) and artifact conservation will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. As warranted, any soil samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Additionally, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained, if deemed necessary, for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants.

It may be necessary to retain additional samples if caulking is discovered between hull planking on Feature 155 (Ship #2). Since caulking not only played a valuable role in keeping a ship afloat, it also differed greatly over time and region, such samples are invaluable in analyzing the construction and history of the vessel.

Reporting

The results of the documentary research completed to date, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Feature 159 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report, which will present the combined results of the Archeological Evaluation and Data Recovery Mitigation conducted at the site.

Selected Glossary of Ship and Boat Terms (Steffy 2006)

Amidships. Refers to the middle of the ship. In construction, however, it is often used as an adjective referring to the broadest part of the hull, wherever it may be.

Aft. Toward the stern of the vessel.

Bow.The forward part of a hull, specifically, from the point where the sides curve inward to the stem.

Caulking. Oakum, moss, animal hair, or other fibrous material driven into the seams of planking and covered with pitch to make the seams watertight

Floor. A frame timber that crossed the keel and spanned the bottom; the central piece of a compound frame.

Frame. A transverse timber, or line or assembly of timbers, that described the body shape of a vessel and to which the planking and ceiling were fastened.

Forward. Toward the bow of the vessel.

Futtocks. A frame timber other than a floor timber, half-frame, or top timber; one of the middle pieces of a frame.

Half-frame. A frame whose heel began at or near one side of the keel or deadwood and spanned part or all of that side of the hull. Such frames are typically used in pairs.

Hull Planking. The outer planking of the ship, fastened to the outside of the frames.

Keel. The main longitudinal timber of most hulls, upon which the frames and ends of the hull were mounted.

Keelson. An internal longitudinal timber or line of timbers, mounted atop the frames along the centerline of the keel, that provided additional longitudinal strength to the bottom of the hull.

Molded Dimension. The various dimensions of timbers as seen from the sheer and body views of construction plans. Thus, the vertical surfaces (the sides) of keels, the fore-and-aft sides of the posts, the vertical or athwartships surfaces of frames, etc.

Port. The left side of the vessel when facing forward.

Rabbeting. A groove or cut made in a piece of timber in such a way that the edges of another piece could be fit into it to make a tight joint.

Sacrificial Planking. A thin layer of planking attached to the hull planking below the waterline to serve as a means of keeping teredo worms from consuming the hull planking.

Scarf. An overlapping joint used to connect two timbers or planks without increasing their dimensions.

Sided Dimension. The dimension of an unmolded surface; the distance across an outer frame surface, the forward or after surface of a stem or sternpost, or the upper surface of a keel or keelson

Starboard. The right side of the vessel when facing forward.

Stern. The after end of the vessel.

Treenail. A round or multi-sided piece of hardwood, driven through planks and timbers to connect them. Treenails were employed most frequently in attaching planking to frames, attaching knees to ceiling or beams, and in the scarfing of timbers.

FOR FEATURE 160 at ROBINSON LANDING,
CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA
May 8, 2018

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings with associated roads and alleys; underground parking is planned for over half of the site. Exploratory trenching and subsequent site leveling within this area revealed numerous archeological features, including stone foundations, brick foundations, an early 19th century road, privies and soil retention systems (cribbing and bulkhead wharves).

This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 160, a bulkhead wharf that runs parallel to Duke Street and extends between Feature 200 and Feature 155-2 (Figure 1).

Decisions regarding the significance of the feature were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. The feature retains integrity and therefore can address the initial identification level research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice): Will the site contain the remnants of 18th and early 19th century wharves and structures? Feature 160 also has the potential to help us understand the various commercial industries that were constructed on the wharf and use of space along the early waterfront. This feature is considered significant and archeological data recovery is required by the City.

The goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the feature prior to its destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions and to understand construction methods and techniques. Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change based on findings during the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

Fieldwork and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered as a result of the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79. The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. Thunderbird Archeology will arrange the donation of the artifacts (if any) from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Background Research

Point Lumley and Lot 77

The public land at Point Lumley was first leased in the 1750s to Thomas Fleming, a ship builder, although the first recorded lease that could be located was dated 1774 (Pulliam 2014). The earliest written account of Thomas Fleming's dock for shipbuilding at Point Lumley was observed by the Reverend Andrew Burnaby on a visit to Alexandria in October 1759:

> The town is built upon an arc of this bay; at one extremity of which is a wharf; at the other a dock for building *f*hips; with water *fuff*iciently deep to launch a ve*ff*el of any rate or magnitude [Burnaby 1963:40].

The shipbuilding dock that Burnaby referred to was Thomas Fleming's. Current evidence indicates that Thomas Fleming was in operation by October 1759, and possibly as early as the founding of Alexandria.

The construction and launching of one of Fleming's ships, the Hero was witnessed by George Washington in 1760, who observed that very little was required to build a ship in terms of structures – just the use of a double sawpit covered by a shelter or house to permit work in all weather, a tool shed, and a few support buildings (Shomette 1985:35). Therefore, the landscape features associated with Fleming's operation might have consisted simply of a large pit for hull making and a few storage sheds (Shomette 1985:36; Pulliam 2007:2).

Parcels 3 and 4 represent land created by Thomas Fleming through banking-out or wharf construction by 1774, but still owned by the town (see Figure 1). These lot extensions may have been the location for secondary structures or wharves related to Thomas Fleming's shipbuilding enterprise.

In 1761, because of his "usefulne*f*s as a Shipe Carpenter & his inclination to serve this Town", the Trustees of Alexandria granted Thomas Fleming the right to build a 44 by 24 foot warehouse on an unspecified amount of leased land "under the Bank of Point Lumley as near the Bank as convenient" (Ring and Pippenger 2008:147). Fleming never built this warehouse, however, and in 1769, Fleming and the Alexandria Trustees voided the lease (Ring and Pippenger 2008:161).

The entry in the town records notes that Fleming "is at present supplied with a water lot," likely in reference to his purchase of Lot 85 in 1763 (Fairfax County Deed Book F:435); the implication is that Fleming purchased and banked out Lot 85 sufficiently to provide him access to the river channel without the need to lease the additional land on Point Lumley, and further that he had likely constructed , or intended to construct, a wharf and at least one warehouse on that land by 1769. It is unclear how much of this work was completed before he sold the property in 1770 to James Kirk, a merchant and later Mayor of Alexandria (Ring and Pippenger 2008: 75).

In 1770, Fleming purchased Lot 77 located adjacent to Point Lumley to the west (Fairfax County Deed Book J:76). He made similar improvements to Lot 77, which was expanded in a narrow 25-foot-wide spur extending from the southeast corner and may originally have served to provide river access to the remainder of the lot. It is not certain how Fleming made use of the portion of Lot 77 lying within the study area.

It appears that despite the voided lease for Fleming's warehouse in 1769, Fleming and his shipbuilding operation maintained a presence at Point Lumley through the 1770s, but the extent and specific location he occupied are not known. It was around this time (circa 1770s) that Alexandria's ship building industry began to flag as a result of a lack of available timber for construction. In 1780, the majority of Point Lumley was leased to Robert Townsend Hooe, indicating that Fleming's operation was likely defunct by that year. Hooe constructed a four-story warehouse circa 1782/1783 on his leased land. The extant building located at 2 Duke Street was constructed over the original foundations.

The portion of the property containing Feature 160 (the bulkhead wharf) lies to the east of what was originally historic Point Lumley, but on land that would still be considered under the ownership of the Trustees of Alexandria. It is not clear if Fleming also banked out this portion of the property (see Figure 1). This portion of the property is now designated Parcel 2D and encompasses Hooe's Wharf at the foot of Duke Street. Later, this was the location of the Pioneer Mills.

Feature 160 Bulkhead Wharf

Feature 160 consists of a bulkhead wharf structure that runs parallel to Duke Street and extends between Feature 200 and Feature 155-1 (Figures 2-4 and see Figure 1). The wharf architecture consists of four main walls consisting of large cut beams and un-milled logs that were secured by several tie-back and cross braces. The northern wall (F160-2) appears to be connected with Feature 200 and this portion of this wall will be investigated as Feature 202; likewise, the westernmost portion of the southern wall (Feature 160-6) will be investigated with Feature 200. The eastern end of the southern wall (F160-1) was constructed over the stern of Feature 155-1 and has already been investigated and documented with that feature.

Evaluation/Mitigation Field Methodology

The feature complex will be exposed in its entirety to the depth of proposed construction impacts, and documented with notes, photographs, photogrammetry, a scaled drawing and representative profiles. The feature complex will be survey located and elevations will be recorded.

Dendrochronology

Dendrochronology will play a key role in determining the sequence of infilling and wharf construction in this area. Michael Worthington of the Oxford Tree-Ring Laboratory, under subcontract to WSSI, will assess the condition of all wood features, and collect samples of the wharf architecture for dendroarcheological dating and wood identification.

Feature 160 will be carefully demolished under the direction of a WSSI archeologist, in a manner that affords Mick Worthington to obtain chain-sawed samples of the wood and the WSSI archeologist to observe and record any additional features, including any new wharf architecture identified beneath Feature 160. Any new features will be documented in the manner described above.

Photogrammetry

Color 3D photogrammetry will also be captured. These photogrammetric recordings not only serve to document the ship and associated features for archaeological analysis, but to create comprehensive 3D models that can be used in publishing, public outreach, and historical studies of the ship even after the features have been removed or covered.

A digital camera with no fewer than 16 megapixels will be used to document the feature. Photographs will be taken in both TIFF and JPEG formats. Photographs will be taken from an appropriate distance, dependent upon camera resolution, from the subject to ensure each pixel represents no more than 2mm. To produce best results, photogrammetry control points will be located using conventional survey methods.

These photogrammetric recordings not only serve to document the feature for archeological analysis, but to create comprehensive 3D models that can be used in publishing, public outreach, and historical studies3.

Agisoft Photoscan will be used to produce the 3D models. All photographs will be reviewed for clarity and image quality before processing. The model will be set to the Virginia State Plane North US feet coordinate system. Horizontal Datum will be set to NAD83, and Vertical datum will be set to NAVD88. Both a point cloud and a 3D textured surface model will be created. Initial processing of image alignment and sparse point cloud will be performed to ensure adequate photo-documentation prior to removal.

All photographs will be submitted with original and unchanged EXIF data. Metadata for control points used in each 3D model will submitted in table format. Original point cloud data will be submitted in .las format and the 3D model will be submitted in .obj file format. The 3D model face count will be reduced to produce a 3D PDF for report submission (This size model will be adequate for public outreach in various platforms and could be accessed by multiple portable electronic devices)

Laboratory

Any artifacts archeologically recovered from the soils observed to be associated with the features will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), and cataloged, in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards. Conservation for artifacts if warranted, will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology.

Reporting

The results of the documentary research completed to date, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and results of the dendrochronology on Feature 160 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report, which will present the combined results of the Archeological Evaluation and Data Recovery Mitigation conducted at the site.

Documentary Research

Feature 161 is situated within Parcel 1 of Lot 85 (see Figure 1). According to our documentary research, Parcel 5 of Lot 85, located east of the Strand, is interpreted as the active wharf-front from the 1780s onward. However, the location of Kirk's wharf will be reinterpreted based on the archeological evidence and any additional documentary research that had been conducted.

Thomas Fleming purchased Lot 85 from the Trustees of Alexandria on May 9, 1763 when the town was expanded (Ring and Pippenger 2008: 75). The original extents of Lot 85 included at most only a small area of land at the southwestern edge of the what is now the study area; most of the southern portion of the block lay within the Potomac River in 1763. During Fleming's ownership, it is nearly certain that he engaged in banking-out the property to increase access to the Potomac channel; however, it is unclear how much of this work was completed before he sold the property in 1770 to James Kirk, a merchant and later Mayor of Alexandria (Ring and Pippenger 2008:75).

Parcel 1 was located at the corner of Union and Wolfe Streets and encompassed all the property west of The Strand except for the southeastern quadrant (Parcels 2-4). Archeological evidence suggests that several dwellings and/or businesses stood on this parcel during the first half of the 19th century, although details of these buildings and their occupants are sparse in the documentary record[1]; further research is needed.

Sarah Kirk leased other portions of the parcel to William Hartshorne from 1803 until 1813 (Alexandria Deed Book G:6); Joseph Dean, a merchant, in 1813 for a period of 11 years and three months (1824); Thomas Preston, Captain of the East-India Company's Corp. of Engineers, and Thomas Janney (merchant and ship owner, of Thomas Janney and Co.) in 1814 (Alexandria Deed Book Y:65;F-2:316). The parcel leased to Joseph Dean encompassed Parcel 1, partially, part of the wharf Parcel 5, as well as Parcel 4, west of The Strand. The leased parcel to Thomas Preston and Thomas Janney included Parcel 1, partially, and Parcel 2 and 4. The leases include some overlap and the specific ways in which the lessees shared the space are unknown.

The 1810 tax records indicate several buildings in Parcel 1. Robert Kirk is taxed for a house and lot at the corner of Wolfe and Union Streets, occupied by three African-Americans: Violet Kirk, John Hedgman, and John Forrester. Thomas White is also taxed for two houses

[1] The lease of a baking facility on Parcel 1 to Andrew Jamieson is noteworthy; based upon the lease agreement, the northern third of Parcel 1 contained a bake house, covered ovens, and a tenement (dwelling, possibly a boarding house) with a detached or addition kitchen. The Feature 81/83 complex is tentatively interpreted as evidence of the Kirk/Jamieson bakery.

(likely constructed on Kirk land, as lots are not indicated) on Union Street that likely lie within Lot 85 Parcel 1; Jane Blakeny and Jane Harten are listed as occupants of single-story buildings, but no other information is currently available.

Tax records from 1830 list Sarah Kirk as owner of the lot which includes a lumber yard as well as at least one house; Nicholas Press, John Bryan & Co., and James Hadgin occupied the property. It is also possible that a house owned (or leased) by Josiah Davis and occupied by Benjamin Adams stood on Lot 85 Parcel 1. On May 4, 1843, Parcel 1 was sold, rather than leased, by Sarah Kirk to James Green (Alexandria Deed Book D-3:51).

Lot 85: Parcels 2, 3 and 4

Parcel 2 likely did not exist as a separate parcel until it was sold in 1826.

Parcel 3 was a narrow parcel with frontage on Wolfe Street (measuring 26 feet in width) that extended 82 feet to the north. It is likely that William Patterson, a tanner, leased this parcel as early as 1805 when he leased the neighboring Parcel 4, but this record has not been located at this time. The 1810 tax records list William Patterson as occupying an unspecified number of houses and lots on Wolfe Street; the records also note that a shopkeeper and tavern license are associated with the property. Patterson purchased the parcel in 1820 from the executors of Robert Kirk (Sarah Kirk and William Keyser).

Parcel 4 is located at the corner of Wolfe Street and The Strand, lying to the west of The Strand. This parcel was leased to James Caverley prior to 1795, followed by Robert Henderson (Alexandria Deed Book F: 309). In 1805, William Patterson leased the property for a term of 15 years (Alexandria Deed Book K: 92), and Patterson operated his businesses on this parcel and the adjoining Parcel 3 as mentioned.

The executors of Robert Kirk (Sarah Kirk and William Keyser) sold Parcels 2 and 4 to Josiah H. Davis on March 6, 1826 (Alexandria Deed Book P-2:331). In 1846, Davis sold the parcels to James Green (Alexandria Deed Book G-3: 380).

Lot 85: Parcel 5 Wharf

The portion of Lot 85 lying east of The Strand is designated Parcel 5 and served as the active wharf-front from at least the mid-1780s (see Figure 2). Numerous individuals leased portions of the wharf in the late 18$^{th}$ and early 19$^{th}$ century including Joseph Caverly (1787), a ship carpenter, John Murray and Company (1787), merchants, Andrew Jamieson (1791), baker; Thomas Patten and Company, merchant (1792), Robert Hamilton (1795), merchant; and Robert Henderson (1795), shopkeeper. Later tenants of other Kirk heirs include William Hartshorne (1803-1813) and Joseph Dean (1813-1830), merchants. The wharf was frequently known by the name of the major leaseholder during the period, being called at varying times Kirk's, Caverly's, Hartshorne's, or Hamilton's wharf in documents of the time (Pulliam 2006, n.d.).

Following the death of James Kirk in 1786, his widow Bridget Fleming Kirk, took control of the wharf and other family assets. She placed an advertisement that year, which suggests that in 1786, there were undeveloped lots on the wharf but at least one finished warehouse complete with a cellar:

> "several very eligible WATER LOTS, on the wharf of the late JAMES KIRK; also to be let, a STORE HOUSE on said wharf, consisting of a STORE ready fitted up with 4 rooms and a cellar" [VJAA 13 July 1786: 1].

The specific location of this advertised warehouse is unknown but may be the stone foundation designated Feature 151.

Bridget Kirk exercised considerable influence on the late 18th century development of the south end of Alexandria's water-front; she may have been directly responsible for the creation of The Strand when she laid out a 21-foot wide alley across the wharf in 1787 (Ring and Pippenger 2008: 75). With Bridget Kirk's death in 1797 the property was passed to her son, Robert Kirk. The Kirk's maintained possession of the lot for a significant period of time, leasing it to various commercial interests. With the death of Robert Kirk in 1811, his wife Sarah Kirk took over control of the property.

Parcel 5 was sold by Sarah Kirk to Henry Daingerfield on January 4, 1830 (Alexandria Deed Book S-2:107). Tax records in 1830 list Daingerfield as owner of the "Warehouses and Wharf" by the corner of Wolfe Street and The Strand, and Joshua Yeaton, a merchant, as an occupant. Dangerfield sold the property to James Green in May 1843 (Alexandria Deed Book D-3:79) and it was subsumed into his expansive lumberyard and other business operations on the Robinson Landing property. No occupant is recorded in the 1850 tax record for the "House and Wharf" east of The Strand, suggesting that they were used by directly by Green's business rather than leased.

Additional research into subleases and tax information could provide additional information regarding the ownership and use of the Lot 85 and of Feature 161.

Feature 161 Bulkhead Wharf

Feature 161 consists of a bulkhead wharf structure that runs parallel to Wolfe Street and extends between Feature 125 and Feature 123 (see Figure 1 and Figures 2-6). The wharf architecture is comprised of two main walls consisting of large cut beams and un-milled logs that secured by several tie-back and cross braces. The third wall of the wharf enclosure is not visible but is presumably beneath Wolfe Street.

The western end of the north wall consists of three stacked logs; as the surface slopes eastwards, a fourth log is added. The eastern wall is constructed of five logs; large rocks, possibly for additional support or acting as a breakwater, were found in the soils in front of the wall. The architecture also includes grillage logs near the western edge of the feature; it is unclear at this time if the grillage is original to the feature or a later addition.

Based on available information, the entire feature complex likely dates to the late 18th-century and was placed in this location as the framework for creating new land.

Field Methodology

The feature complex will be exposed in its entirety to the depth of proposed construction impacts, and documented with notes, photographs, a scaled drawing and representative profiles. The feature complex will be survey located and elevations will be recorded.

Proposed mitigation for this feature will include dendroarcheological analysis. Michael Worthington of the Oxford Tree-Ring Laboratory, under subcontract to WSSI, will assess the condition of all wood features, and collect samples of the wharf architecture for dendroarcheological dating and wood identification.

Under the direction of a WSSI archeologist, the feature will be demolished using a trackhoe or similar machine, but in a manner that affords Mick Worthington to obtain chain-sawed samples of the wood and the WSSI archeologist to observe and record any additional features, including any new wharf architecture identified beneath Feature 161. Any new features will be documented in the manner described above.

Documentary Research

Feature 165 is situated within Parcel 5 of Lot 85 (see Figure 1). According to our documentary research, Parcel 5 of Lot 85, located east of the Strand, is interpreted as the active wharf-front from the 1780s onward. Map evidence suggests that feature may be associated with the infilling and new shoreline shown on the 1842 Young and 1845 Ewing maps, but will be interpreted based on the archeological evidence and any additional documentary research that has been conducted.

Thomas Fleming purchased Lot 85 from the Trustees of Alexandria on May 9, 1763 when the town was expanded (Ring and Pippenger 2008: 75). The original extents of Lot 85 included, at most, only a small area of land at the southwestern edge of the what is now the study area; most of the southern portion of the block lay within the Potomac River in 1763. During Fleming's ownership, it is nearly certain that he engaged in banking-out the property to increase access to the Potomac channel; however, it is unclear how much of this work was completed before he sold the property in 1770 to James Kirk, a merchant and later Mayor of Alexandria (Ring and Pippenger 2008:75).

Lot 85: Parcel 5 Wharf

The portion of Lot 85 lying east of The Strand is designated Parcel 5 and served as the active wharf-front from at least the mid-1780s. Numerous individuals leased portions of the wharf in the late 18th and early 19th century including Joseph Caverly (1787), a ship carpenter, John Murray and Company (1787), merchants, Andrew Jamieson (1791), baker; Thomas Patten and Company, merchant (1792), Robert Hamilton (1795), merchant; and Robert Henderson (1795), shopkeeper. Later tenants of other Kirk heirs include William Hartshorne (1803-1813) and Joseph Dean (1813-1830), merchants. The wharf was frequently known by the name of the major leaseholder during the period, being called at varying times Kirk's, Caverly's, Hartshorne's, or Hamilton's wharf in documents of the time (Pulliam 2006, n.d.).

Following the death of James Kirk in 1786, his widow Bridget Fleming Kirk, took control of the wharf and other family assets. She placed an advertisement that year, which suggests that in 1786, there were undeveloped lots on the wharf but at least one finished warehouse complete with a cellar:

> "several very eligible WATER LOTS, on the wharf of the late JAMES KIRK; also to be let, a STORE HOUSE on said wharf, consisting of a STORE ready fitted up with 4 rooms and a cellar" [VJAA 13 July 1786: 1].

The specific location of this advertised warehouse is unknown but may be the stone foundation designated Feature 151.

Bridget Kirk exercised considerable influence on the late 18th century development of the south end of Alexandria's water-front; she may have been directly responsible for the creation of The Strand when she laid out a 21-foot wide alley across the wharf in 1787 (Ring and Pippenger 2008: 75). With Bridget Kirk's death in 1797 the property was passed to her son, Robert Kirk. The Kirk's maintained possession of the lot for a significant period of time, leasing it to various commercial interests. With the death of Robert Kirk in 1811, his wife Sarah Kirk took over control of the property.

Parcel 5 was sold by Sarah Kirk to Henry Daingerfield on January 4, 1830 (Alexandria Deed Book S-2:107). Tax records in 1830 list Daingerfield as owner of the "Warehouses and Wharf" by the corner of Wolfe Street and The Strand, and Joshua Yeaton, a merchant, as an occupant. Dangerfield sold the property to James Green in May 1843 (Alexandria Deed Book D-3:79) and it was subsumed into his expansive lumberyard and other business operations on the Robinson Landing property. No occupant is recorded in the 1850 tax record for the "House and Wharf" east of The Strand, suggesting that they were used directly by Green's business rather than leased.

Additional research into subleases and tax information could provide additional information regarding the creation of this portion of Lot 85.

Feature 162

Evaluation/Mitigation Field Methodology

Feature 162 is a series of logs/grillage that is related to the infilling of this portion of the property but does not appear to be directly association or attached to Feature 165 (see Figure 1).

A representative portion of the feature will be exposed in its entirety to the depth of proposed construction impacts, and documented with notes, photographs, and a scaled drawing. The feature will be survey located with elevations recorded.

Dendrochronology

Michael Worthington of the Oxford Tree-Ring Laboratory, under subcontract to WSSI, will collect samples of the feature for dendroarcheological dating and wood identification.

Feature 162 will then be carefully demolished under the direction of a WSSI archeologist, in a manner that affords Mick Worthington to obtain chain-sawed samples of the wood and the WSSI archeologist to observe and record any additional features beneath Feature 165. Any new features will be documented in the manner described above.

Feature 165 Bulkhead Wharf

Feature 165 is a bulkhead soil retention system that extends north of Feature 159 (Ship 3) toward the former location of Feature 155 (see Figure 1 and Figures 2-4). This feature complex of several components. Feature 165- 1, the southernmost exposed portion of the bulkhead wharf, consists of 3-4 un-milled stacked logs resting on sandy soil. This wall appears to extend southward beyond the limits of the garage excavation and is not fully exposed. Feature 165-2, located roughly 50 feet south of Feature 165-1, appears to be an associated tieback. However, Feature 162, a series of logs and tree trunks perpendicular to the feature, does not appear be associated tie-backs for Feature 165.

The northern end of Feature 165 is of different construction and appears to be a crib or potentially a coffer dam. Designated Feature 165-3, the feature consists of at least 10 milled stacked logs forming a rectangular "crib" measuring roughly 50 feet by 15 feet. The interior of the crib is filled with stacked timber (see Figure 4). The northern side of the crib, now detached, is designated Feature 165-4. Finally, a series of parallel logs designated 165-5 , is located on the western side of Feature 165-3.

Based on a review of historic maps, the feature complex may date to the mid-19$^{th}$-century and was placed in this location as the framework for creating new land; however, dendrochronology will play a key role in determining the sequence of infilling and wharf construction in this area.

Evaluation/Mitigation Field Methodology

The feature complex will be exposed in its entirety to the extent of proposed construction impacts, and documented with notes, photographs, a scaled drawing and representative profiles. The feature complex will be survey located and elevations will be recorded.

Feature 165-5 will be removed after documentation (including photographs and profile drawings) and the entire western wall of Feature 165-3 will be exposed through mechanical excavation. Once cleaned, the entire feature will be documented with photogrammetry. Finally, Feature 159-3 will be bisected and the profile of the interior of this crib feature will be documented.

Michael Worthington of the Oxford Tree-Ring Laboratory, under subcontract to WSSI, will assess the condition of all wood features, and collect samples of the wharf architecture for dendroarcheological dating and wood identification. Feature 165 will be carefully demolished under the direction of a WSSI archeologist, in a manner that affords Mick Worthington to obtain chain-sawed samples of the wood and the WSSI archeologist to observe and record any additional features, including any new wharf architecture

identified beneath Feature 165. Any new features will be documented in the manner described above.

Photogrammetry

Color 3D photogrammetry will also be captured. A digital camera with no fewer than 16 megapixels will be used to document the feature. Photographs will be taken in both TIFF and JPEG formats. Photographs will be taken from an appropriate distance, dependent upon camera resolution, from the subject to ensure each pixel represents no more than 2mm. To produce best results, photogrammetry control points will be located using conventional survey methods.

Agisoft Photoscan will be used to produce the 3D models. All photographs will be reviewed for clarity and image quality before processing. The model will be set to the Virginia State Plane North US feet coordinate system. Horizontal Datum will be set to NAD83, and Vertical datum will be set to NAVD88. Both a point cloud and a 3D textured surface model will be created. Initial processing of image alignment and sparse point cloud will be performed to ensure adequate photo-documentation prior to removal.

All photographs will be submitted with original and unchanged EXIF data. Metadata for control points used in each 3D model will submitted in table format. Original point cloud data will be submitted in .las format and the 3D model will be submitted in .obj file format. The 3D model face count will be reduced to produce a 3D PDF for report submission (This size model will be adequate for public outreach in various platforms and could be accessed by multiple portable electronic devices)

Feature 162 & 165 Laboratory

Any artifacts archeologically recovered from the soils observed to be associated with the features will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), and cataloged, in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards. Conservation for artifacts if warranted, will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology.

Feature 162 & 165 Reporting

The results of the documentary research completed to date, archeological investigation, and artifact evaluation, and results of the dendrochronology will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report, which will present the combined results of the Archeological Evaluation and Data Recovery Mitigation conducted at the site.

FOR FEATURE 168 at ROBINSON LANDING,
CITY OF ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA
July 2018

The proposed redevelopment at Robinson Landing will include the construction of several above grade residential buildings with associated roads and alleys; underground parking is planned for over half of the site. Exploratory trenching and subsequent site leveling within this area revealed numerous archeological features, including stone foundations, brick foundations, an early 19th century road, privies and soil retention systems (cribbing and bulkhead wharves).

This Resource Management Plan has been prepared for Feature 168, a stone foundation remnant associated with a wooden bulkhead, which is located within the "bump-out" in the far northwestern corner of the parking garage project area (Figure 1). The feature also includes grillage; a series of small fragments of wood including boards, tree fragments, and small saplings stripped of their branches, roughly aligned east to west, and is similar in appearance and connected to previously excavated Features 163 and 202.

Decisions regarding the significance of the features were made in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. The features retain architectural integrity and therefore can address the initial identification level research questions from the August 2015 Scope of Work (as amended twice): Will the site contain the remnants of 18th and early 19th century wharves and structures? Additionally, Feature 168 has the potential to help us understand the use of space along the early waterfront. This feature is considered significant and archeological evaluation and potentially data recovery mitigation is required by the City.

The goal of the data recovery is to make a record of the feature prior to its destruction and to recover sufficient data from the site to address defined research questions. Addenda to this plan will occur in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted. Data recovery strategies are subject to change based on findings during the archeological work in consultation and with the approval of Alexandria Archaeology as warranted.

Fieldwork and report contents associated with the data recovery will conform to the guidelines set forth by Alexandria Archaeology. Archeological collections recovered under the Alexandria Archaeology Resource Protection Code must be curated at a facility which meets Federal standards for archeological curation and collections management as described by 36CFR Part 79.

Feature 168

The Alexandria Archaeology Storage Facility meets these standards, and the project owner is encouraged to donate the artifact collection to the City for curation. Thunderbird Archeology will arrange the donation of the artifacts from the owner and will deliver the artifacts and signed forms to the appropriate storage facility.

Documentary Research

Feature 168 falls within what has been designated Parcel 2B of historic Point Lumley; this parcel is the location of the Hartshorne Warehouse, which appears on a 1788 plat (Figure 2).

William Hartshorne, a Quaker and anti-slavery advocate, subleased land (designated Parcel 2B) from Hooe and Harrison and built a 76-foot by 19-foot wooden warehouse in 1785 that was occupied by William Hartshorne and Company. As part of the sublease agreement, Hooe and Harrison agreed to build no buildings east of Hartshorne's storehouse and to leave a 20-foot area south of the warehouse open as a passage (Alexandria Deed Book B: 153).

With the expiration of Hooe and Harrison's lease in 1801, Hartshorne vacated the premises and moved his commission merchant import/export business to a parcel in Lot 85 at Kirk's Wharf (AGVA 17 January 1804:1). Parcel 2B was leased to Thomas Preston by 1809. Preston offered the warehouse lease for sale in 1815, described as "a Warehouse on Hooe's Wharf" (AGVA 27 April 1815:3). Thomas Preston does not appear as the leaseholder in the 1810 tax records, and it is unclear who occupied Hartshorne's former warehouse in that year.

Additional research is obviously needed into the land use of the Feature 168 area, especially prior to the construction of the Pioneer Mills at the foot of Duke Street by William H. and George D. Fowle in 1854. Notably, the 1788 plat shows Feature 168-1 in alignment with the northern wall of the Hartshorne Warehouse (see Figure 2). The 1912 Sanborn Map shows Feature 168 is located along a slip located just north of the Pioneer Mills (Figure 3). It is possible that the timber elements of Feature 168 were constructed as a bulkhead prior to the 1854 mill construction and the stone warehouse foundation was demolished at that time, as it does not appear on any Sanborn map between 1888 and 1959.

Feature 168: Stone Foundation and Bulkhead Wharf

Feature 168 was separated into three subsections 168-1, 168-2, and 168-3 (see Figure 1 and Figure 4). All three sections of the feature appear to be connected. Feature 168-1 consists of a stone wall foundation approximately 21 feet long east to west. The eastern end of the stone foundation ends at a wooden wall, which appears to be connected to 168-2 with a possible single course stone wall in front of it. That single course of stone may represent wall collapse from disturbance: a modern drainage pipe impacted Feature 168-1 within this area or may be a secondarily constructed wall. The western end of Feature 168-1 extends westward out of the garage limits toward the building at 2 Duke Street.

A small trench along the northern edge of 168-1 revealed at least two courses of wood timbers beneath the stones (Figure 5). At least two tie backs are integrated into the wall between the final course of stone and the first course of timbers and extend to the south.

Feature 168-2 may be a continuation of Feature 168-1, but without the stone foundation overlying it. The wooden wall continues 20 feet to the east beyond Feature 168-1. Feature 168-2 also includes a secondary wooden wall that appears to connect/attach to the primary wall at the termination of 168-1. The timbers of both sections are milled timbers cut to fit with each other and joined with large iron spikes, many of which are visible on the top edge of Feature 168-2.

Finally, there is a section of "grillage" along the southern face of Feature 168-1 and 168-2, which has been designated as Feature 168-3 (Figure 6). The grillage is similar to Feature 202 and Feature 163. Portions of Feature 168-3 have been negatively impacted by the pilings associated with the Pioneer Mill (Feature 134) on the east end of the feature. The entire complex may be a fragment of a warehouse or building constructed on top of a wooden bulkhead or wharf.

Portions of this feature were likely disturbed or were open during the 20th century. Four shovel tests excavated within the area revealed a mixed context of artifacts in the fill surrounding Feature 168, some of which were 20th century objects.

Evaluation/Mitigation Field Methodology

Feature 168 was exposed horizontally in its entirety to the extent of proposed construction impacts, and documented with notes, photographs, a scaled drawing and representative profiles. The feature complex was survey located and elevations were recorded.

Four STPs were excavated to determine the integrity of the soils surrounding Feature 168. The soils appear to be near sterile on the north side of 168-1 resulting in two small glass fragments. The two STPs excavated on the north side of the primary wood wall at Feature 168-2 exhibited two strata of dense fill containing brick and stone. Sterile subsoil was not reached during these STPs. Laboratory analysis is ongoing. The other two STPs were excavated within Feature 168-3, which is on the north side of the primary wall. These STPs exhibited two strata of silty clay with very few artifacts, most of which were small fragments of glass. Both STPs were discontinued due to impasse created by the closely piled wooden planks and saplings.

As proposed mitigation, the entire southern face of the Feature 168 will be excavated mechanically to expose the entire feature vertically to the extent of the proposed construction impacts. The tie-backs will be kept in place but Feature 168-3 will be removed during this process. Additional features discovered during this process will be recorded. The profile will be documented --with notes, photographs, and a full profile drawing, including a north-south profile of F168-1 / 168-2.

Feature 168 will be removed after documentation starting with the north-south trending foundation wall. The underlying wooden timber architectural elements will be documented with scaled drawings, photographs, and notes. Specifically, we will document the relationship between the timber elements to determine how they were constructed and joined together, and to assess whether the stone and timber walls are one structure, or whether the north-south trenching wall is destruction rubble. Additional architectural elements to the north of the primary wall and within the proposed construction impacts will be documented during dismantling and will include notes, scaled drawings, and photographs.

Dendrochronology

Michael Worthington of the Oxford Tree-Ring Laboratory, under subcontract to WSSI, will collect samples of the wharf timber architecture for dendroarcheological dating. Feature 168 will be carefully demolished under the direction of a WSSI archeologist, in a manner that affords Mick Worthington to obtain chain-sawed samples or cores of the wood and the WSSI archeologist to observe and record any additional features.

Feature 168 Laboratory

Any artifacts archeologically recovered from the soils observed to be associated with the features will be retained, cleaned, stabilized (if necessary), and cataloged, in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards. Conservation for artifacts if warranted, will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology.

Feature 168 Reporting

The results of the documentary research completed to date, archeological investigation, and artifact evaluation, and results of the dendrochronology on Feature 168 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report, which will present the combined results of the Archeological Evaluation and Data Recovery Mitigation conducted at the site.

Documentary Research

Shortly after the Town of Alexandria was founded, the Trustees whose responsibilities included directing all physical developments of the Town, including construction and maintenance of public wharves, allowed lot owners along the river the "benefit of extending the said Lotts into the River as far as they shall think proper" and could retain ownership of this newly created land (Ring and Pippenger 2008:139; Shephard 2006:4). The same benefits were allotted to the public land at Point Lumley. Much of the earth used to create new land came from the bluffs that overlooked the Potomac, which were cut down and spread out in the shallow water in a process referred to as "banking out."

The public land at Point Lumley was first leased in the 1750s to Thomas Fleming, a ship builder, although the first recorded lease that could be located was dated 1774 (Pulliam 2014). The earliest written account of Thomas Fleming's dock for shipbuilding at Point Lumley was observed by the Reverend Andrew Burnaby on a visit to Alexandria in October 1759:

> The town is built upon an arc of this bay; at one extremity of which is a wharf; at the other a dock for building *f*hips; with water *fuffi*ciently deep to launch a ve*ff*el of any rate or magnitude [Burnaby 1963:40].

The shipbuilding dock that Burnaby referred to was Thomas Fleming's. Current evidence indicates that Thomas Fleming was in operation by October 1759, and possibly as early as the founding of Alexandria.

The construction and launching of one of Fleming's ships, the Hero was witnessed by George Washington in 1760, who observed that very little was required to build a ship in terms of structures – just the use of a double sawpit covered by a shelter or house to permit work in all weather, a tool shed, and a few support buildings (Shomette 1985:35). Therefore, the landscape features associated with Fleming's operation might have consisted simply of a large pit for hull making and a few storage sheds (Shomette 1985:36; Pulliam 2007:2).

Parcels 3 and 4 represent land created by Thomas Fleming through banking-out or wharf construction by 1774, but still owned by the town (see Figure 1). These lot extensions may have been the location for secondary structures or wharves related to Thomas Fleming's shipbuilding enterprise.

In 1761, because of his "usefulne*f*s as a Shipe Carpenter & his inclination to serve this Town", the Trustees of Alexandria granted Thomas Fleming the right to build a 44 by 24 foot warehouse on an unspecified amount of leased land "under the Bank of Point Lumley as near the Bank as convenient" (Ring and Pippenger 2008:147). Fleming never built this warehouse, however, and in 1769, Fleming and the Alexandria Trustees voided the lease (Ring and Pippenger 2008:161).

The entry in the town records notes that Fleming "is at present supplied with a water lot," likely in reference to his purchase of Lot 85 in 1763 (Fairfax County Deed Book F:435); the implication is that Fleming purchased and banked out Lot 85 sufficiently to provide him access to the river channel without the need to lease the additional land on Point Lumley, and further that he had likely constructed , or intended to construct, a wharf and at least one warehouse on that land by 1769. line. It is unclear how much of this work was completed before he sold the property in 1770 to James Kirk, a merchant and later Mayor of Alexandria (Ring and Pippenger 2008: 75).

In 1770, Fleming purchased Lot 77 located adjacent to Point Lumley to the west (Fairfax County Deed Book J:76). He made similar improvements to Lot 77, which was expanded in a narrow 25-foot-wide spur extending from the southeast corner and may originally have served to provide river access to the remainder of the lot. It is not certain how Fleming made use of the portion of Lot 77 lying within the study area.

It appears that despite the voided lease for Fleming's warehouse in 1769, Fleming and his shipbuilding operation maintained a presence at Point Lumley through the 1770s, but the extent and specific location he occupied are not known. It was around this time (circa 1770s) that Alexandria's ship building industry began to flag as a result of a lack of available timber for construction. In 1780, the majority of Point Lumley was leased to Robert Townsend Hooe, indicating that Fleming's operation was likely defunct by that year. Hooe constructed a four-story warehouse circa 1782/1783 on his leased land. The extant building located at 2 Duke Street was constructed over the original foundations.

The features referenced in the RMP lie within what has been designated Parcel 1 of historic Point Lumley; this parcel lies south of Duke Street, between the eastern boundary of Town Lot 77 and the Strand. This parcel encompasses almost the entirety of the original Point Lumley prior to its expansion during banking-out and infilling of the waterfront.

Ship with Integrated Bulkhead Wharf Architecture and Associated Features

Wetland Studies and Solutions, Inc. archeologists discovered the partial remains of a large ship. Designated Feature 200, the exposed remnants of the vessel measure approximately 23 feet in length by 13 feet in width (Figure 2). Portions of the hull consist of framing, futtocks and potentially part of a stern post. Based on available information, the ship dates to the late 18$^{th}$ century and may have been placed in this location for expanding the shoreline. The complete length and width of the vessel is currently unknown.

Plan Sketch of Features 200, 201 and 202

Two additional features in proximity to the vessel were also uncovered. Feature 201 is a series of large timber planks situated between the support pilings of the foundation for Feature 134 (Pioneer Mill). The timbers appear to be associated with Feature 160, which consists of two east-west trending bulkhead wharves that also appear to be associated with or connected to Feature 200. Feature 202 is a large pile of small trees and saplings resembling a ramp; some of the trees retain bark. Both features are also likely associated with infilling activities or with shipyard-related activities.

Research Questions

To better understand the individuals that created and used this portion of the city waterfront and their place within the contexts of time and space, archeological data from this feature will be compared to data from similar features within the site, the city of Alexandria and the larger region. Research questions pertain not only to the original use of the ship, but to its integration of the ship into wharf architecture. Finally, subsumed within the areas of research interest is the temporal framework within which the overall site evolved. Dendrochronology will play a key role in determining the sequence of infilling and wharf construction in this area.

1. What can analysis tell us about the feature's origin, date of construction, use and function? Was the ship originally built to haul heavy cargo? Or was this a military ship?
2. The ship appears to have been used as the framework as landfill. What evidence do we have that the ship was purposely dismantled and was it purposely attached to wharf architecture?
3. The ship appears to be located outside of the 1763 shoreline. Was it scuttled and dragged into place earlier? And then infilled?
4. What types of material were used to fill the ship? Cobbles, sand, trash? And is there a difference with the fill outside of the ship?
5. Was Feature 201 originally part of Feature 160?
6. Were Features 201 and 202 related to infilling or the area being used as a shipyard?

Field Investigations

The remnants of Features 200, 201 and 202 within the proposed garage area will be exposed in entirety and documented with notes, photographs, a scaled drawing and profiles. The remnants of the ship outside the proposed garage area will be exposed in entirety unless such excavation would undermine or threaten the extant building at 2 Duke Street. Such determination will be made by a responsible engineer or architect employed by the Owner or the Owner's consultants. The exposed features will be survey located and elevations will be recorded.

Fieldwork will be conducted by WSSI archeologists under contract to the Owner, with the assistance of WSSI sub-consultants, City staff and City consultants and City volunteers, if available. The City shall provide proof of insurance, full release and indemnify the Owner for all work performed onsite by City-affiliated personnel.

Michael Worthington of the Oxford Tree-Ring Laboratory, under subcontract to WSSI, will assess the condition of all wood features, and collect samples for dendroarcheological dating and wood identification.

Color 3D photogrammetry will also be captured on the ship architecture, and the timbers of Feature 202 that are immediately impacting the ship. These photogrammetric recordings not only serve to document the ship and associated features for archaeological analysis, but to create comprehensive 3D models that can be used in publishing, public outreach, and historical studies of the site even after the features have been removed or covered.

Feature 201 and 202 Proposed Methodology

As described above, Feature 201 is a series of large timber planks situated between the support pilings of the foundation for Feature 134 (Pioneer Mill). The timbers appear to have been purposefully placed in this location but may be displaced timbers from the adjacent wharf architecture (Feature 160). The timbers and their relationship to Features 160 and 200 will be thoroughly documented (notes, photographs, a scaled drawing and profiles) during the archeological investigation of Feature 200, as described below.

As described above, Feature 202 is a large pile of small trees and saplings resembling a ramp. The timbers be cleaned, thoroughly documented (notes, photographs, a scaled drawing) and a trench will be excavated through the pile to determined depth and internal structure. The profile will be recorded as warranted.

Laboratory

Any archeological artifacts recovered from the soils associated with Feature 201 and 202 will be retained, cleaned, and stabilized (if necessary), in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Feature 200 (Ship 1) Proposed Methodology

A digital camera with no fewer than 16 megapixels will be used to document the feature. Photographs will be taken in both TIFF and JPEG formats. Photographs will be taken from an appropriate distance, dependent upon camera resolution, from the subject to ensure each pixel represents no more than 2mm. To produce best results, photogrammetry control points will be located using conventional survey methods.

Images for photogrammetry will be captured in the same layers used to excavate the ship. For this feature complex, up to (4) total rounds of photogrammetry will likely be needed to fully record the ship, though more may be required depending upon specific elements or details discovered as the ship is uncovered. The first will capture the excavated ship and associated features in situ prior to any removal of the hull elements. If no ceiling planking is present, this will record the ship frames prior to removal. If ceiling planking is present, a second round would be required after the removal of the planking to capture the ship frames. The next round will capture the hull planking, while the last will capture the keel and sacrificial planking. These photogrammetric recordings not only serve to document the ship for archeological analysis, but to create comprehensive 3D models that can be used in publishing, public outreach, and historical studies of the ship and its context within the wharf construction even after the features have been removed or covered.

Agisoft Photoscan will be used to produce the 3D models. All photographs will be reviewed for clarity and image quality before processing. The model will be set to the Virginia State Plane North US feet coordinate system. Horizontal Datum will be set to NAD83, and Vertical datum will be set to NAVD88. Both a point cloud and a 3D textured surface model will be created. Initial processing of image alignment and sparse point cloud will be performed to ensure adequate photo-documentation prior to removal.

All photographs will be submitted with original and unchanged EXIF data. Metadata for control points used in each 3D model will submitted in table format. Original point cloud data will be submitted in .las format and the 3D model will be submitted in .obj file format. The 3D model face count will be reduced to produce a 3D PDF for report submission. (This size model will be adequate for public outreach in various platforms and could be accessed by multiple portable electronic devices).

Excavations

Due to the fragile nature of the resource, the remains will be constantly kept wet, while exposed and covered when not being directly examined.

WSSI archeologists, with the assistance of City staff and consultants, will excavate and dismantle the ship. The soils beneath the ceiling planks and between the ship's floor timbers and futtocks will be archeologically excavated; observed artifacts will be collected and bagged with provenience information correlated to adjacent timber elements. Upon completion of the soil removal from the ship, the hull remains will be recorded and the ship excavated. Recording the hull remains in situ is essential for future study of the ship as dimensions of the timbers can be an indicator of both the size and the function of the vessel.

A drawing of the feature will be completed as a master plan for the location of timbers and other key construction elements. This plan will be used to note the identification codes of the ship elements and will aid greatly in later efforts to reconstruct the ship once it has been conserved.

Once recording is completed and the necessary labels are attached, the hull elements will be excavated, followed by the keelson, the frames, the hull planking, the keel, and sacrificial planking if warranted. Wooden wedges and rubber mallets will be used to manually loosen all hull elements. This method is preferable as it minimizes damage and potential breakage during the excavation process. Should this method fail to properly separate the remains, other methods including steel chisels and limited use of saws will be employed.

The specifications for all tools, including the size and material of the chisels and the blade width of any saws, will be recorded in order to ensure complete data for the conservation and reconstruction process. No cuts should need to be made to the floors or futtocks, as these are sized below the maximum length of the provided truck bed. Any cuts made to the hull strakes should be done between planks so as to minimize damage to the planks, themselves. Cuts to the keelson and keel should be made only as necessary under the supervision of an archaeological conservator and maritime archaeologist to ensure no significant loss of data and the smallest possible visual seams. If rabbeting and/or a scarf is found along the keel, this should be measured, recorded photographically and added into the feature sketch before the keel sections are taken apart. Insofar as it is possible and does not represent a danger to the crew or the hull remains, themselves, treenails, spikes, and nails should be left in place in the ship timbers and hull planking.

Labeling

During the excavation process prior the removal of any ship element, each timber in a layer will be assigned a unique identification code. Labeling of the ship remains will follow a process consistent to the one outlined by Richard J. Steffy in Wooden Shipbuilding and the Interpretation of Shipwrecks (2006), wherein an alphanumeric code will be used based on the location and function of the timbers. The labeling will be directed by WSSI staff archeologist, Chelsea Cohen, or designated assistant. Each timber element will be documented starting at the northern end of the ship. Frame designation will be based on their position relative to the keel. Floor timbers that span the keel will be labeled as "FEFW" with the first visible timber taking the designation "FEFW 1." All subsequent timbers will be numerically grouped in sets of floors, first futtocks, and half frames. Those to the east of the keel will be labeled as "FE" and receive a hyphenated sub-designate odd number (e.g. FE 14-1, FE 14-3). Those that sit west of the keel will be labeled as "FW" and receive a hyphenated sub-designate even number (e.g. FW 14-2, FW 14-4). As it is not currently known what, if any, joining exists between frame timbers, these numerical sets are not meant to serve an analytical purpose, but rather to keep ordered the timbers as they are removed. Should any timbers break during the process of excavation, they will receive an alphabetical sub-designate to note their position on the frame, with "a" representing the fragment closest to the keel (e.g. FW 14-2a, 14-2b).

Hull planking will be labeled in much the same manner, starting with the innermost strakes of planking (the garboard strakes) and working outward and upward. Planks to the east of the ship's keel (relative to a starting point at the wharf wall) will receive a designation of "PE," and a numerical indicator, with the garboard strake representing "PE 1." Individual planks will each receive a sub-designate from south to north (e.g. PE 1-1, PE 1-2). Planks to the west of the keel will receive a designation of "PW" and follow the same numbering and sub-designation pattern. Any hull planks that break as they are excavated will receive an alphabetical sub-designate, going in alphabetical order of the fragment's place relative to the south end of the ship (e.g. 1-1a, 1-1b, 1-1c, etc). Any breaks should also be lightly drawn into the site sketch.

Keel remains will receive a designation of "K." As it is likely that the keel will need to be carefully separated into multiple pieces in order to facilitate transportation, each section of the keel should be given a subsequent numerical designation noting its position, with "K1" at the south end of the ship at the wharf wall. The keelson will be documented in the same way using a designation of "KS." Any breaks that may naturally or manually occur in the keel should be lightly sketched into the site drawing to ensure accurate records and reconstruction.

Any hull remains found outside of the ship will receive a prefix of "UM" (for unidentified member), with a designation added based on the side of the keel to which the object was found. A timber found to the east of the keel would then be "UME," while a timber found to the west would be "UMW." Each piece will then be given a numerical sub-designation in its order of excavation (e.g. UME 4, UMW 4, UME 5). These should also be drawn in and identified on the master drawing of the feature excavation.

Additional prefixes may need to be created if other ship elements that are not currently visible are discovered. Should this happen, the prefixes will be recorded. All designations should follow the same conventions as the established labels, with ship components identified by their position east or west of the keel, and numerical designators ordered so that the lowest number represents the component closest to the south end of the ship.

Elements of wharf architecture that will be conserved will be similarly labeled. These will receive a prefix of "A" (for "architecture"); labelling will correspond to the master plan drawing.

All labels will be made under the direction of WSSI staff archeologist, Chelsea Cohen or designated assistant using material that is suitable to be submerged for extended periods. Labels should be attached to each individual element before it is removed using a durable, rust-proof or non-oxidizing method of attachment.

Laboratory

Archeological artifacts recovered from the soils associated with Feature 200 will be retained, cleaned, and stabilized (if necessary), in accordance with the guidelines set forth in the City of Alexandria Archaeological Standards.

Specialized analyses (faunal, macro-botanical, soil analyses) and artifact conservation will be determined in consultation with Alexandria Archaeology. As warranted, the soil samples will be floated for heavy and light fractions, and the fractions will be examined for the presence/absence of temporally or functionally diagnostic artifacts and small finds. Additionally, a portion of each flotation sample from each feature will be retained, if deemed necessary, for soil chemistry, pollen, phytoliths and macro-botanical analyses conducted by qualified sub-consultants. It may be necessary to retain additional samples if caulking is discovered between hull planking. Since caulking not only played a valuable role in keeping a ship afloat, it also differed greatly over time and region, such samples are invaluable in analyzing the construction and history of the vessel.

Stabilization of Ship Remnants

Given the significance of the ship, the City of Alexandria wishes to stabilize all or some portion of the ship's wood timbers for later study, display and/or use. A specialist in maritime history and archaeology with expertise with ship-building techniques, as well as a specialist in archeological conservation techniques, will be present on-site during the dismantling and removal of the framing and futtocks. The City will provide machinery and machine operators to move the wood to a transport vehicle supplied by the City. WSSI and the City will provide the labor for mapping, tagging and removing the wood.

The Owner will sign a Deed of Gift to the City to assume ownership of all ship and timber architecture. The City will efficiently transport such materials offsite and will be responsible for the scope and fees for transportation, storage, and conservation of all such material. Elements of Feature 200 which will not be transported offsite by the City and all elements of Features 201-202 will be discarded.

Reporting

The results of the documentary research completed to date, archeological investigation, artifact evaluation, and any specialized analyses of Features 200-202 will be integrated into the Final Archeological Report, which will present the combined results of the Archeological Evaluation and Data Recovery Mitigation conducted at the site.

Selected Glossary of Ship and Boat Terms (Steffy 2006)

Amidships. Refers to the middle of the ship. In construction, however, it is often used as an adjective referring to the broadest part of the hull, wherever it may be.

Aft. Toward the stern of the vessel.

Bow. The forward part of a hull, specifically, from the point where the sides curve inward to the stem.

Caulking. Oakum, moss, animal hair, or other fibrous material driven into the seams of planking and covered with pitch to make the seams watertight

Floor. A frame timber that crossed the keel and spanned the bottom; the central piece of a compound frame.

Frame. A transverse timber, or line or assembly of timbers, that described the body shape of a vessel and to which the planking and ceiling were fastened.

Forward. Toward the bow of the vessel.

Futtocks. A frame timber other than a floor timber, half-frame, or top timber; one of the middle pieces of a frame.

Half-frame. A frame whose heel began at or near one side of the keel or deadwood and spanned part or all of that side of the hull. Such frames are typically used in pairs.

Hull Planking. The outer planking of the ship, fastened to the outside of the frames.

Keel. The main longitudinal timber of most hulls, upon which the frames and ends of the hull were mounted.

Keelson. An internal longitudinal timber or line of timbers, mounted atop the frames along the centerline of the keel, that provided additional longitudinal strength to the bottom of the hull.

Molded Dimension. The various dimensions of timbers as seen from the sheer and body views of construction plans. Thus, the vertical surfaces (the sides) of keels, the fore-and-aft sides of the posts, the vertical or athwartships surfaces of frames, etc.

Port. The left side of the vessel when facing forward.

Rabbeting. A groove or cut made in a piece of timber in such a way that the edges of another piece could be fit into it to make a tight joint.

Sacrificial Planking. A thin layer of planking attached to the hull planking below the waterline to serve as a means of keeping teredo worms from consuming the hull planking.

Scarf.An overlapping joint used to connect two timbers or planks without increasing their dimensions.

Sided Dimension. The dimension of an unmolded surface; the distance across an outer frame surface, the forward or after surface of a stem or sternpost, or the upper surface of a keel or keelson

Starboard. The right side of the vessel when facing forward.

Treenail. A round or multi-sided piece of hardwood, driven through planks and timbers to connect them. Treenails were employed most frequently in attaching planking to frames, attaching knees to ceiling or beams, and in the scarfing of timbers.
